PREFACE.

THE designation "STATE PAPERS," by which the documents preserved in the State Paper Office are ordinarily known, and by which they are described on the title pages of the present series of Calendars, must be understood with some qualification. It is a convenient general title, under which the Calendars published, and the papers they represent, may be easily and properly recognized,—a title clearly applicable to them with reference to the place of their deposit, and generally so with reference to their actual character; but it is by no means put forth as a precise diplomatic description of every single document.

The Papers which form the Domestic Series of State Papers during the reign of Charles I. are of a miscellaneous character. Intermingled with sign manuals, proclamations, orders and correspondence of the Council, letters of the Secretaries of State, of the Lord High Admiral, and of other important public functionaries—great and primary evidences of the acts of the King's Government—there occur papers, some entirely private, of Secretary Nicholas, of Archbishop Laud, of Attorney-General Heath, and of other eminent persons. By what means many of these papers were originally brought into the State Paper Office it is not easy to discover. Some of them evidently found their way thither by the accidents to which in disturbed periods the papers of public men are subject. With some slight exceptions, they are now all intermingled, and arranged chronologically in one great series. Together they form a collection of papers, public and private, general and individual, local and personal, which has not, indeed, the definiteness, or what may even be termed the grandeur, of some of our great series of public Records, but they constitute a collection which cannot be surpassed for facility of consultation, and one which, when taken in connexion with the present Calendars, will be found to develope the facts of our national history in a way and to a degree altogether unexampled.

The portion of this collection which relates to the period of Charles I. is very unequally divided between the several parts of that King's reign. During the early years, as the present volume makes evident, the number of papers is very great. It continues to be so during the administration of the Duke of Buckingham, and until after the peace with Spain. For a few years after 1630 the papers are much less numerous. From 1634 there is again an increase, and as the time of the final public troubles approaches they are greatly augmented. For 1639 and 1640, they are as numerous as in 1625 and 1626. From an early period in the succeeding year there is a great falling off, and the papers of the last eight years of the reign will not occupy more space than those of the two bustling years which are included in the present volume. The cause of this inequality is obvious. The greater the variety and importance of public business, the larger the number of papers. The early years of the reign, which were years of war and foreign maritime expeditions, produced most extensive collections; the endeavour to defray the expenses of Government by the levy of ship money gave rise to much new business and to many papers. But the State Paper Office, it will be remembered, was the King's repository, and the officers who transmitted papers thither were his servants. When the fatal quarrel arose between the King and the Parliament, and the King retired from London, these officers followed his person to York, to Oxford, and elsewhere. They carried their papers about with them, or deposited them in places not within the enemy's quarters. Few found their way into the State Paper Office, except those which were captured on the field of battle, or came into possession of the Parliament by some of the other chances of a state of warfare.

The present volume opens with the State ceremonies consequent upon the recognition of the new Sovereign. From that time it takes its course through the events of the two succeeding years, illustrating, day by day, every incident as it occurred. In the case of many of the more important acts of public policy within this period, the State Papers give us their entire history. They show in whose advice such acts originated; they develope their progress and exhibit their results.

The funeral of King James I., the reception of Queen Henrietta Maria, the plague which desolated the metropolis, the coronation, the loan of the Vanguard and other English ships to the French, the Parliaments of 1625 and 1626, the naval expeditions of those years, the loans which supplied the place of subsidies, the impeachment of Buckingham, the dismissal of the Queen's French attendants, the quarrel between England and France, following hard upon that with Spain, the general disarming of the Roman Catholics, the ravages of the Dunkirkers on our eastern and those of the Sallee-men on our western coasts:—these are examples of the kind of subjects which will be found copiously illustrated in the State Papers. The force and vividness with which these papers bring the England of that day before us, is indeed marvellous. The condition of every department of the State, of the households of the King and Queen, of the people, with many of their trades and occupations, and the feeling with which they regarded every incident which affected the honour or prosperity of the country, may be read with a distinctness which it is scarcely possible to transfuse into treatise or history. Nor is it only the general condition of the people, or of the country, which here receives illustration; students of biography, and of those valuable branches of historical inquiry, topography and genealogy, will all find that they have an interest in these State Papers. The Index at the end of the volume lays open information on all these subjects. The multitude of names of places, and of letters of distinguished persons, many of them in a high degree characteristic, will prove to all historical inquirers that there is matter here to which it behoves them to pay attention.

It is impossible to enumerate all the important letters here calendared, but it may stimulate inquiry to mention a few. There is a letter, unfortunately only one, but one of characteristic kindness, and among the latest he ever wrote, of Lord Bacon.* Papers of Archbishop, then Bishop Laud, occur not unfrequently. Among them is the original, in his own hand, of his "Memorables of our late "dear and dread Sovereign Lord King James, of famous "memory."† The letters of Sir John Eliot and papers relating to him, scattered throughout the volume, are in the highest degree important. They contain much new and valuable matter. One letter of Sir Thomas Wentworth, afterwards Earl of Strafford, need scarcely be pointed out.‡ Fulke, Lord Brooke, the servant of Queen Elizabeth and friend of Sir Philip Sydney, then tottering towards the grave into which he was shortly afterwards hurried by the knife of an assassin, the Earls of Essex, Totness, Bristol, Warwick, Denbigh, Holland, and Carlisle, Viscounts Grandison and Wimbledon, Lord Willoughby, Bishops Andrewes, Morton, Neile, Bayly, and Williams, are correspondents whose letters will be sure to attract attention. Some of those of the last-mentioned prelate are almost incredible examples of flattery. One interesting letter occurs from Speed, the chronicler,* and one from Alexander Gil, the master of St. Paul's school.† There are single letters, also, of Donne the poet‡ and of Sir Tobie Matthew.§ Sir Francis Nethersole and Sir Benjamin Rudyerd are writers of valuable news-letters included in this collection, the well-known Chamberlain is a similar writer, and so is Thomas Locke. There are several papers relating to Sir Robert Sherley and the English intercourse with Persia; a few papers relating to artists will be found referred to in the Index under Vanderdort, Briot, and Mittens; some to musicians, under Orlando Gibbons, the several Lanieres, and Ferrabosco; there is one letter of Sir Richard Beaumont,‖ and several papers of Edmund Bolton, and of others of the minor celebrities of the literature of the time. Sir Henry Goodyere appears as a humble petitioner for pecuniary relief, and there is a similar application of an interesting kind from the degraded Sir Francis Mitchell. Sir Allen Apsley, Sir Henry Vane, Sir William St. Leger, Sir Thomas Love, Sir John Suckling, Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Sir Robert Heath, and Sir Lewes Lewkenor, are all contributors, more or less frequently, to the collection, taking their turns, in that respect, with the Duke of Buckingham, Secretaries Conway and Coke, Captain Pennington, Sir John Hippisley, Sir Henry Palmer, Sir James Bagg, Captain Richard Gyffard, Sackville Crow, and a multitude of others.

Among the papers are many which relate to subjects of interest to the investigators of national progress;—the state of the Mint and the Post Office, the course of improvement in ordnance and hand-arms, the pay, training, and muster of soldiers and sailors, the state of the art of shipbuilding, the places where the greater number of ships were built, the condition of fisheries, of the coal trade, the introduction of the "new draperies," the state of the cloth trade, and many other branches of manufacture, with a great variety of cognate subjects.

One point is necessary to be mentioned with reference to the arrangement of some of the papers which are here calendared. A considerable number of them, it will be perceived, are undated. In many instances these stand in the State Paper Office in places which are, in a certain sense, traditionary. They have come down to the present time in connexion with certain bundles or collections of papers relating to kindred subjects. It would, perhaps, be possible to fix the date of almost every one of these undated papers, but to do so would involve an amount of tedious and difficult inquiry which would exhaust a hundred lives, and when accomplished would, in the great majority of cases, advance no purpose of material moment. Such prolonged inquiry with reference to papers of slight importance would also militate against what may be termed one of the very principles of the publication of the series of Calendars in which the present volume occupies its niche; that principle is expedition. The wish is, to give to the present generation information which is valuable, but has not hitherto been made accessible. In accordance with this object, I have thought it right, in the cases to which I have alluded, to leave these papers in their traditionary places, satisfied that any inquirer to whom they may be of interest will be directed to them by the Index, and that, if at all, they are not very far out of place. The question in these cases always is, whether the apparent importance of such papers justifies the loss of time occupied in the pursuit of their actual date. When I have been able to answer that question in the negative, and have exhausted all ordinary sources of inquiry, I have deemed myself justified in leaving such papers where I found them.

In all these investigations, and indeed generally in connexion with the preparation of this volume, and its passage through the press, I have derived assistance, for which I am deeply grateful, from William Impey, Esq., and William Douglas Hamilton, Esq., two gentlemen upon the staff of the State Paper Office, who have been associated with me in this work. Without their able and zealous co-operation this volume could not have been produced at the present time, nor could I alone have got through the great amount of preliminary arrangement which has been necessary.

At the last moment, when the concluding portion of the Calendar contained in the present volume was in the hands of the printer, the donation of The Conway Papers to the State Paper Office by the Right Honourable John Wilson Croker made a considerable addition to the papers relating to the period which is here dealt with. One portion of this donation is of a peculiar character. It consists of docquets of papers presented to King Charles I. for his signature, from his accession to the end of 1628, the period during which the first Lord Conway was a Secretary of State. In the previously published volumes of this series of Calendars, under the editorship of Robert Lemon, Esq., and Mrs. Green, it will have been noticed that the docquets of that class run to a considerable number; in the present Calendar as it stood completed at the time of Mr. Croker's donation, there occurred only one docquet for the year 1625, and four for 1626. This obvious hiatus is now filled up by the occurrence of these docquets in the Conway papers. The omission in the present volume of the Calendar has been supplied, as nearly as possible, by printing a calendar of these Conway docquets as an Appendix, and inserting the names which occur in them in their proper places in the General Index to the volume. The other documents amongst the Conway papers, which relate to the years 1625 and 1626, stand over until the publication of a General Appendix, at the end of the work.

The next volume will comprise, at the least, the years 1627 and 1628, and the whole series of the Calendar of the papers of Charles I. will probably extend to six or seven volumes.

He prays, therefore, that, with his Majesty's liking, he may plead his own right or, by his special favour, may be preserved from a troublesome suit. When all honest hearts have such cause of rejoicing, he alone is forced to hide himself.

His Majesty had been moved by a servant of his to recommend his son, a student of Cambridge, to a fellowship in St. John's, upon the ground that such a power had been reserved by the statutes of the foundress. He wishes to be satisfied whether there be such a reservation. Underwritten,

96. 1. Reply of the Bishop, assuring him there was no such reservation. The clergy are humble suitors on their knees to his Majesty and his great Ministers, to be as sparing as may be in writing letters, which may hinder elections in Colleges.

Long details of an interview with the King, in which his Majesty disavowed any personal displeasure or grudge against the Earl, and stated that the cause why the Earl was in suspense and removed from Court was, that he was so desirous of the Spanish match that he trusted more to the Spanish Ministers than was fitting. If, as between himself and the King, he would acknowledge that he was too forward and confident, he should then without more ado kiss his Majesty's hand, and live in peace and honour. [Copy, attested by Sir Robert Heath.]

Vol. II.

May 28. London. 104. John Chamberlain to Sir Dudley Carleton. Is sorry to see our ill news so fully confirmed. A rich Holland East India ship lay two whole days in the Downs in sight of the King's ships, whereby we may easily perceive how the world goes. Dacres, in reference to a widow left unprovided for by the will of Sir Thos. Dacres. The King goes towards Dover the last of this month. The Queen set forth from Paris on the 23rd. Neither of the Queens nor the King accompanies her Majesty to Boulogne, only Monsieur, the King's brother. Sir Thos. Fairfax had inquired after Sir Dudley Carleton. The Earl of Northampton had gone into France in a mad mood, without acquainting the King; his Lordship is one of those from whom no great matter is expected. Lord Conway has a pension of 2,000*l.* per ann., for 21 years; Sir Edwd. Villiers, 3,000*l.* in money; Sir Francis Cottington, a grant of 400*l.* lands; these exceed the favour shewn in Sec. VOL. III. JUNE, 1625.

June 1. Canterbury. 1. Sec. Conway to the Council. Sir Francis Stuart has made stay of a Dunkirk ship laden with coin and bullion. His Majesty, considering the unjust proceedings of the Infanta's Ministers against his subjects, holds it right to stay this ship until justice be done. The Council are to assemble and return their opinion thereon. They are to send also their advice on an answer to be given to certain demands of an agent of Spain.

June 1. Minute of the above letter. [Conway's Letter Book, p. 217.]

June 1. [Canterbury.] The same to Sir John Hippisley. Informs him of the above letter to the Council, and advises him, till an answer comes, to stay the ship, but to use the people courteously: and he should do well to discharge two men stayed at Dover for refusing the oath, the French Ambassador complaining of their detention. [Minute, ibid.]

June 1. [Canterbury.] The same to Sir Henry Marten. To give his opinion on certain points to His Majesty. [Minute, ibid.]

June 1. Rolls. 2. Sir Julius Cæsar [Master of the Rolls], Hugh Barker, and Arthur Duck [to the Council]. June 1. 5. Proportions of victuals for 47 sailors and 135 soldiers on board the Talbot for six months.

June 1. 6. Thos. Locke to Sir Dudley Carleton. Reports to Sir Dudley an offer for his house at Imworth from Patrick Maule [Maal] of the late King's Bedchamber, a kinsman of Mr. Windebank, Sir Richard Harrison's neighbour, and allied to the Countess Leviston.

June 1. 7. The same to the same. 150*l.* allowed Sir Dudley for his blacks. Locke has heard that the Duke of Buckingham has written to the King, that the presents given to him in France are worth 80,000*l.* Above 30 sail of pirates are lying off the Scilly Isles, thought to be Turks : order for two of the King's ships to go thither. Sea provisions have been taken up to such an amount as to occasion some scarcity ; such prices have never been heard of, nor such a fleet ever been set forth at once.

June 2. Canterbury. Sec. Conway to Matthew de Quester. Acquainting him with a petition of the Lord Stanhope, and requiring his answer touching the state of his cause at the Common Law. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 217.]

June 2. Canterbury. The same to Edward Earl of Worcester, Lord Privy Seal. To stay him and the rest of the Lords at London, the marriage being to be performed there. [Minute, ibid.]

June 2. 8. The Council to Sir Francis Stewart. Information given them of three ships lately stayed by him in the Downs. He is to cause them to put in at Dover. Such goods as concern the merchants of London are to be brought up thither, and such as are for Calais or Dunkirk are to be stayed at Dover. The other ship, whereof Archibald Douglas is master, is also to be brought into Dover and stayed there.

June 2. 9. Note of the security this day given by the King to the City of London for the payment of two loans, one of 60,000*l.* to himself and the other of 100,000*l.* to his father. The amount is made up to 216,310*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.* by the addition of interest.

June 3. Canterbury. The same to Sir John Hippisley. To make stay of a Scottish ship which, being pressed to transport Mansfeldt's troops, stole away. [Minute, ibid.]

1625. Vol. III.

June 3. London. 10. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. The King having required to be certified by Mr. Attorney whether a grant to Wm. George, Clerk of the Wardrobe, were good in law against the former holder of that office, Sec. Coke sends Mr. Attorney's certificate that George's grant is good against all pretenders.

June 3. Clerkenwell. 11. Lord Treasurer Ley to the same. Desires that the Bills of Exchange for the Queen's portion may be sent to him as soon as they arrive; and that his Majesty will authorize him to pay thereout to Mr. Burlamachi 6,000*l.* out of the 40,000*l.* which Burlamachi is to return to the King of Denmark; also 7,000*l.* or 8,000*l.* towards satisfaction of money borrowed to furnish the expenses of the Household, the charges of Ambassadors, and other pressing demands. The Ambassador in the Low Countries has been requested to procure that the 2,000 men coming from thence may all be armed with corslets.

June 3. Totteridge. 12. Henry Viscount Mandeville, Lord President of the Council, to Sir Wm. Becher, Clerk of the Council. He had come that morning to the Council but that his coach failed him. Would have no haste in the redelivery of any ship of the Archduke's subjects; but the English subject wronged should enter his suit and arrest the ships, so should not we seem to give the first breach of league, and yet should have our ends.

June 3. Canterbury. 13. Sir Hen. Mildmay to Sec. Conway. The news of the Queen's stay at Amiens gives him a desire to take the opportunity to see the Court of France and the three Queens. Wishes for the King's permission that he may slip over. His Majesty's plate and jewels are safely brought to Canterbury, and well settled with a good watch day and night.

June 3. London. 14. Sir Wm. Uvedale to the same. He had sent down money for present occasions. The Chamber is so ill furnished that there is none or very little of the King's money remaining in Sir William's hands. Acknowledges Lord Conway's favour in supplying the wants of this time out of his own store.

June 3. Kingston-upon-Hull. 15. Mayor and others of Kingston-upon-Hull to the Council. They had been specially required to take order that the markets were well served, and that provisions brought in passed secure from the violence of the soldiers, such of them as were Dep. Lieuts. keeping the Trained Bands in readiness. They will not fail in obedience, but there have not been this long time any Dep. Lieuts. in their Riding.

June 3. 16. Lord Keeper Williams to Sec. Conway. Lest his Majesty should have occasion to use another Commission for proroguing the Parliament, he sends one for four days longer.

June 3. Westminster College. 17. The same to the same. Sends him another Commission for the prorogation of Parliament, with a blank for the day on which his Majesty shall resolve to have the Parliament to hold.

Vol. III.

June 3. Exeter. 18. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. He accepted his present charge in mere passive obedience, but the hand of the Lord is not with him. His soul inclines to a more retired course of life. Begs therefore to be helped from this engagement. Has erred in there undertaking and here declining, but less is an error than a heresy. Hopes the King will hear him before anything further be put upon him than his present service.

June 3. London. 19. Matthew de Quester to the same. Lord Stanhope, in a petition to the King, having urged objections against De Quester's patent for the foreign postmastership, he had procured an answer to be prepared by Sir Heneage Finch, Recorder of London, one of his counsel in the recent trial between himself and Lord Stanhope. His cause is respited until the beginning of next term.

June 3. 20. Testimonial presented to his Majesty by Archbishop Abbot and others in behalf of Matthew de Quester. That for many years he had bestowed his painful endeavours in sending the King's packets to his Ambassadors in foreign parts with much fidelity and diligence. [Copy.]

June 4. London. 21. Matthew de Quester to Sec. Conway. Omitted through haste to send Mr. Recorder's declaration in his yesterday's letter. The Attorney General likes well of the same, wishing De Quester to pray Lord Conway to stay any proceeding by Lord Stanhope until judgment be given in the cause. Incloses,

21. 1. The answer of Matthew de Quester to the objections of Lord Stanhope in his late petition to his Majesty.

June 4. Kingston-upon-Hull. 22. Capt. Wm. Courteney to the Council. He has been appointed to receive 2,000 men at Hull; 1,400 have arrived, and 200 more will be there on Tuesday. Those from Lancashire cannot be there until Monday week, and he hears nothing of the rest. Dissatisfaction with the pay of 2*s.* 6*d.* per week. The transports are ready. He requests directions whether he should wait for those soldiers who have not yet arrived.

June 4. Tower of London. 23. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. Gives account of the application of the amount of a bill of exchange delivered over to the Lord Treasurer; 4,000*l.* to Burlamachi for provision of corslets for the soldiers coming from the Low Countries, and 1,500*l.* to the Ordnance. Arrangements made for supply of victuals and munition. Ships in readiness to fall down, and take the first wind for Plymouth. Dissatisfaction at two Holland East India ships not having been stayed in the Downs.

June 4. Dover. 24. Sec. Morton to Buckingham. He found the King at Dover. His Majesty's going to Boulogne to meet the Queen is strongly dissuaded. The King wishes Buckingham not to return until he can bring the Queen to his hand. He wants more of those blanks which Buckingham left with him, in the use of which he has been very sparing. He has expressed his desire of seeing the Queen Mother.

1625. VOL. III.

June 4. [Dover.] 25. Sec. Conway to Buckingham. The Earl of Northampton, Sec. Morton, and Mr. Glemham arrived at nine last night. They found the King on the leads, where he spent two very cold hours. Reasons against the King's passing to Boulogne: the precedent an abasing of the Kings of England; concessions to be feared from the Papists' importunities; necessity for holding the Parliament; and possible danger from his Majesty's putting himself in the power of another King. No word from the Low Countries since Sir Wm. St. Leger went. The King requires the Duke to send him more blanks signed. Sec. Morton to be despatched to the States.

June 4. Doctors' Commons. 26. Sir Henry Marten to Sec. Conway. His Majesty wishing him to certify his opinion respecting the stay of Dunkirkers by Sir Francis Stewart, he recapitulates past proceedings consequent upon many complaints by subjects of England and Scotland against the Dunkirkers. His late Majesty, who was not easily drawn to write or subscribe any lines tending to extremities, gave commission to the Lord Admiral to issue letters of marque; if that commission be just, the stay of their ships and goods must necessarily be so likewise.

June 4. London. 27. Sir William Becher to the same. Reports what had been done at a meeting of the Council respecting the stay of the ship by Sir Francis Stewart, and also respecting the King's answer to the agent of Spain. Explains why the letter in reply was not fully signed. Incloses, 27 1. The Lords of the Council to Sec. Conway. The Council deem the orders already given to Sir Francis Stewart sufficient, but upon more particular knowledge they will give such further order as may be requisite. The King should refer the agent of Spain to receive his answer from the Council. 1624, June 4.

[June 4?] 28. Statement of facts to be submitted to his Majesty respecting Campaine, the Dutch pirate, who had taken and rifled above 80 ships of the Hollanders, and, according to Sir John Killigrew, was worth 100,000*l.* It is thought that he was desirous to come into England, and would give 20,000*l.* for a pardon.

June 4. 29. Fulke Lord Brooke to Sec. Conway. Thanks him for his "discharging advertisements." Hopes his love businesses would keep him from having anything to do with "the great Commission" till his return. He is sorry for Breda, although our men came away in safety. Love must teach the King to suffer with patience, and duty fashion "you all" to wait upon him.

June 4. 30. Dominico Rowen to [Nicholas]. A Portugal ship stayed at Hurst Castle by Lord Gorges under pretence of piracy. Peter le Grave, acting under a commission from the Prince of Orange, had proved that the ship was lawful prize, and Mons. Houtyn, Admiral of Zealand, had certified to the truth thereof. Reference requested to the Judge of the Admiralty.

Having been ordered to give bond not to go into Virginia, he declares that he did not take soundings of the rivers and harbours of that country, as asserted by the Virginia Company. Sends certificate thereon, and offers as his sureties, Richard Abington and John Bartlett, doctor of physic. Annexed is,

32. I. Certificate of two of the crew of Tuchin's ship that he never sounded farther than his ship went. 1625, June 4.

June 5. Canterbury. Sec. Conway to Lord Treasurer Ley. His Majesty likes well his not meddling with the portion money, and desires to preserve it for the most notable actions; 6,000*l.*, to make up the 46,000*l.* for Denmark, will in all likelihood be yielded to. Requests that money may be made over for providing such arms as are wanting. The three Queens ready to remove from Amiens. Reputation won by the Duke of Buckingham. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 217.]

June 5. Dover. The same to Lord Keeper Williams. Sends a Commission for adjourning the Parliament, which he is to make use of, if he receive not contrary order. [Minute, ibid., p. 218.]

June 5. Totteridge. 33. Henry Viscount Mandeville, Lord President, to Sir Wm. Becher, Clerk of the Council. Sends a letter from Sec. Conway, which is an answer to the letter from Plymouth, to be communicated to Sir John Ogle. Would gladly hear the certainty of the Queen's coming over, when the King will be in London, and where he now is. Incloses,

33. I. The Mayor and others of Plymouth to the Council. Had used their best endeavours for the billeting of 10,000 soldiers. Great complaints that their pay of 2*s.* 6*d. per week could not find them meat and drink. Insubordination for lack of officers.* 1625, May 30.

33. II. Lord Conway to the Council. Communicates to them his Majesty's opinion on an inclosed letter from Plymouth. The directions already given for the well ordering of the troops are sufficient. Sir John Ogle is now there. The soldiers' full pay is 8*d. per day, of which* 2*s.* 6*d. per week is paid to them for victuals, the rest being reserved for providing two suits of clothes yearly. The gentlemen should be admonished to take care for well furnishing the markets at the cheapest rates.* 1625, June 4.

1625. VOL. III.

June 6. Plymouth. 35. Commissioners for executing martial law in the County of Devon to the same. As 3,000 soldiers are to be billeted in places near Plymouth, but in the County of Cornwall, they desire that their Commission may be extended to that county.

June 6. London. 36. Sir Wm. Becher to Sec. Conway. Sends a copy of the Council's letter to the gentlemen of the West country in answer to theirs about the soldiers' pay. On his Lordship's credit they have written that Sir John Ogle was gone down to take the command, though they knew not of it, because there were no letters from the Lords to that effect. Incloses,

36. I. Copy of the Council's letter to the Mayor and others of Plymouth, in the terms suggested in Lord Conway's letter of 1625, June 4. [See ante, No. 33. II.]

June 6. Canterbury. 37. Sec. Morton to Sec. Conway. Has delayed his departure till he might certify the opinion of the physicians after opening the head of Orlando Gibbons, who had died suddenly at Canterbury. They avow that there is no token of any infection, and in the brain most apparent signs of a lethargy. Incloses,

37. I. Copy of the certificate of Drs. Poe and Domingo, who attended Orlando Gibbons on his sudden seizure and examined his brain after his decease.

June 6. Arwenack. 38. Sir John Killigrew to Buckingham. Will essay to bring in Campaine, who has refused the pardon sent him from his own nation. Bagg is unthankful. Bonython had done his Grace much damage.

The Judges would have given them their clergy, but could not, as they had had that benefit before. They, therefore, left them in prison to the end, that, if the Council give consent, they might be pressed for his Majesty's service.

June 8. Canterbury. Sec. Conway to Sir John Ogle. Assures him of readiness to assist in bringing him off from the employment at Plymouth. [Minute Conway's Letter Book, p. 218.]

June 8. Dover Castle. 41. Sir John Hippisley to Nicholas. Seven Englishmen who have arrived from France, having refused to take the oath of allegiance, have been committed to Dover Castle. A will of one Mr. Talbot, in which much money is given out of the kingdom to spiritual uses, found on one of them. Sir John desires that a proclamation may be issued against carrying goods into France as well as into Spain. The Hamburghers are now all freighted into France and thence to Spain. Encounters with ships of Dunkirk. Has written so often for a warrant that the sea coast may be better looked to, that he begins to be weary of it: men resolve to meddle no more, let the French do what they will.

June 9. Westminster College. 44. Lord Keeper Williams to Sec. Conway. Desires his Majesty's final resolution whether the Parliament should be put off. The sickness in London increases into a remarkable number, but Westminster is yet free from infection. It should be resolved whether the King will open Parliament with his crown before his coronation, or rather without it, and if so, whether in his robes. Tell the Duke of Buckingham that Lady Purbeck's defence in the High Commission proves to be modest and without aspersion of other parties.

1625. Vol. III.

June 9. Canterbury. 45. Petition of Robert Pamplin, Yeoman of the Robes, to the King; prays for a grant of Key Haven, Berewater, and certain other lands in Milford, Winning and the adjoining parishes, in co. Hants, being places overflown by the sea; with a reference of the said petition to the Lord Treasurer.

June 9. London. 46. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. He long since delivered directions to the officers of the Ordnance to make ready what warrants they stood in need of, but, either by the sickness of the Master and Clerk of that office, or otherwise, the main warrant has been neglected. Sends a warrant for signature appointing the Master [of the Ordnance] for the meditated expedition.

June 9. 47. Sir Henry Poole to Mr. Trumbull [Tromball]. June 9 Dover. 48. Mayor of Dover to Sec. Conway. The Anne Royal sailed yesterday, and this morning the rest of the ships, all for Boulogne. A mariner reports that the Queen reached Boulogne yesterday, about 5 o'clock p.m., in good health and very merry. This man saw her viewing the sea, and so near that it was bold to kiss her feet, so that her Majesty was over shoes, and thence returned with great pleasure.

June 11. London. 52. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sec. Conway. The money for the soldiers has been sent to Plymouth and Hull, and also that for the 2,000 men from the Low Countries. Sir Robert Anstruther is gone with bills for 46,000*l.* for the King of Denmark. To-morrow, the remainder of the 20,000*l.*, imposed upon the Treasurer by the Duke, will be paid. 11,800*l.* for the Victualler of the Navy, and 8,500*l.* for the Ordnance, still remain, and there is neither money in the Exchequer left, nor means to maintain the ordinaries for this year to come, nor any more credit at all. Urgently intreats that the King will give warrant for paying these and other sums out of the portion, as was intended by the late King.

1625. VOL. III.

June 12. Plymouth. 55. Sir John Ogle to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain. Has an honest, humble, and well-devoted affection to his service. Is here engaged, but has partly declined upon some melancholic suggestions, although he will go forward to perform his Majesty's will. Beseeches his Lordship to interpose, that all former oversights, by word or writing, may be forgotten. They have alarms and mutinies: the alarm is that 80 ships have put in about Teignmouth; the mutiny, that of the Essex men against their conductor.

[June 12.] Canterbury. 56. Endymion Porter to his wife Olive. The Queen is expected this night at Dover, and on Wednesday [the 15th] they will be in London. The King will not come to Greenwich at all. God bless George and Charles and Dim.

June 12. Deal Castle. 57. Thos. Fulnetby, Capt. of Deal Castle, to Sir John Hippisley. Order received to send ships to Boulogne to the Lord Admiral. There is not one ship in the Downs, nor has there been since Friday.

June 12. Kingston-upon-Hull. 58. Capt. Wm. Courteney to Sec. Conway. He has appointed Lieut. Chaworth as directed. Capt. Plumley comes not. Has put Capt. Stratford in his place. Recommends Lieut. Wilton. Some conductors come short of their numbers, and many of the men are lame and sick, and so bare, that he has been driven to make suits for them.

June 12. Plymouth. 59. Sir John Ogle to the same. This is a knotty and cumbersome business. The number of officers insufficient; the men very unfit by reason of age, impotency, and sickness; their clothes not of the best, being only cassocks, no shirts, shoes, stockings, or breeches; those out of Hampshire without even cassocks. Alarms of mutiny, and of an enemy's fleet at Teignmouth.

June 12. London. 60. John Chamberlain to Sir Dudley Carleton. The Earl of Oxford's decease is the more lamented as he was the only hope of so ancient and noble a house. We do or say little, but expect the Queen, the cause of whose stay is her mother's sickness. The Queen is escorted by a little army of 4,000 attendants. The sickness increases and spreads. Death of Orlando Gibbons. The Parliament must be put off again. Earls of Montgomery and Carlisle and Secretary Morton are come out of France. Munificence of the presents to Buckingham, Goring, and others. Has just heard that the Queen came to Boulogne on Thursday; and that the sickness has broken out in the house of the Lord Mayor.

June 12. Return of names and residences of 50 men levied in co. Radnor, and delivered to Thirkell Ridgeley to be conducted to Plymouth. [See Vol. XV., No. 12.]

The sickness has spread into all parts of the City: cases have occurred in Westminster. He could have wished that his Majesty had determined to come no nearer than Greenwich. Propriety of opening the session privately, putting off the term, and removing the Parliament. Had directed the principal reporter of the King's death to be imprisoned until the Assizes, the others to be let out on bail.

June 13. Lichfield. 63. Sir Simon Weston to the Council. Sends return of 100 foot impressed in co. Stafford. The men were all able-bodied, and between 24 and 40.

June 13. The Tower. 64. Sir Allen Apsley, Lieut. of the Tower, to Henry Viscount Mandeville, President of the Council. He had taken the examination of Martin Bowen [Bowes] committed by the Duke of Buckingham. Bowen had no warrant to pass the shot; as it seems he had to transport the ordnance. He says there are 25 tons of shot; the owner of the wharf says there are above 60 tons. Incloses,

64. I. Examination of William Langley. 50 tons of great iron shot landed at Chester's Quay by one Bowen, born at Antwerp, and a traveller between the Archduke's country and England; he is suspected to be one who gives intelligence. 1625, May 5.

64. II. Letter from Wm. Langley. He had directed that the shot should not be removed. Bowen will father it upon Burlamachi.

64. III. Examination of Martin Bowen. He received 25 or 30 tons of shot from Burlamachi, and lodged them at Chester's Quay until means arose for their transportation to Amsterdam. 1625, June 5.

64. IV. A letter, in Dutch, conveyed to the prisoner in the Tower by his brother.

June 14. Kingston-upon-Hull. 65. Mayor and other Commissioners at Kingston-upon-Hull to the Council. The companies are now complete; the number of those from the West, being 1,940 men, are all shipped. 300 out of Lancashire arrived on the 12th. The men from Northumberland, being very poorly apparelled, have been supplied with necessaries.

1625. Vol. III.

June 14. Plymouth. 67. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. If, notwithstanding those mists of darkness cast sometimes over the small light of his judgment, he is yet thought capable to do service, he refuses not to be employed. Reiterates his complaints of the wants of the soldiers, who are like to carry an infection on shipboard sufficient to give an overthrow ere they see any enemy. The commission for martial law should be extended to Cornwall, and order taken for supply of shirts, shoes, stockings, and breeches.

June 14. Loseley. 68. Sir George More to the Council. The inhabitants of Godalming fearing that by occasion of their fair, to which there is a resort of many tradesmen from London, the sickness might be brought into their town, had requested that this year the fair might not be kept. As this is a public matter Sir George requests their Lordships' approbation of the postponement.

June 14. Canterbury. 69. Endymion Porter to his wife. Last night the King and Queen did lie together at Canterbury. He has sent her two of the King's points and a ruby ring. On Thursday [16th] he hopes they shall meet in London.

June 15. On board the Vanguard in Dieppe Road. 71. Captain John Pennington to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain. On the 9th he sailed from the Downs, and on the 13th, after very foul weather, came to an anchor off Dieppe, having parted company with the Great Neptune. The French Ambassador stated that the Admiral of France was at Dieppe ready to embark, but he is in Paris. Has sent to let him know of the arrival of the fleet, and requested his directions. This is no place to stay in. No provisions of war prepared; 1,700 soldiers ready to be put aboard, which is more than he is bound by his instructions to receive. Is informed that the preparation is against Mons. Soubise and Rochelle, but he has special command not to engage in the civil wars of France or against the protestants. Begs his Lordship to mediate for him, that abiding by his instructions he may not be censured until he shall return to render an account.

June 16. 72. Sec. Morton to Sec. Conway. A French gentleman having been hurt in a squabble at Dover, he had required the Mayor to take bonds for the appearance of the persons accused. Sends the statement of the French gentleman.

and Sir Wm St. Leger at the Hague. Learns from Mons. Aersens and the other Ambassadors from the States, that he has been expected on the other side. The 2,000 men from the Low Countries not likely to be sent over except the King will accept of them by entire companies. The state of Mansfeldt is wondrous low. Requests speedily to hear what language the Ambassadors of the States hold.

June 18. Canterbury. 82. Sir Geo. Newman, Judge of the Admiralty of the Cinque Ports, to Nicholas. Whilst the Duke was in France the Council directed Sir Geo. Newman to inquire concerning six chests of silver which Mr. Hugessen [Hugensan], of Dover, received out of the Hector, from Spain. He now reports to Nicholas the circumstanes respecting that and other consignments of silver made to Mr. Hugessen. The Duke was too busy to listen to him at Canterbury. Incloses,

82. I. Copy of a letter of the Council to Sir George Newman, addressed as Dr. Newman. Directing him to make the before-mentioned inquiries of Hugessen, to ascertain the owners of the silver, and to cause it to be delivered to the Mint to be coined. 1625, June 8.

June 18. Plymouth. 83. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. The soldiers can no way be made serviceable without a supply of necessaries. He knows not how to go forward in this business with assurance and resolution, the work is so knotty and full of incumbrance, but he will do his best. Refers to past transactions, in which he accuses himself of weakness, especially when he was overreached by the subtlety of that serpent at Utrecht.

June 18. 84. Speech of [Sir Thos. Edmondes] in the House of Commons, on moving that Sir Thos. Crewe should be elected Speaker.

June 20. Inner Temple. 85. Attorney General Coventry to Sec. Conway. Did not discern any inconvenience in moving His Majesty to grant a pardon to Bynding for manslaughter although he had not been tried for the offence. In cases of a more heinous nature, it is fit that offenders should abide their trial before they are pardoned. [Copy].

[June $\frac{2}{3}\frac{0}{0}$.] Constantinople. 86. Eleanor Lady Roe to Sec. Conway. The late King gave Lady Roe a pension of 200*l.* during her life, which is the best part of her means. She has written to the Duke of Buckingham and inclosed her petition to the King, that if there be danger as to the renewal of pensions her case may be considered. She hopes for favour because she lives an uncomfortable life in a strange country where her husband spends his own liberally in his Majesty's service.

June 25. London. 91. John Chamberlain to Sir Dudley Carleton. Gratitude of John West, Capt. Sibthorp, and Harry Fanshaw. The sickness increases, and the term is abridged. Great doings by reason of the Queen's arrival. The excessive bravery on both sides breeds a surfeit. The Queen's train, poor pitiful women, not worth looking after. The Duchess of Chevreuse fair, but paints foully. The King told the Parliament they had drawn him into a war, and must find means to maintain it. They begin to mutter about religion, and the King having promised that he would never marry with conditions derogatory to protestantism. Complaints of ill management. A lioness whelped in the Tower, which some take as a presage that all things are like to succeed as in the former time.

June 29. From aboard, the Vanguard, near the Ness. 99. Capt. John Pennington to Wm. Earl of Pembroke. Gives a particular account of a visit paid to the English fleet off Dieppe by the Admiral of France (the Duke de Montmorency.) The Duke appointed Commissioners to arrange with Pennington about the delivery of his ship. On entering into conference the Commissioners wished him to take on board 300 men; he declined to receive more than 60. They claimed that the Admiral should have the command of the ship and crew; he insisted on commanding his own people. They told him their design was against Mons. de Soubise; he answered that he would perform the contract. They left, saying that the King of France would write to the King of England to cause Pennington to fulfil their desire. On the following day, Pennington sent a messenger to the Admiral to let him know that they could not ride any longer where they were, and requested further orders; none arriving, Pennington brought his ship back to the English coast. His people swear that they will be hanged or thrown overboard before they will fight against Soubise. "A kennel of rank pirately rogues" at Dieppe abuse the good nature of the Admiral of France, who knows nothing of the sea, nor ever saw a piece of ordnance shot at sea before in his life.

The Mayor has just reported the directions of the Council to supply the troops with necessaries; it shall be done on the return of the officers sent to inquire. A good correspondence between the country inhabitant and the soldier. Absence of disorder and outrage.

[June?] 107. Capt. Wm. Courteney to Sec. Conway. Lieut. Chaworth came in seasonable time, for Capt. Courteney never met with such unruly men, especially as those from Northumberland, who were brought, for the most part, naked, save their coats. After taking advice upon the subject, Capt. Courteney supplied them with such things as were necessary to keep them from nakedness, and he begs the favour of Lord Conway, that the amount may be allowed.

June. 108. Lord Mayor [John Gore] and Aldermen of London to the Council. [June?] 120. Note by Edward Ingham of a message sent by the Earl of Pembroke to Capt. Pennington, explaining the feelings of the King and "all the rest," with reference to the delivery of the ships to the French. They were exceeding glad of the discontent of Pennington's ship's company; if it had not so fallen out, they should have advised him to have brought some such thing to pass. If the French offered to take possession of Pennington's ship, his men should take him prisoner and bring away the ship. It was far from the King's will that any of his ships should go against the protestants.

[June?] 121. Robert Earl of Warwick to [Sec. Conway]. Before his brother Montjoy received his commission for his troop of horse, some friends of his had entered into a treaty for his marriage. Douglas, a prisoner in the Marshalsea, would make his peace with Sir John [Hippisley] by a present of 20 pieces. A Gunner's place in Capt. Bacon's Castle by Winchelsea solicited; loth to hazard above 10*l.* upon it, because he fears that castle may be demolished.

July 4. Doctors' Commons. 6. Rich. Wyan to Nicholas. Reports, with reference to an enclosed petition, that Mr. Jennings, Lord Conway's deputy at Portsmouth, having seized a bark of Rich. Somerset, by way of indemnity to Catesby and Anthony Penruddock against a bond for 1,200*l.*, which they had executed as sureties for Lord Morley and Monteagle. [Case A., Car. I., No. 4.]

Vol IV.

[July 6?] 10. Sir Thos. Crewe, Speaker, to Sec. Conway. The warrant, which he had signed by order of the House, follows the Act of Parliament, and extends to the Treasurers as well as to the Council of War. Lord Carew had excused himself on account of indisposition. Viscount Grandison was at Battersea and could not have notice so soon. Some Member should excuse Lord Conway on account of his late receipt of the notice, and his being in a course of physic. The House sits that afternoon as a Committee of the whole House, and he [the Speaker] is not to be there unless sent for, else he would have made known the cause of Lord Conway's absence.

July 6. Weymouth and Melcombe Regis. 11. Mayor of Weymouth to the Council. Has required Henry Waltham to deliver up the three chests of ryals taken out of the ship from St. Lucar, but can get none but impertinent and dilatory answers. Incloses,

July 7. 16. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. It seems to him that it hath pleased God to put to his hand (as it were) to throw him out of that course of life, he therefore entreats Conway to bring him off fairly from that employment, and that a ship of war be sent to fetch him away; travel by land he cannot, and by sea it is too dangerous in an ordinary vessel by reason of the Turks.

July 7. Westminster. Warrant for payment of 300*l.* as the King's gift to Nicholas Lambert and John Guyott, two French heralds. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 28.]

July 8. 18. Instructions [to a committee appointed to present to his Majesty the "petition of religion"] that they should request his Majesty to command that Mr. Mountague should not publish any other books until some order were taken concerning those he had published already.

July 8. 19. His Majesty's reply; Mr. Mountague's former books should be referred to the Convocation; and hereafter books in that argument should be perused before they went to press.

VOL. IV.

[July 8?] 20. References to passages in Mr. Mountague's "Gag," which were excepted to [by the House of Commons.] In the handwriting of Bishop Laud.

[Ibid., No. 31.]

July 8. 21. Account of debt due to Marcadet, the Queen's Jeweller (30,050 livres), with certificate of the delivery of the articles, written in the name of Jehan de Harlay, Marchioness of St. George, Lady of Honour to the Queen, and signed by her husband W. de Harlay, the Marquis of St. George. [French.]

July 8. Westminster. 22. Wm. Earl of Northampton, Lord President of Wales, and Sir Jas. Whitelock to Sec. Conway. That for the better settling of Sir Thos. Chamberlayne's fees as Judge of Chester and certain counties in North Wales, 200*l.* had been paid to him yearly. Inclose,

July [8.] 23. Sir John Coke's report of a message from his Majesty to the House of Commons. His Majesty's acceptance of the subsidies as a pledge of the affection not only of the representative body, but of his subjects generally. Application of former subsidies; losses under Count Mansfeldt; importance of the expedition now on foot, and urgent necessity for further supplies. The ordinary revenue is clogged with debts and exhausted with the late King's funeral and other expenses of necessity and honour. The choice, if further supplies refused, lies between calling back the ships and deserting the cause, or finding some way of extraordinary supply.

July 8. 24. Rough draft of the same, part thereof being written on a letter dated Drury Lane, 1625, June 25, from Dorothy Carey to her brother Sir John Coke, detailing the preparations for the removal of my Lord [i. e., Bishop Carey of Exeter] and his family to Exeter on account of the plague.

1625. VOL. IV.

[July 8 ?] 26. Provisional instructions given by His Majesty's directions to [Sir John Coke ?] as to the course to be taken in the House of Commons in case no further grant of subsidies could be obtained. He was to stand up and say that the King had given him warrant to move, in his name, not to deal with any other matter before they had agreed to the times of payment of the subsidies already granted. His Majesty would have been glad to have been assured of some future comings-in, but hoped to prevent the like growing necessities by a more frugal application of his own means.

July 8. 27. Lord Chief Baron Walter to Sir James Fullerton. King James having extended the lands of Walter Earl of Ormond on a bond of 100,000*l.*, assigned the extent to Lord Esmond and Sir James Craig. A little before the late King's death, letters were procured from him that the profits should be sequestered from the patentees. The Chief Baron and Barons Denham and Trevor are of opinion that the King could not grant such letters by any legal or ordinary course of justice.

[July 8 ?] 28. His Majesty's answers to the petition presented to him by both Houses of Parliament concerning matters of religion. [The answers given on this occasion differ from those ultimately entered on the Journal of the House of Lords, vol. iii., p. 479, and printed in Rushworth, I., 281].

July 9. 29. Thos. Locke to [Sir Dud. Carleton]. The want of money so great as the like has not been known. Ambassadors stay for want of money, and since Midsummer no servant of the King has received any penny. All the money that is yet in the Exchequer will not feed the French. Duchess of Chevreuse has resolved to lie in here. The sickness increases more and more; the bill specified 500 and odd last week. Deaths have occurred in Whitehall. Removals of the King and Queen. The Parliament like to break up on Monday. Sir John Coke's account of the past expenses. Debates in Parliament about Mountague's "Appello Cæsarem." Vol. IV.

July 10. Guildford. 31. John Earl of Annandale to Sec. Conway. Presses for the King's letter, enabling him to him to appoint Edw. Neville to be his Vice-Governor of Connaught. Alludes to the King having been at the Earl's house at Guildford on his return from Spain.

July 11. 36. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. Had arranged the demands for the navy, and caused the warrants to be drawn up. If care be not taken to limit the demands, and proportion the expenditure to the money that can be had, the business will fall to the ground.

July 11. 37. Sir Ferdinando Gorges, Anthony Tuchin, Peter White, and Jasper Dare, (captains of merchant ships agreed to be lent to the King of France,) to Sec. Conway. Having reason to suspect that there was a resolution on the part of the French to dispossess them of their ships, they had thought fit, in the civilest manner they could, to quit the coast of France. They think it much better that they should serve the French independently, and subject only to the orders of the Admirals or Generals in charge of the service; in which case nothing more will be looked for by them than to be made acquainted with the enemy against whom they are to be employed.

July 11. 38. Copy of the same.

July 11. 39. Robt. Bacon to William Weld, attending on Lord Conway. Having moved Lord Conway to be a mean for the continuance of the customary annual Royal grant of venison to the City of London, his Lordship referred him to Mr. Weld. He now solicits that the particular services of the present Lord Mayor (preparing to meet his Majesty, the levy of 3,000 men, and the loan of 60,000*l.*,) may be brought before the King to beget his favour towards the City.

July 11. London. 40. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. Reports the reasons assigned by the captains of the merchant ships returned from the service of the French, why they think themselves freed from further engagement in that service:—the days of payment have been broken, and the carriage of the French has been insolent; they have plainly professed they will be masters of the ships, and will employ both ships and men against those of our religion. The owners say their ships are their freeholds, and they say all that they are English free-born and will not put themselves into French jurisdiction. Our seamen generally are most resolute protestants, and will rather be killed or thrown overboard than be forced to shed the blood of protestants. Murmuring against it in Parliament; open exclaiming in the pulpits. Course suggested to gain time and draw from the objectors a declaration of their due performance of the contract. Sir Ferdinando Gorges attends upon this business.

July 11. Whitehall. 41. The Council to the Mayor of Weymouth. They approve his care and diligence. He is to call before him Henry Waltham, and charge him to make present delivery of the three chests of ryals, as he will answer the contrary at his peril. [Copy.]

Received last week six chests of Spanish money, containing 20,000 ryals of eight. These are out of Douglas's ship; he is now a prisoner in the castle. Appointments solicited. It was reported that there were above 300,000*l.* worth of goods stayed in Dover harbour.

July 12. On board the Talbot. 46. Luke Burden to the same. Sir Francis Stewart had sent a packet to the Duke of Buckingham concerning his having stayed certain ships bound for Flanders, and freighted with money and goods. Since then Sir Francis had stayed an English ship from Carthagena in the Straits, which Sir Francis desires that the Duke may know. Sir Francis had commanded the writer to take the three ships to Portsmouth. The master's name of the ship from Carthagena is John Blake.

Has received advice from Holland that the merchant who undertook to furnish money for the 6,000 men for the present month, will not do so. Offers to give order for such payment, provided the Council of War will direct present payment to him of 5,000*l.*, and payment of the remainder out of the first receipts. Provision must also be made for the month, which will begin on the 25th inst. He begs that his 20,000*l.* may be borne in mind. If he does not receive some part of it, it will be his ruin. [French.]

July 15. Dover. 57. Mayor of Dover to Sir John Hippisley. Barrels stayed at Dover contained no bullion. Isaac Marychurch, whose ship was taken by Dunkirkers, landed from Calais this afternoon. Details of the torture to which his men were subjected to make them confess that the goods on board belonged to Holland or Zealand.

[July 15 ?] [Rochester ?] 58. Duke of Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. The Duke has sent his secretary to see the King's pleasure signified by Lord Conway put in execution, which is for the delivery of the ships to such Frenchmen as the King of France shall appoint, that they may put into them as many men as they think good, and dispose of them as the King of France shall direct. Security is to be given for the ships by the Marquis d'Effiat, in his own name, and that of the Duke de Chevreux and Mons. de la Ville-aux-Clercs; and directions are to be given to Burlamachi to pay two months pay as soon as the ships are delivered. [Draft; slightly imperfect].

July 15. 59. Copy of the same.

July 15. Plymouth. 60. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Have endeavoured to provide the soldiers with necessary hose, shoes, and shirts, and some small proportion of breeches, to such as are in most necessity. The Paymaster, Mr. Bere, has disbursed to this day 6,200*l.*, besides 1,000*l.* for the necessaries before-mentioned. The remainder in hand not sufficient for a fortnight's pay.

July 16. London. 61. Sir Francis Nethersole to Sir Dudley Carleton. Will write from Oxford, where he hopes matters will go more smoothly than men's fears prophecy. That, and the increase and general spread of the plague, cause such distraction and consternation, that the like was never seen in that age. The number of deaths for four weeks was answerable to those in the first year of the late King, but this last week it is near a thousand greater, which makes all men hasten away. A kitchener of the King died at Windsor. Nethersole is going to drink the waters of Wellingborough till he must be at Oxford. Extreme wetness of the weather. Men make hay standing up to their ankles in water.

July 16. Gravesend. 62. Jo. Griffiths to Sec. Conway. Has failed in delivery of his letter to the Duke of Buckingham, in consequence of his Grace's unexpected return from Rochester. Could not therefore get a King's ship to take him across, and to attend the Lord Ambassador's [Sec. Morton's] return at Flushing. The States' man-of-war is gone and refused to take English passengers. Begs him to renew his application to the Duke to accommodate the Ambassador with a ship.

July 16. Summer Hill. 63. Frances Countess of Clanrickard to Buckingham. The Earl of Clanrickard has fallen of late extreme sick, and is not able to express himself with his own hand. At the last Assizes at Maidstone, he was indicted for recusancy, notwithstanding the late King's directions to stop any such proceedings. Prays the Duke to procure the King's directions to the Judges to free his Lordship from this vexation.

July 16. 64. Copy of the same, with a subjoined letter written by Ulick Lord Dunkellin to his brother [-in-law] Lord Compton, in order that he might get the matter dispatched in case of the Duke of Buckingham's absence.

July 16. 65. William Purnel [a priest from Seville in Spain] to his brother Thos. Purnel. A second letter of exhortation to embrace the true Catholic faith. Reasons which induced the writer to make change of his religion.

July 16. Maidstone. 66. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. Nicholas is going to Dieppe with Mons. d'Effiat to see the King's pleasure signified by Lord Conway put in execution. He is not to make long stay at Dieppe, neither will the Ambassador, therefore, Nicholas hopes Pennington will hasten thither. In a postscript it is added that the Ambassador wishes Pennington to sail the next tide after receipt of this letter, and not to forget the Neptune. The Ambassador hopes to see Pennington on Monday night at Dieppe.

July 16. Rochester. 67. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. He is to hasten to Dieppe, with all the ships there, to meet Mons. d'Effiat, and to perform the King's pleasure as signified by Lord Conway.

July 16. [The Duke of Buckingham to the Officers of the Seaports.] Warrant to permit the Marquis d'Effiat to embark 20 horses. [Copy. See Vol. iv., No. 58.]

[July 16?] Nicholas to the Duke of Buckingham. Advises him seriously to consider that there be some safe course taken for the Duke's warrant and discharge respecting the delivery of the ships to France. The security that will be given for the restitution of the ships will be nothing worth, because it can only be enforced by a breach of the peace with France. [Copy. See Vol. iv., No. 58.]

1625. VOL. IV.

Grant in confirmation of a decree of the Commissioners of Sewers for the County of Essex, whereby certain lands were allotted to Cornelius Vermuyden in recompense of his charges for work done in the repair of Dagenham Breach. The late King gave directions that there should be no proceeding against Richard Earl of Clanrickard for recusancy, contrary to which directions he was indicted at the last General Sessions for Kent; it is the King's pleasure that no record be entered of his nonappearance upon such indictment, and that the directions of the late King be duly observed. [Copy.]

VOL. IV.

July 17. 69. John Earl of Bristol to the Duke of Buckingham. Having received so positive an answer from the Duke by letter of May 2, it may seem unmannerliness further to importune, but the Earl is content to incur that censure rather than not do his utmost to let the Duke and the world see with how much earnestness he seeks the Duke's favour. The Earl hopes the Duke will at last afford it him.

July 18. Weymouth and Melcombe Regis. 70. Mayor of Weymouth to the Council. Henry Waltham having been again called upon to deliver up the Spanish ryals, replied, that if the Mayor would come into his house and break open the chest by force, he might, but otherwise, he should not have the same.

[July 18.] 71. Customer and Comptroller of Weymouth to Sec. Conway. That the Spanish money had been put into Henry Waltham's hands with their consent, he being such a merchant as yields to his Majesty 800*l.* or 900*l.* customs per ann. The money is ready to be delivered upon a discharge to Mr. Waltham.

July 18. 72. Sir Wm. Smith to Lord Treasurer Ley. His house is at the King's command, but he thinks it not large enough for the States' Ambassador. He had promised it to the Earl of Antrim, but will obey the King's command. Mr. Barker has a fitter house nearer Windsor.

July 18. 73. Note of all ships stayed at Dover, from the 10th of June to the 18th of July; with account of their lading.

July 18. 74. Another note of ships stayed at Dover for the same period.

July 18. 75. Another similar note.

July 18. London. 76. Henry Viscount Valentia to Sir John Coke, and the other Commissioners of the Navy. Desires shipping and victuals for 100 officers, and artificers, appointed to attend the train of artillery for the present service.

July 18. 77. Capt. Richd. Gyffard to Buckingham. Has received the Duke's commission for the command of the Royal Defence, and is ready to do the best service in his power; but being undone by the Dutch, the Spaniard, and other hard fortunes, his power is not agreeable to his will. Having failed in procuring means upon security, he is constrained to refer himself to his gracious consideration.

July 18. Aboard the Vanguard in Stokes Bay. 78. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Has received his command to go for Dieppe, together with the merchant ships. The merchantmen deny to stir before their captains come. Pennington will go without them if their captains come not that night. He understands it to be his Majesty's pleasure that all the ships should be wholly at the disposing of the French King. It is too difficult a business for him to wade through, therefore he desires his Grace will call him home, and send some other more able for it. He will rather put his life at the King's mercy at home, than go upon these terms. He will take the ship according to the Duke's commands, and await the return of the bearer.

1625. VOL. IV.

July 18. Aboard the Vanguard in Stokes Bay. 79. Capt. John Pennington to Sec. Conway. Will obey the commands he has received to carry over the ships, and then to let the French do what they will with them, hoping that it is the King's pleasure that he should return after his surrender to them. He rather desires to suffer at home than to be employed where he is sure to suffer dishonour.

July 19. Sec. Conway to Capt. John Pennington. Stating the reasons why he cannot be discharged from the service in the ships lent to the French King. It is added—"Herewith a letter from the Duke express in the business." [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 223.]

July 19. The same to the Mayor of Rochester. Calling for information touching a murder done by a Dutchman there. [Minute, ibid.]

July 19. The same to Lord Treasurer Ley. That the monies for extraordinary stages may be furnished, on account of the necessity thereof. [Minute, ibid.]

July 19. Woking. 80. Buckingham to his "servant Nicholas, on board the Vanguard." On receipt of a letter from Capt. Pennington, the Duke sees the disorder which has happened, and is much troubled that the great respect which he desired should be given to D'Effiat's presence, should receive such a traverse. Nicholas is to endeavour to conform the captains and ships to D'Effiat's will. News has been received of peace having been concluded between the French King and those of the religion. It may be that D'Effiat, on hearing the same, will put an end to these questions, "having not the use he expected." Sir Ferd. Gorges is going in person, and is to advise with Nicholas. All contentment possible is to be given to D'Effiat.

July 19. 82. Fair copy of the same.

July 19. The Court at Woking. 83. Sec. Conway to Capt. John Pennington. Sees the perplexity he is in between obedience and desire to do what is honourable. The Duke has employed Mr. Nicholas to advise with him, that this work may be conducted to the satisfaction of the French King, the honour of the Marquis d'Effiat, and yet with equity to his Majesty's subjects. Cannot join with him in seeking his leave to quit that service. The King will pass by any weakness that arises from good intentions.

July 19. 84. Copy of the preceding.

July 19. The Court at Woking. 85. The Duke of Buckingham to the same. Cannot but wonder at the withdrawing of the mariners from their duty and obedience, especially when the Marquis d'Effiat was present. Requires him to carry his ship and sailors to the service of the French King, together with the rest of the ships, according to directions given to Nicholas, who is there that he may witness their behaviour. Marvels that he, a Captain, upon the instant of his obedience required, should ask leave to withdraw.

VOL. IV.

July 19. 86. Hugh Hammersley, Governor, and the Company of the Turkey Merchants, to Sec. Conway. Whensoever his Majesty shall command their attendance, they hope to give satisfaction, as well for the continuing Sir Thos. Roe, as that his Majesty will be pleased to give the Company leave to make choice of a fit person for that employment, to be approved by his Majesty, a liberty they enjoyed under Queen Elizabeth and King James.

July 19. Sec. Conway to the Turkey Company. The King cannot admit them to his presence, but requires them to send their exceptions in writing against Sir Thos. Phillips. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 224.]

July 19. 87. Copy of the same.

July 19. 88. Sir Ferdinando Gorges to the King. Seeing the French Ambassador has prevailed that the ships are again to go to Dieppe, where he promises to give all content, Sir Ferdinando desires that he may have leave to go thither in his own ship, to conclude for what is fit in honour and justice.

July 19. 89. The same to Buckingham. Urges the same request, that he may see the conclusion of the French promises for their satisfaction.

July 19. 90. The Duke of Buckingham to Sir Ferdinando Gorges, in answer to the two preceding letters. The King intends as much equity to his subjects, as he expects obedience from them. Considering the wisdom, moderation, and wise guiding of Sir Ferd., the King is well pleased that he should go in person to Dieppe. [Draft, in the handwriting of Sec. Conway.]

July 19. 91. The Council to the Justices of Middlesex. Inhabitants of Tottenham receive into their houses multitudes of inmates. His Majesty may have to pass along that road, and some of his servants dwell there. Order is to be given to remove new-comers, and prohibit the receiving them in future. [Copy.]

July 20. Woking. Warrant to pay monthly to Sir Henry Vane and Sir Marmaduke Darrell, Cofferers of the King's Household, 1,666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, for the expenses of the Queen's Household. [Ibid., No. 47.]

July 20. Woking. Warrant to pay annually to Sir George Trenchard and Sir William Bamfield, Captains of Sandisford Castle, co. Dorset, 69*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*, for the wages of a porter, a master gunner, and five other gunners, over and above 45*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* for the wages of the Captain and his three servants. [Ibid., No. 48.]

July 20. Woking. Warrant to the Exchequer to give order to the Mint to receive 400,000 ecus, money of France, part of the Queen's portion, which is to be speedily coined and paid into the Exchequer, to await the King's further warrant. [Ibid., No. 49.]

1625. VOL. IV.

July 20. Woking. Warrant to pay to Daniel du Plessis, Bishop of Mende, Chief Almoner to the Queen, 2,000*l.* a year, for charges incident to the Queen's chapel and oratory, and all ecclesiastical persons and servitors belonging to the same. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 50.]

July 20. Woking. Warrant to pay to Sir Oliver Cromwell 300*l.*, impressed upon account for special service. [Ibid., No. 51.]

July 20. Windsor. 92. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sec. Conway. Has received a Privy Seal for payment of 4,878*l.* No money now in the Exchequer. Cannot pay this sum out of the portion money without special directions. Sends back the warrant to be altered.

July 20. 93. Sir Arthur Ingram to the same. His name left out of the Commission for the North. No Secretary since the erection of the Court but has had his place in the Council. Would this had been all. The alum business has given a great wound to his estate. Solicits Conway to move the Duke to give way that his name may be put on the Council.

July 20. Imworth. 94. Thos. Locke to Sir Dudley Carleton. Particulars of management of Sir Dudley's property at Imworth. The King and Queen went yesterday from Windsor, the King to Woking, the Queen to Nonsuch. A few days since there died two of the sickness at Windsor in a house where the Queen's priests were lodged, who were presently sent to one of the towers in Hampton Court. The sickness is very much about Kingston and its neighbourhood. They are in such straits for money at Court as is not to be spoken. Lord Conway promises payment for the troops as soon as possible.

July 20. Weymouth and Melcombe Regis. 95. Mayor of Weymouth to his brother [Barnard Michell]. This morning Price, the Messenger, arrested Henry Waltham near the Customers' House. Waltham had consulted the Customers upon every occasion what answer he should make to the Mayor. Incloses,

VOL. IV.

July 21. Woking. Letters patent to William Beale for the sole making and uttering of a cement and water for preserving ships from hurt by gunpowder and the hulls from barnacles, for the term of 14 years, with a reserved annual rent to the King of 40*s.*, and a proviso that the patentee should not teach the secret to any stranger. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 55.]

July 21. Aboard the Vanguard in Dieppe Road. 97. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. On Monday at 9 a.m. he received Nicholas's letter and the Duke's. He sent for the Masters of the merchant ships and signified the Duke's pleasure. They said they were willing to go for Dieppe, but their company would not. Pennington then sent for the rest of their officers, and charged them in the King's name, but they all denied to go; whereupon, as he could not force them, he had come without them, but not without great trouble from his own people. Had encountered dangerous storms, and "had it been to save the world, could [not] have made greater expedition." Had sent his boat to bring Nicholas aboard.

July 21. Burghley by Stamford. 98. Wm. Earl of Exeter to [Sec. Conway.] Intreats his Majesty's leave to be absent from the Parliament at Oxford on the 1st of August, having given his proxy to the Duke of Buckingham.

July 21. The Court at Woking. 99. The Council to the Mayors of Weymouth, Dartmouth, and Plymouth. Divers ships appointed to serve in the fleet, are sent to those ports to take in part of their provisions. The Mayors are to see them properly and quickly supplied, and that the ships' companies do not loiter on shore after their provisions are taken in. [Copy.]

1625. Vol. IV.

July 22. Dieppe. 100. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. The Ambassador wishes Pennington to come on shore to receive a letter, signifying his Majesty's pleasure what he is to do. Pennington cannot refuse to come to receive his Majesty's pleasure without declining his service.

July 22. 101. The same to the same and to the ship's company of the Vanguard. He demands to know whether they would leave the ship—provision being made, if they would not serve the French King, for their passage to England—or take on board 300 Frenchmen. [Draft.]

July 22. 102. Copy of the preceding, with note of the reply of the company of the Vanguard, July 23; that they would take aboard 150 French without arms, and convey them to some port of England, and there leave the ship to them. A similar note of a further demand made by Nicholas on the 24th, for a specific answer to his former questions.

July 22. 103. Nicholas's minute of Capt. John Pennington's request to have a warrant from the King or the Lord Admiral, to require him and his company to give up the Vanguard to some person by name.

July 22. Dieppe. 104. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. The Ambassador is much troubled with Pennington's refusal to deliver his ship, and will send to the King to complain against him. He wishes Pennington to come to him to-morrow to accommodate the business, or to send him an absolute answer that night. Nicholas cautions Pennington to be well advised therein, considering that this is a business of great consequence to two great Kings, as well as to Pennington himself. In a postscript Nicholas begs Pennington not to go away until they have spoken together.

July 22. Dieppe. 105. The same to Buckingham. Last night Capt. Pennington came alone with the Vanguard. This morning the French Ambassador delivered to him the Duke's and Lord Conway's letters. The Captain considers the warrant not full enough, and craves one from his Majesty or the Duke, to discharge him clearly of his ship, and to require him to deliver her into the hands of such a person by name. He refuses to have any hand in the valuation, and desires to know how his men are to be disposed of. For his excuse he alleges that it is without precedent for a Captain of a King's ship to deliver over the same into the hands of a foreign prince, or meddle with a valuation of her. The Ambassador is much troubled, and will not allow Nicholas to return. The latter begs that some more able person may be sent in his place. A confident report of peace between the French King and Soubise. Nicholas beseeches the Duke, as he desires honour and security, to take good advice, and provide a sufficient warrant for what he does. [Draft.]

July 22. 106. Sir Lewes Lewkenor's bill for coaches, and attendance upon the Duke de Chevreuse, Mons. de Ville aux Clercs, and the Marquis d'Effiat, Ambassadors Extraordinary from France, from June 16 to July 22, 1625, (217*l.*)

July 23. Hanworth. 108. James Earl of Carlisle to Thos. Carey of the King's Bedchamber. The Duke having disposed of the chain of diamonds sent for Boisrobert, the Queen Mother's poet, the King is to be moved to save 200*l.*, out of the 500*l.* assigned for the poet, by sending him a chain of 300*l.* or 300 pieces.

July 23. Plymouth. 109. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. The Lord Treasurer has remitted to the Mayor 9,312*l.* He has paid out 7,400*l.*, and 1,000*l.* is to be employed for necessary clothing. The remainder will not suffice to discharge next week's pay. Dangerous consequences likely to ensue from the poverty of the countryman and the need of the soldier.

July 23. [Dieppe Road.] 110. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. Sends the form of a letter to the King, for him to peruse and show the Ambassador. If they "like of it" he will write it fair, and send a gentleman with it; or the Ambassador may send 100 or 150 mariners aboard to go over with them to any port of England, and there receive the ship if the King pleases. Begs Nicholas to come aboard, for Pennington's people are in a mighty mutiny, and swear they will carry him home by force. He thinks Nicholas's words will do much amongst them.

[Ibid., No. 65.]

July 23. Aldershot. Regrant to James Earl of Annandale of an annuity of 200*l.*, granted by the late King in consideration of a grant made to him by the said King of the park of Plumpton, co. Cumberland, for 40 years, which did not take effect, by reason that the tenants in possession claimed estates in the premises not yet expired. [Ibid., No. 66.]

1625. VOL. IV.

July 23. Aldershot. Commission to the Lord Treasurer, and the Treasurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being, to grant leases of such of the King's lands as are within the survey of the Exchequer. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 67.]

July 23. Woking. 111. Ralph Hopton to Lords ——. Arrived at Deal on Wednesday 20th; necessary to avoid Canterbury for the great infection and the apprehension at Court. The Court removes to-morrow, and draws towards Oxford to the Parliament. Delivered his letters to Lord Conway, who brought him to the Duke, and they both to the King. The States Ambassadors had said that they saw not how the treaty could be concluded this year nor next year without the King of France joined in it.

July 24. Sec. Conway to Lord Treasurer Ley. To send money presently to the Cofferer, for provisions for the King and Queen's Household. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 224.]

July 24. The same to Sir Edward Cecil. Recommending Mr. Glinn for a company. [Minute, ibid.]

July 24. Yarmouth. 112. The Officers of the Customs at Yarmouth to Sir John Suckling, Comptroller of the Household. Desire to be informed whether the orders of the Council for restraint of the exportation of fullers' and other earths include potters' earth.

[July 24?] 113. Petition [of the clothiers of Suffolk] to the Council. Offering suggestions for the preservation of fullers' earth within the kingdom.

July 24. Dieppe. 114. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. The Ambassador had sent his Secretary to receive Pennington's "last answer." Nicholas advised him to take good heed therein, for it was a business of the greatest importance that ever he could meddle in.

July 24. 115. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. Answer to Nicholas's demands. Pennington will receive as many Frenchmen aboard as he conveniently may "without pestering the ship and breeding infection." He cannot deliver up the ship on the Lord Admiral's letter or Lord Conway's warrant, neither, if he would, would the company give way to it. For what Nicholas says to him from the Lord Admiral, unless he shews instructions under his Lordship's hand, Pennington can do nothing.

July 24. Dieppe. 116. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. The Ambassador [Marq. d' Effiat] will stay no longer. Nicholas advises Pennington to give a more full answer what he will do by the bearer, who is the Ambassador's Secretary. A note indorsed of a reply made to a demand for the delivery of the ship. [Draft.]

Juy 24. Aboard the Vanguard. 117. Articles propounded by Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington, soliciting an answer in writing whether he would receive the French soldiers on board or quit the ship.

July 24. 118. Copy of the preceding.

July 25. The same to Lord Treasurer Ley. For a Privy Seal for 300*l.*, gift to a Frenchman, Boisrobert. [Minute, ibid.]

1625. VOL. IV.

July 25. Sec. Conway to the Mayor of Rochester. Renewing the former direction of certifying touching the murder committed by a Dutchman. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 224.]

July 25. [Dieppe.] 119. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. The French Ambassador will not go thence till Thursday, provided Pennington will assure him by writing, that in case he does not receive by that time a command from the King or the Lord Admiral contrary to what he has already received, he will deliver up the ships to his Lordship. [Draft.]

July 25. Aboard the Vanguard. 120. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. Knows not what to write more than he has formerly delivered. Is willing to do anything he may with safety of his life, but for delivery of the ship, without express warrant from the King, his company will not yield to it, nor for taking 400 Frenchmen aboard, which indeed is a riddle to speak of. Has read his letter to the company, which has put them in such a rage and mutiny that they swear they will carry away the ship for the Downs. [Copy.]

July 25. Dieppe. 121. Nicholas to Capt. Pennington. He has prevailed on the Ambassador not to go thence till Thursday next, provided Pennington will assure him that in case he receives not by that time a command from his Sovereign or the Lord Admiral, contrary to what he has already received, he will deliver up his ship, at which Nicholas thinks he need not make any difficulty. If the Ambassador goes away they would be much troubled.

July 25. Dieppe. 122. The same to Buckingham. Reports the proceedings of the day before and that morning, adding, that that afternoon whilst he was waiting on the Ambassador, there came news that the Vanguard was under sail. Going to see, he found it true, which he would have sworn was a thing impossible. The ship left about 4 or 5 o'clock, the weather being tempestuous. The Ambassador very much troubled. He will not stir, nor allow Nicholas to depart, until he receives letters from the Duke. Nicholas begs he may not be again trusted with an employment so much above his abilities. [Draft.]

July 25. Windsor. 123. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sec. Conway. On Friday last he gave Mr. Cofferer's man warrants for 1,400*l.* for the present supply of the Household. Between the 8th and 22nd July the Cofferer has received 4,473*l.* 19*s.* 7½*d.* None of the borrowed money has yet come in. If there be any want, the occasion must be between the Cofferer and the Purveyors.

July 25. Windsor. 124. The same to the same. Has not heard any farther of the Privy Seal for Sir William St. Leger, which he returned to be rectified. Sends a note of other payments, the warrants for which should be in a similar form. Incloses, 124. I. Note of the sums necessary to be provided for ordnance, victualling, and other warlike provisions. Totals, at present 7,984*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, hereafter, 2,355*l.* 10*s.*

1625. VOL. IV.

Count Mansfeldt. They have all promised to make restitution except John Franklin, constable of Marlborough, whom the writers have bound to appear before their Lordships at Oxford. If he escapes without punishment, it will encourage others to buy and sell the King's subjects. Inclose,

125. I. Examinations of Henry Crooke, Eliza Rawlins, and Robert Rawlins, proving payment of 16*s. to John Franklin.*

July 25. 126. Sir Robert Karr, Master of the Privy Purse, to Sec. Conway. There is not so much in the Privy Purse as will give the nurse of Madame Chevreuse and the midwife that which must be done for the King's honour. Of a Privy Seal of 1,500*l.*, he cannot get a penny to this day. For "this Frenchman," if Conway will despatch him, he shall be repaid out of the first that comes in. Is so out of love with his miserable place that he never receives a letter willingly that calls him by his title.

July 25 London. 127. Governor and others of the Turkey Company to the same. The Company is dispersed by reason of the infection. On their return, and when the King shall afford them access to his person, they will give full satisfaction for the continuance of Sir Thomas Roe, or for a free election of his successor. Intreat the despatch of the messenger from Turkey.

July 25. Aldershot. Warrant to pay to Sir Allen Apsley and Sir Sampson Darrell, Surveyors of Marine Victuals, 3,031*l.* 10*s.*, and to Sir William Russell, Treasurer of the Navy, 4,612*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, before the fleet goes forth, and 9,396*l.* at the end of the service, such payments being a surcharge on account of the navy. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 68.]

July 25. Aldershot. Warrant to pay to Henry Wickes, Paymaster of the King's Works, such sums as shall be due to him for provision for the two Houses of Parliament, adjourned in regard of the infection to Oxford, and to be held there on the 1st day of August; also for removing the Exchequer and the records thereof to Richmond; also to pay to the overseers of St. Margaret's, Westminster, 100*l.*, being the King's bounty for the relief of the poor in this time of infection. [Ibid., No. 69.]

July 25. Aldershot. Warrant to Sir Adam Newton to receive from the Lord Treasurer and others, Commissioners for the management of lands which belonged to the King before his accession, the rents and profits of the same, and to apply the amount in payment of the King's debts before his accession. [Ibid., No. 71.]

July 25. Aldershot. Warrant to Sir Robert Naunton, Master of the Court of Wards and Liveries; Sir Benj. Rudyerd, Surveyor; Sir Walter Pye, Attorney; Sir Miles Fleetwood, Receiver General, and to the Auditors General of the said Court, to pay to Sir Adam Newton 3,000*l.* per annum, to be applied in discharge of money taken up at interest for the King's occasions before his accession. [Ibid., No. 72.]

Vol. IV.

July 26. Aldershot. Grant to Sir Henry Mallory, David Ramsey, John Shotbolt, and others, of the mines royal in the Counties of Cambridge, Huntingdon, Northampton, Merioneth, and Pembroke, and of all treasure trove in the co. of Lincoln for 21 years, yielding a tenth to the King. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 73.]

July 26. Windsor. 128. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sec. Conway. Sends a bill by Sir Wm. Courteen for his Majesty's signature, and to pass by immediate warrant. Sir Wm. freely lends his money for supply of the King's instant occasions, and that without interest of the old debt. Wants the Privy Seals relating to the navy and army; also Sir Peter Vanlore's, which is also for borrowing of money.

July 26. Plymouth. 129. Mayor and Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Some of the ships arrived there had been visited with sickness. Sir Francis Stewart and other captains had lodged the sick on the shore under sails. Seek directions what is to be done with them if the ships are to sail as ordered.

July 27. Oxford. 130. Dr. John Prideaux, Vice Chancellor of Oxford, to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain. Sir John Hussey came infected from London and died at Oxford. Dr. Chaloner, being in the same house, has since died. Infection in other parts of Oxford. All Souls' College is shut up.

July 27. Windsor. 131. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sec. Conway. Has received a Privy Seal for payment of 3,000*l.* to Chas. Marcadet. There is not in the Exchequer sufficient to satisfy it. Desires it may be made payable out of the part of the portion to be returned by bills of exchange. They will not be paid for two months, but Marcadet is well content with that payment.

July 27. 132. Capt. John Pennington to the King. By warrant from Lord Conway, he had been directed to give up the command of his ship and the merchants' ships, and also to receive on board so many persons as it pleased the French King to put in the ships. These commands are contradictory. He durst not surrender so great a charge without express order from the King. He had offered to take aboard as many soldiers as he conveniently could, but nothing would satisfy them save the possession of the ship; and because he would not yield, they reviled him as a rebel, and the French Ambassador gave him over to do what he would; whereupon his company weighed anchor and returned to the Downs. They did it without acquainting him; but he knew of it and connived at it, otherwise they should never have done it. Has been offered pensions or present payments, but he had rather live on bread and water than be an actor in this business, wherein he should be a traitor to the King and his country.

July 27. On board the Vanguard in the Downs. 133. The same to Sec. Conway. Has received his warrants, and endeavoured to obey them. Refers him to the Duke of Buckingham for a particular account. Has done his best to give content, but nothing would satisfy the French but the surrender of the ship, for which he conceived he had no warrant; he has therefore returned to the Downs.

1625. Vol. IV.

July 27. Aldershot. Letters patent granting to Edward Knapp the sole making, for 14 years, of an invention how, by axletrees of iron and springs of steel, coaches may be made stronger, be kept with less charge, and be of more ease, with a reserved annual rent to the King of 40*s.* [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 74.]

July 28. Sec. Conway to Sir John Ogle. Recommending Mr. Huncks. Supply of money shall be sent in due time. His continuance wished by all. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 224.]

July 28. Woking. Grant of pardon to Ezekiel Grosse, of Camborne, co. Cornwall, of the fine of 2,000*l.* set upon him by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for adultery with Elizabeth Merifield, and also of an indictment for saying that "The King and the Prince" (i.e. the late King and the present) "are both rank papists; if it were not so, then why should the King send the Prince over into Spain with the arch-papist of England, the Duke of Buckingham?"—with other words of a like kind, for which he had also been informed against in the Star Chamber. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 75.]

July 28. 134. Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain, to Capt. John Pennington. The King is assured that war will be declared against Spain and Milan, and that peace is made with the protestants, he therefore desires Pennington peremptorily to obey his last direction without reply. The contents to be communicated to Sir Ferd. Gorges. [Copy.]

July 28. Richmond. 135. The King to the same. Without difficulty and delay he is to put the King's former command in execution, for consigning the Vanguard into the hands of the Marquis d'Effiat, with all her equipage, artillery, and ammunition. He is also to charge the seven merchant ships to put themselves into the service of the French King, and in case of backwardness is to use force to compel them thereto. [Copy.]

July 28. Richmond. 137. The same to Capt. John Pennington. The King is extremely offended with him for his delay in consigning the Vanguard, and has sent him a strict and express warrant, which, if he desires to make his peace, he must not fail punctually to obey. He and the merchants may do so with better courage, peace being made with those of Rochelle. [This letter is dated "August" instead of "July."]

July 28. Aboard the Neptune. 138. Nicholas to Sir Ferdinando Gorges and the Masters of the Merchantmen. Calling upon them to answer in writing whether they will deliver over their ships in accordance with Lord Conway's letter, and upon the security agreed upon at Rochester. Underwritten is their answer, declining the security of the Ambassadors, and requiring the security of merchants in Paris, to be transferred to London, to be irrevocable, and such as may not be protected by the prerogative or authority of Princes.

1625. Vol. IV.

July 28. Plymouth. 139. Sir John Ogle to [Sec. Conway]. Has lately received a letter from the Duke encouraging him to go on in his charge wherein he therefore thinks to continue. If he could have come off, he would have retired to his books, being much better fitted for that silent society than to converse with the world. Knows that Conway is un seigneur craignant Dieu. Incloses,

139. 1. Letter from himself to the Council, of same date as above, in which he gives account of the present condition of the army, urging especially the need of money.

July 28. Durley. 140. Katharine Duchess of Buckingham to her cousin Mrs. Porter. Refers to Dr. More as to her health. Did not doubt they should be merry again at York House. Bramzill is sold. By living where they were awhile, they should redeem themselves out of debt.

July 28. Richmond. 141. Two inhabitants of Richmond to Lord President Mandeville. His Majesty being at Richmond on that day, the writers complained to the Lord Steward, that citizens of London resorted thither, notwithstanding the proclamation which forbade persons from places infected to come near any of his Majesty's houses. His Majesty's pleasure is that a warrant be issued for compelling such persons to remove.

July 29. Wimbledon. 143. Sir Edw. Cecil to Sec. Conway. Desires to know on what day himself and the Colonels shall attend the Duke at Oxford. Solicits that the troops at Plymouth might not want money, that the despatch of the 2,000 men from the Low Countries should be thought upon, that the press for 3,000 men might be hastened, and also that there might be a press for drums and surgeons. Suggests a weekly report from Plymouth, and that his commission and instructions might be thought upon.

July 29. In Dieppe Road. 144. Masters of the English merchant ships to the Marquis d'Effiat. Before they receive security they will deliver none of their ships. Send the valuation, which they will stand unto. It is as lawful for the owner to set his own price as for the buyer to leave or take. Desire a present answer. [Copy, in the handwriting of Nicholas.]

July 29. 145. Note of books and clothes belonging to Jo. Davis, [a recusant].

July 30. 146. Lord Mayor [John Gore] to the Council. He had used all diligence to prevent the spreading of the infection. Within the walls of London it has not raged as in the skirts of the City. Will persevere in the personal execution of his charge.

July 30. Battersea. 147. Oliver Viscount Grandison to Sec. Conway. A restraint of the House of Commons has been laid upon the Treasurers of the subsidy money, in payment of moneys for the supplies of horse and foot sent into Ireland. If not revoked, those supplies will presently be broken, to the great prejudice of the security of that kingdom.

1625. Vol. IV.

July 30. Rycot. 148. Wm. Earl of Pembroke to the Clerk of the Signet. Warrant intimating the King's pleasure, for the preparation of a bill for payment to Francis du Gerdin, of 1,200*l.* on surrender of a former Privy Seal, and of 9,500*l.* for a fair jewel, set with four great diamonds, delivered to the Duke of Buckingham, provided payment of the latter sum be not made out of the second payment of the Queen's marriage money.

July 30. Plymouth. 149. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. The treasure being exhausted, they urge a speedy supply. They cannot satisfy with words the hungry bellies of the soldiers nor the empty purses of the hosts; nor can they secure the country from damage. Affrightments and daily terrors by reason of the infesting of the coasts by Turkish men-of-war. Alarm for ships returning from Virginia and other places. Stoppage of the coasting trade, and consequent dearth of victuals.

July 31. Sec. Conway to Lord Chief Justice Crewe. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 224.]

On searching her house for armour, there were found various copes, crucifixes, relics, and popish books. [July ?] 158. Robt. Earl of Essex, Sir Edwd. Harwood, Sir John Burgh, and others to the same. Having been asked to consider a scale of payment for officers of the army, they report that the sums mentioned are so small, that they hold no manner of proportion with the pays of other Christian Kings.

[July ?] 159. Note of request by the Duke of Lennox, and the Duchess his mother, that on the next avoidance of the Mastership of Trinity College, Cambridge, whether by the death or removal of Dr. Maw, the King might be moved to confer the same on Dr. Topham, the Duke's tutor.

VOL. V. AUGUST, 1625.

Aug. 1. 1. Estimate of charge for setting forth two of the King's ships and three pinnaces, with 445 men for 3 months (6,541*l.* 12*s.*)

1625. VOL. V.

Aug. 1. 2. Lord Mayor [John Gore] to the Council. Submitting to consideration an order made at the Assizes for Essex, forbidding the resort of carriers and higglers to London. If the City be straitened of victuals, it will not be in the power of the few magistrates that remain to restrain the violence that hunger may enforce. Incloses,

2. 1. Copy of the order alluded to, dated 1625, July 25.

Aug. 1. On board the Great Neptune, in the Road of Dieppe 3. Sir Ferdinando Gorges to Nicholas. Wishes him to give the Ambassador (d'Effiat) to understand that he cannot persuade his people to stay there any longer; the weather being stormy and the road dangerous, they conclude a necessity to return to the coasts of England, where they shall attend his Excellency's farther pleasure. Gorges regrets that he cannot return his respects for the honour the Ambassador did him in the Marquise's coming aboard, and also in his sending "his two young jewels" to Sir Ferdinando the day before.

Aug. 2. 4. Warrant for payment of a Privy Seal for 3,000*l.* to Charles Marcadet, the Queen's Jeweller, out of that part of the portion which is to be remitted by bills of exchange. [Copy.]

Aug. 2. Portsmouth. 5. Owen Jennings [Jenens] to Nicholas. The skipper of the Red Lion, from Dantzick, is very much discontented that he cannot get his freight and permission to depart. Perishable commodities in ships stayed at Portsmouth are wasting. Recommends they should be sold.

Aug. 2. Plymouth. 6. James Bagg to Buckingham. His charge in victualling the fleet compels his stay from Parliament. Divers towns have written to their burgesses of the daily oppression of the Sallee and Turkish pirates. There are 20 sail on the coast, and within six days they have taken two ships' worth 5,000*l.* Hopes some ships will be provided, that it may appear to the House a remedy was ordered ere the complaint was presented. Fears of the inhabitants on the coast. Campaine was at Sallee on June 23. English ships and goods are stayed at Rochelle because they fear the Vanguard and other English ships will come thither. The ships for the expedition are now victualled, but the mariners are out of clothes, which causes sickness, and there is hardly a surgeon aboard. If the land soldiers be not better clothed, sickness and mortality amongst them may be feared.

Aug. 3. On board the Vanguard. 7. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. He has now returned with a sufficient warrant, and is ready both to surrender his ship into the hands of the Ambassador, so soon as he provides barks to carry the crew off, and to cause the rest of the ships to do the like, or sink by their sides.

Aug. 3. Plymouth. 8. Mayor of Plymouth and his brethren to Sec. Conway. The lamentable complaints received from the captives in Sallee to the number of 800, under the barbarous cruelty of the Moors, and the danger of the ships coming from New England and Newfoundland, enforce them to supplicate the Council for speedy redress, or the whole country will have cause to rue it.

1625. Vol. V.

Aug. 3 9. Particular of such provision of victuals as remains on board the Vanguard.

Aug. 3. 10. Copy of the preceding, signed by the Marquis d'Effiat, and attested by Nicholas.

Aug. 3. 12. Copy of the preceding, signed by the Marquis d'Effiat, and attested by Nicholas.

Aug. 4. Sec. Conway to the Turkey Company. His Majesty will forbear pressing them touching an Ambassador to Constance [Constantinople], till the times will permit they may come to his presence ; but did not well relish their presuming on Sir Thomas Roe, or a free election. His Majesty would give the Turkey messenger access if he knew where he had resided, but conceives it will not be pressed. He wonders they should demand of his Majesty a reward from him, the merchants having ever given it. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 225.]

Aug. 4. Woodstock. Proclamation prohibiting the keeping of Bartholomew fair and Sturbridge fair. [Coll. Procs., Car. I., No. 22.]

Aug. 4. 14. State of his Majesty's affairs as declared by Lord Conway and Sir John Coke, by his Majesty's command, at the meeting of the Parliament.

[Aug. 5?] 15. Speech of [Sir Thomas Edmondes, Treasurer of the Household], in the House of Commons, at Oxford, advocating the grant of two subsidies and two fifteenths as a crown to their former gift.

Aug. 5. 16. Contents of Sir Edw. Coke's speech in Parliament at Oxford, in reply to the argument for the grant of a further supply to his Majesty, founded upon his present great necessity. [The paper is dated Aug. 4, but it appears from the Com. Journ. I., 810, that the speech was spoken on Aug. 5.]

Aug. 5. Oxford. 17. Sir Edw. Cecil to Sir John Ogle. Mr. Stephens, the bearer, had been appointed by the Lord General the Duke of Buckingham an ensign in the troops under Sir John Ogle's command at Plymouth.

Aug, 5. On board the Great Neptune, off Beachy. 18. Sir Ferdinando Gorges to Sec. Conway. He propounded terms to the Ambassador for himself and the merchants, which seemed to be approved. In the meantime Capt. Pennington returned with the King's order to put the Vanguard in the hands of the Ambassador, and to cause the merchants to do as much. The Ambassador thought by that opportunity to be master of Gorges's ship in despite of him, and refused to give the required security. Thereupon Gorges set sail for England, giving the Ambassador notice that he would attend his commands when his terms were complied with. If he has omitted anything he was bound to do, he submits his life and goods to be disposed of at the King's pleasure.

1625. VOL. V.

Aug. 5. Aboard the Great Neptune, off Beachy. 19. Sir Ferdinando Gorges to Buckingham. Recapitulates the causes of his refusal to deliver up his ship to the French Ambassador. His whole estate, besides 3,000*l.* he is indebted, was in his ship. He chose rather to submit to the King's pity for his estate and life, than give them to strangers. The King should take the ship into his own possession, and dispose of it to the French. Gorges cannot better dispose of his goods than transfer them to the King's disposal.

Aug. 5. 20. Inventory of the gunner's store of the Vanguard when she was delivered to the French Ambassador.

[Aug. 5?] 21. Remembrance of what was agreed with the Ambassador at Dieppe, respecting the payments for the ships lent to the French.

Aug. 6. Exeter. 23. Sir Richard Hutton, Justice of the Common Pleas, to Lord Keeper Williams. Sends a petition delivered to him by the Grand Jury of Devon. The lamentable outcries of the wives of those who have been taken by the Turks, and the pitiful complaints of others, would move any Christian heart. Letters from the prisoners relate strange and new devised tortures. Fears for the Newfoundland fleet. Incloses,

23. I. Petition of the Grand Jury of Devon to Sir Richard Hutton, praying him to make known to the King or the Council what great inconveniences are likely to befall if speedy course be not taken to suppress the piratical infidels who infest those parts.

Aug. 8. Poole. 24. Mayor of Poole to the Council. The Anne, of Poole, had been captured by the Turkish pirates, 8 or 9 leagues from Plymouth. Unless the Council take it into their consideration, the Newfoundland fleet of 250 sail, and having on board 4 or 5 thousand men, of the Western parts, will be surprised. The Turks threaten that within 2 years they will not leave the King sailors to man his fleet. Incloses,

Aug. 8. London. 29. Nicholas Leatt to Sec. Conway. The Ambassador from Algiers is in no ways satisfied to depart without kissing the King's hand. Leatt thinks also he expects some return present from the King. Wishes he might go away contented. Peace depends much on his report. If the King would give him a ring of 100*l.* or two, it may give him content, and the Turkey Company will not be sparing to gratify him further. His stay here has cost the Company 800*l.*; the ship to carry him is ready and is to depart on Monday next. Possible advantage to the expedition now fitting out of securing good treatment at Algiers.

Aug. 9. Sec. Conway to Sir John Ogle. There is 6,000*l.* coming to him. Some of the Colonels will be speedily with him; the Lord Marshal and the rest will shortly follow. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 225.]

Aug. 9. 30. Sir Francis Nethersole to Sir Dudley Carleton. Proceedings in the Parliament at Oxford. The King's speech; explanations of Sec. Conway and Sir John Coke; objections to supply raised by those who "usually stand stiffest for the country"; reflections against the Duke, and injudicious defence by Mr. Clarke; conference with the Lords; great increase of the plague in London.

Aug. 10. Chatham Dock. 31. Joshua Downing to Nicholas. Recommends George Strange for appointment as Purser of the Charles, and various others fit to be employed when places fall void.

Aug. 10. East Looe. 32. Justices of Cornwall to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Lieut. Entreat that speedy course may be taken to free the coasts of Turkish pirates. The inhabitants of the coast towns are deprived of their fishing, and are like to receive far greater loss on the return of their shipping from Newfoundland.

Aug. 11. Oxford. 33. Sir Francis Nethersole to Sir Dudley Carleton. At the meeting of the House of Commons yesterday morning, the Chancellor of Exchequer delivered a message from the King, that the time for the contemplated expedition would be quickly past, and he therefore prayed us to give a speedy answer, assuring us that if his necessities were supplied, we should have a Winter session for reformation of things complained of. He further desired a speedy answer, and urged that this was his first request. The question of supply was excellently spoken to on both sides. Statement of arguments pro and con. But that which moved most was, that the Duke of Buckingham had said that he had proceeded by the advice of the Council of War, but Sir Robert Mansell avowed the contrary, and undertook to prove that the expedition was not well counselled, nor likely to prosper. The debate having been adjourned was resumed that morning, when great complaint was made of piracies on the Western coasts, which were laid to the fault of the Lord Admiral. The House then proceeded to the "bold avouchment of Sir Robert Mansell," and tomorrow is appointed for him to make good what he has said.

Aug. $\frac{11}{21}$ 34. Note of Faculties granted by Pope Urban VIII. to "Father B. and Father C.," to be exercised within the dominions of the King of Great Britain, for 7 years; with notes of previous similar grants to other persons.

Aug. 12. Plymouth. 35. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. They are not only humble petitioners but importunate solicitors for a second supply of money. The hosts have not been paid these three weeks. The soldiers complain, their diet is impaired, and they are of a dejected spirit; the countryman also complains of the charge and trouble of the soldier, and that although his money is not paid the subsidy is shortly to be collected.

Aug. 12. Plymouth. 36. Mayor and his Brethren of Plymouth to the same. Are enforced to write by the grievous complaints and daily losses which they receive through the Turks, who have taken in one year, besides ships, 1,000 mariners. Looe, in Cornwall, has in the last ten days lost 80 mariners, and within the same time there have been 27 ships and 200 persons taken. General fear for the ships from Virginia and Newfoundland. The pirates are 26 or 27 sail strong. Sir Francis Stewart sent out 5 ships against them, but they are far better sailers than the English ships. Within 3 days the English ships left them and returned to Falmouth.

Aug. 12. Woodstock. Warrant to pay 300*l.* per annum to Ralph Heaton and Matthew Walker, assignees of John Atherton, John Blanch, and John Smith, being rent reserved on a demise to Sir John Bourchier, of certain closes in Skipton, co. 42. I. Declaration made by the House of Commons just previous to the dissolution, of thanks for the King's answer touching religion, and of their determination ever to continue his most loyal and obedient subjects.

Aug. 14. Dover Castle. 44. Tho. Benson to the same. Disputes with Sir John Hippisley; Benson wishes he were removed. Was in hope to have seen Nicholas at Dover on his return from France. Shipwreck on the Goodwin Sands.

Aug. 14. Imworth. 45. Thos. Locke to Sir Dudley Carleton. The sickness so violent in London, that there is no intercourse of boats from Kingston. Those that go to London must not return into the country. At Woodstock, where the Court is, none may go from thence to return, nor any come thither, and for contraveners a gibbet is set up at the Court gate. The Parliament holds at Oxford. Last week's deaths were 4,855; of the plague, 4,133; not counting Westminster and the outlying parishes, where there died above 1,000. The week before there died 4,517, of the plague 3,659, and in Westminster of the plague 97. The priests that were at Hampton Court were suffered to go away and shift for themselves. The King and Queen were at Richmond, at the christening of the Duke of Chevreuse's daughter and the Count de Tillieres' son, the day the King took his journey to Woodstock, which was July 28; on August 1, the Queen followed him. A letter just received from Sir Richard Harrison, that on some discontent order is given to dissolve the Parliament.

1625. VOL. V.

Aug. 16. Ash. 48. John Drake to his cousin Jas. Bagg, [Vice Admiral of Cornwall]. Came last night from Oxford. "We are unhappily dissolved." Doubts not but he has heard how the Duke had been dealt withal by Sir Robert Mansell and others. Hopes he will bear up in despite of all his enemies. Press-warrant granted by Sir Francis Stewart to an improper person. If Sir Francis had heard what was said in Parliament, he would have had more care to whom he granted his commission. Hopes Sir Francis has gone against the Turks, for so the Duke promised. He also promised to see the writer's house as he came down. Wishes to be apprised by a messenger as soon as the time of his coming is known.

Aug. 16. 49. Sir Francis Stewart to Buckingham. He replies to complaints of the Western gentlemen of his negligence in securing the coast. Having "run up" the Channel, and met many ships who assured him the coast was clear, he returned to Plymouth to victual. On the first rumour of the appearance of the Turks, he sent several ships to sea, who gave chase to the Turks, but were beaten back by stress of weather. Other ships ready to set to sea with the first fair wind. In lieu of these complaints to Parliament, he would have petitioned for an act to have fair wind. The Lion is leaky, and the men are fallen suddenly sick for want of clothes and of vinegar to wash between decks. As long as the Turks are supplied with necessaries by the Flemish freebooters, and the Newfoundland fleet will not arm themselves for their defence, these picaroons will lie hankering upon the coast, unless it be resolved to sack Sallee, which some report easy to be performed. The unfriendly conduct of Mons. de Soubise towards the English. Incloses,

49. I. Report of Mervin Burley, Capt. of the Mary Constance, which put to sea after the Turks, but was driven back by stress of weather.

Aug. 18. [Oxford.] 52. Dr. Jo. Weston to Sir Thos. Edmondes, Treasurer of the Household. He sees not wherein persons or learning might receive loss or hindrance if the term were kept in Oxford.

Aug. 18. 53. Petition of Samuel Pauson, Theophilus Wright, Archibald Niccols, and others, to Buckingham; having sustained great losses from the Dunkirkers, they obtained letters of reprisal, and seized a Scottish ship with Dunkirk goods bound for Spain; proceeding to unlade her, they were stopped by a countermand from the Duke. They pray that they may have their legal and just trial in the Court of Admiralty. Goods stayed at Dover are sent away colourably to Calais by Hugessen, the prime factor for the Dunkirkers, as the petitioners undertake to prove.

[Aug. 18 ?] 54. [The same to Sec. Conway.] Similar appeal to him. The former stay pretended by Sir John Hippisley is not the fact. He and Hugessen pervert the stay of goods at Dover to their private ends.

Aug. 18. Bristol. 55. Mayor and Aldermen of Bristol to the Council. Three Turkish pirates have surprised and taken the Island of Lundy, with the inhabitants. They also have taken divers people about Padstow, and have threatened to burn Ilfracombe. Trade with Ireland endangered. The Newfoundland fleet daily expected.

Aug. 20. 56. Petition of Jacob Corneleson to Buckingham. Went pilot in a ship of Denmark to Spain. Being surprised by the Turks, the crew abandoned the ship, leaving him alone. The Turks having captured the Danish ship, transferred themselves to it, putting the petitioner and eight others of their slaves on board their former ship, which the petitioner thereupon brought into the Isle of Wight. Prays that he may have the ship for his pains, being an old Dutch ship of small value.

Aug. 20. The Tower. 57. Sir Allen Apsley to the same. Has supplied the place of such provisions as have fallen out amiss. Has to pay, mostly at Plymouth, 3,500*l*. Prays an imprest to that amount.

Aug. 21. On board the Lion. 58. Sir Francis Stewart to the same. There had been brought unto him a ship suspected, under circumstances which are stated, to be a Dunkirker. Had nailed down her hatches, and put men on board, until the Duke's pleasure be known. Had 8 ships plying between Ushant and Cape Clear, and 4 between Plymouth and Sallee.

Aug. 21. Freshwater. 59. George Warburton to Mr. Harris or Mr. Glover, or any of his Majesty's Gentlemen Ushers. A Scottish gentleman has been set on shore at Freshwater. He names himself "Sir David Barkley," and says that he has been employed in Spain. Being extremely sea-sick, he wished to be set ashore, that he might be refreshed before he should repair to the King. The writer wishes to know if this man be what he pretends.

Aug. 21. [Bramshill.] 60. Sir Edw. Zouch to Sec. Conway. Lord Zouch died on Thursday last [18th inst.] Had left his lands to the writer, and appointed him executor. Aug. 22. 61. Sir John Leigh to the same. The writer's son sealed a presentation of Shorwell to Geo. Warburton, but looking with a more curious eye into his conversation and carriage, the writer saw cause to revoke his son's act, and to present another person. Prays Lord Conway to write to the Bishop of Winchester against Mr. Warburton.

Aug. 23. Beaulieu. 62. The King to Chas. Earl of Nottingham and John Earl of Holderness, Lord Lieutenants of Surrey. By letters of May 5, order was given for the levy of 10,000 land soldiers, of which number some are dead, some have escaped, and many are discharged for insufficiency. To supply these deficiencies, 2,000 men are now to be levied. They are required to give order for the levy of 150 in Surrey. [Indorsed, "Letters from the King for levies; not sent."]

Aug. 23. Beaulieu. 63. The same to Wm. Earl of Salisbury. Similar letter for the levy of 150 men in co. Hertford.

Aug. 23. Beaulieu. 64. The same to Hen. Earl of Huntingdon. Similar letter for the levy of 100 men in co. Leicester.

Aug. 23. Freshwater. 67. Sir Edw. Denys to Sec. Conway. The Scottish gentleman is either weak indeed, or so pretending. Sir Edw. had taken order for his passage on the morrow at sun-rising, and entreated Mr. Urry to conduct him to Lord Conway at Hampton. Sends a letter which the Scottish gentleman had written to Sir James Fullerton.

Aug. 23. Freshwater. 68. George Warburton to the same. Explains his conduct in reference to the Scottish gentleman, who says that he received his commission from the late King the day before he died, in the presence of Lord Kelley.

Aug. 23. Plymouth. 70. Sir John Ogle to the same. The 6,000*l.* negotiated by Mr. Burlamachi is all due to the troops. The number of officers is now so great that the weekly charge will be much increased. Only 1,200*l.* arrived in specie. Has seen Col. Bruce and his commission, in which Sir John is styled Col. General. Dares not take such dignity upon him without warrant, and desires not to do so unless the Duke goes in person. 700 men deficient to make up 8,000. Ships come in apace. His Excellency [Sir Ed. Cecil] or the Duke is expected at Plymouth. The troops are no way qualified to receive so great a General.

Aug. 23. Southampton. 71. The Council to Buckingham, Lord Lieut. of Bucks. Giving him special directions to be observed in the choice of 150 men to be levied in his county, and to be ready at Plymouth on September 12.

Recommends Edmund Button, his Lieutenant, and John Pett, son of Phineas Pett, to command pinnaces. Solicits for Thos. Nelmes to be master of the Garland. Aug. 24. Freshwater. 76. Sir David Barclay to Sir James Fullerton, "Groom of the Stool" to the King. To save his life he had been put ashore in the Isle of Wight, where he is well entertained, only the danger of the time makes the country fearful to admit him into any house. In Spain he had seen the Duke d'Olivarez, who had told him that the insolency of England had so tempted Spain that they behoved to be revenged, and that they were about to make descent upon Ireland, which was to be aided by a course which was being taken at Dunkirk. Sir James McConnell much laboured with to make a disturbance in the Isles of Scotland. One Colvill, son to old Capt. Colvill, was sent from Brussels into Ireland to survey Derry, which is the first thing they aim at. Rumour at Madrid on the 20th July that our King was killed.

Aug. 25. Tottenham. 77. Sir John Coke to Buckingham. Had sent carpenters to repair the Lion. Want of particularity in Sir Francis Stewart's complaints. It was not intended to clothe the mariners in harbour to make them handsome to run away. His Grace should give direction to survey the victuals. Has pressed the Lieutenant [Sir Allen Apsley] to go to Plymouth, and to send a Deputy along with the fleet, as was done in former voyages. Carriages ordered for the three forts in the Downs. Mr. Evelyn to proceed in making powder in as great quantities as he can. Danger lest Harwich should be surprised. Its present condition and importance.

Aug. 25. Aboard his Majesty's ship Phœnix, in King Road, near Bristol. 78. Chas. Harris to Nicholas. Campaine departed from Broadhaven about June 1, but whither he is gone no man certainly knows. The writer's ship's company paid on the 16th, being a whole year behind, and now he is ready with the first wind. Has sold his prize but given days of payment. The surprise of Lundy by the Turks most untrue.

81. I. Examination of Nicholas Cullen. The Turks took out of the church of "Munnigeesa" in Mounts' Bay, about 60 men, women, and children, and carried them away captives. They continued at Lundy a fortnight. He saw the Turkish ship lying in the road of Lundy.

Aug. 26. Tottenham. 85. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. Suggests that until Harwich be in some sort fortified, some commander be sent thither to have the trained soldiers in readiness against sudden attempts. The King is in debt to Mr. Evelyn for gunpowder 2,550*l.*; and the Treasurer answers that there are no monies for him. His estate will not afford to deliver any more. Mills of the East India Company, set up in the skirts of Windsor forest, stopped by command, because the deer receive prejudice. This order should be inquired into.

Ships and officers come down daily; of the latter more store than provisions for them. Incloses,

88. I. Note of Captains omitted in list sent by the Lord Marshal.

Aug. 27. Southampton. 89. Thos. Locke to Sir Dudley Carleton. Sec. Morton arrived at Dover the 21st, and on the 24th came hither, making no stay by the way, not even to see his lady. The King and the Treasurer promised Carleton payment of the 1,850*l.* now due to him. Burlamachi sends letters from his house at Putney every week. Few adventure into London. Last week's bill of mortality was above 5,000, and this week's above 4,000: when the fuel lessens, the fire cannot be so great, but the violence of the sickness is not abated. The Lords are about to send to the Mayor, that the infected shall be sent out of the City to tents and cabins in the fields. No likelihood that the King will come near London this winter. When he goes hence, it will be to Salisbury. No man comes into a town without a ticket, yet there are few places free. Only one house infected in that town, but one died that day without the town, in the fields. He came from London. He had good store of money about him, which was taken before he was cold. Levy of 2,000 men to make the number at Plymouth up to 12,000.

If necessary, to call in the out-guard of Dover Castle, to stay all ships and goods belonging to Spain, and to see that Dunkirkers' goods are not transported to Calais. To consider whether vessels laden with stones might not be sunk in Dunkirk harbour, or whether some stratagem might not be used to fire the ships there. To order Jas. and Cornelius Hugessen to appear forthwith before the Duke to answer charges brought against them. [Copy. See Vol. I., No. 48.]

Aug. 27. 90. The Mayor and Commonalty of Bristol to the Lord Admiral. Aug. 28. Tottenham. 91. Sir John Coke to Buckingham. The ships to guard the Narrow Seas cannot be ready till the end of next week. In the meantime a warrant might be sent to Sir John Hippisley to stay in the Downs all ships which carry above 10 pieces of ordnance, to make head there as occasion shall require.

Aug. 29. Stanford Le Hope. 98. Wm. Towerson to the Council. It will be needless to change the market of cloth. 107. 1. Capt. Wm. Courteney to Sec. Conway. He delivered the 2,000 men received at Hull to Ambassador Carleton in Holland, who directed him to take them to Plymouth, which he has done. Solicits further directions. 1625, Aug. 31.

Aug. 31. Deptford. 108. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. Mr. Fenn comes to solicit Privy Seals for the charge of the second fleet. The writer urges his long suit about the reversion of Mr. Fleming's place. Sir John Coke's month of attendance as a Master of Requests will commence on the morrow.

Aug. 31. Dover Castle. 109. Sir John Hippisley to the same. Has sent the two Hugessens. James is the man whose credit has been used in setting out the four ships, for Sir John has neither money nor means. The Dunkirk and Frenchman are both forward. The pinnace is victualled for 6 months. Mr. Jacob, of London, has three chests of silver in the Castle, his own goods; he will carry it to the Mint, if Sir John may deliver it to him. Mr. Griffith's pay should be stopped, for he does not give his attendance. Wines stayed ought to be sold or the new vintage will be here.

Aug. 31. 110. The Council to Buckingham, Lord Admiral. No ship coming into any of the King's roads or harbours between this and the going out of the fleet should be suffered to depart. The Duke is required to give order for the same. Also to sell perishable goods stayed at Dover, first having them appraised.

[Aug. ?] 118. Petition of the Mayor and Burgesses of Portsmouth to the King. The town is grown into great decay for want of trade; they pray for the renewal of their Charter, that all tobacco may be unladen there, and all ships for New England be set forth from their port.

[Aug. ?] 119. Petition of John Eliott to the Council. In addition to previous salutary directions for preventing the increase of the plague, the petitioner prays that order may be taken to prevent persons who live in infected places from coming forth into the city and selling fruit. As the greatest number of Justices have fled into the country, and the Lord Mayor's authority does not extend to the suburbs, the petitioner prays that he may have power to seize upon the articles complained of.

[Aug. ?] 120. Estimates of victuals for 2,000 men for 84 days at 6*d.* and 7*d.* per diem; with account of the articles and quantities.

2. 1. Statement of the force requisite for effecting the several designs alluded to.

Sept 1. Plymouth. 3. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. The poor countryman is no longer able to entertain the soldier, and in some places has thrust him out of doors, whilst the soldier has taken away the countryman's goods, robbed on the highway, carried away sheep before the owner's face, and dressed them in the open view of the world, saying, he must have the oxen rather than famish. Burlamachi reports that 6,000*l.*, is coming, but that will not clear the score already due. The Council are pathetically appealed to for immediate help.

Sept. 1. Holbury. 4. Andrew Pitcairn to Sec. Conway. It is the King's pleasure that he should signify to the Master of the Wards that Mr. Hay should have his demand.

Sept. 3. London. 11. Nicholas Leatt to Thos. Meautys, Clerk of the Council. Has received his letter with the order of the Council for the attendance of some of the Levant Company at Southampton to answer a complaint of that town. None of the company are in London, and if they were, the King's proclamation forbids them to go to the Court. As much has been yielded to the Corporation of Southampton as the statute gave them. Prays that the matter may be deferred until the contagion be overpast. Sir Thos. Roe writes from Constantinople that a gentleman was daily expected from Naples to make peace between the Turks and Spain.

Sept. 3. 12. Sir Harbottle Grimstone and Wm. Smyth to Sec. Morton. They had drawn down some of the Trained Bands to Harwich, but there were so great decays in the fortifications, and such want of ordnance, that it would be impossible to impeach a resolute enemy without a supply of ships and money.

Sept. 3. Archcliff Bulwark, Dover. 13. Jas. Barker to Buckingham. 200*l.* was granted by the Council of War to repair Archcliff bulwark at Dover, but the Commissioners can receive no money. No reparations since Queen Elizabeth's time. Eleven pieces of ordnance, but no platforms, and only six men. An enemy taking this bulwark would command the pier, the shipping, and the town.

[Sept. 3 ?] 14. Petition of the same to the Council. He states the same facts; and that the bulwark is within 4 hours' sail of Calais, and 6 of Dunkirk. Prays there may be present order for its repair.

Sept. 3. 15. Estimate of the charge for setting forth nine merchant ships, to be employed on the Narrow Seas for 3 months, with 760 men; (7,111*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.*)

The County of Cambridge more ready to perform commandments for service.

Had captured two small ships, Hollanders, as they term themselves, but probably Turkish pirates. Describes what had been found in them; various flags, powder and fire-arms, butter and cheese for 18 months, with spells to conjure all the devils in air, earth, and water. Capt. Vaughan ordered to bring the ships he has taken to Plymouth. Bennett, of London, lately taken, has a protection from the pirate Campaine, addressed to the picaroons of Sallee. Certificate to be returned from every ship of all their wants and defects. Incloses,

19. II. Marks and numbers of goods aboard the St. John [James?].

Sept. 6. Plymouth. 20. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. Sir Wm. St. Leger had shown him a commission from the Duke, with title and style too far above him. Intreats Lord Conway to fashion his retreat as he holds most convenient, and to interpose for him with the Duke. The Lord Marshal's commission was read yesterday. No express charge for delivering the troops up to him. Beseeches a quick despatch.

Sept. 6. Plymouth. 23. Sir Edward Cecil to Buckingham. Will send a certificate of the wants of the fleet. Could well employ 3,000 more men; the army wastes daily; wishes for a press for 500 men or thereabout. Beseeches that they may not want money; present consequences of its want. The victuallers speak of three weeks before the beer will be ready. Now is a very convenient time for Privy Seals; requests that his brother Cooke's 1,000*l.* may be the first accepted.

Sept. 7. Plymouth. 24. Sir John Ogle to the Council. Infirmity of body and occasions of business have prevented his viewing the town of Fowey as they had directed. Intreats them to commiserate a poor gentleman afflicted both in mind and body, and to free him from this and all similar employments.

VOL. VI.

Sept. 7. Tottenham. 25. Sir John Coke to Sec. Conway. The interruption of the manufacture of gunpowder by the East India Company proceeded from Sir Arthur Mainwaring. Wishes Conway to inform the King how much the interest of his service is of more consequence than private profit or pleasure; also to procure a warrant for the resumption of the manufacture. Incloses,

25. 1. Sir Maurice Abbot, Governor of the East India Company, to Sir John Coke. One of Sir Arthur Mainwaring's officers forbade the making of powder and the preparing of any works for the same. 1625, Sept. 6.

Sept. 8. Fulham. 30. Thos. Lord Cromwell to Buckingham. Was making himself ready to attend the Duke's commands. Hoped to find himself appointed to a ship able to play her part with the best and proudest enemy that dare look danger in the face. A noble gentleman appointed to the regiment that was intended for the Earl of Essex. Rumour that his Grace has resigned the Mastership of the Horse, which makes the world suspect that this prime feather being lost the rest will follow. Wagers offered that a Parliament will shortly be, which, when it comes, will much discontent the Duke. It is said that none know anything but the Duke, and that not letting others share the burden will ruin him. Not one grave man known to have the Duke's ear except Lord Conway. If the Duke goes not with the fleet, he will suffer in his reputation. Hopes he shall not suffer in the Duke's favour by letting him know the talk of the wicked world.

[Sept. 8.] 31. Petition of Morgan Coldham to the Mayor of Norwich. Coming from Count Mansfeldt with letters to Colonel Cecil and the Council, he had been arrested by Edmond Gill, to whom he did not owe a penny. Prays that he may be permitted to deliver his letters.

Sept. 8. Southampton. 33. Thos. Locke to Sir Dudley Carleton. Had formerly advertised Sir Dudley of the indisposition of Sec. Morton. If any credit might have been given to the physicians, especially Dr. Poe, there was no danger of death in him. On Sunday last Locke was sent post to "my lady," then at Wimbledon, that she might come, if she thought good. On Tuesday she set forward. By the way they met Mr. Mason, who brought great comfort. When they were within 8 or 9 miles of Southampton they met the news of the Secretary's death, which took place about 7 o'clock on Tuesday the 6th. This day the corpse is to be interred, which will not be done sine lachrymis.

Sept. 8. Southampton. 34. The same to the same. The voice goes upon Sir John Coke to be Secretary, and upon one whose name Locke does not know, who has dependence upon the Duke, to be Master of Requests. The King goes towards Plymouth on Monday. There is such want of money that the officers have not enough to pay for his Majesty's provision on his journey.

Sept. 8. [South] Hampton. 35. Sir George Goring to the same. The Duke will ere long make it appear in what consideration he holds Sir Dudley. His Grace was never in better estate for will or power than at this present. Sec. Morton departed last Tuesday night; Sir John Coke, his successor, and Mr. Aylesbury, Sir John's as Master of Requests. Sir Dudley's friends forgot him not, but there was a double former engagement. The league with the States well concluded. Sir Robert Killigrew is to succeed Sir Dudley, whose promotion has been interfered with by his dependance having been fixed on persons averse to the Duke and his undertakings, but this is all over. The blessed Queen [of Bohemia] is most actively careful for him. The fleet is ready, and the King is going to Plymouth to see it set forth. The Council sits close; private distempers there are, but they rather swell inwardly than hurt where they intend. The papists begin to think there is no more jesting; they, underhand, offered 300,000*l*. to regain the peace they enjoyed. Mons. Blainville, Ambassador Extraordinary from France, is hourly expected on their behalf. The Queen has been strongly assailed for their protection by her ecclesiastics, who seemed temperate Catholics but now run the old course, participating more in the Court than the Church of Rome. The Queen begins to find that it is a gentle way, not frowns, that can prevail with a great King and prudent husband. There have been some small disgusts in that Court, but now they are so well repaired as it were a sin to commemorate them.

Sept. 8. Plymouth. 36. Sir Edward Cecil to Sec. Conway. Fears they will have to be there more than a month, for the ships are backward. Explains the course he has adopted in the appointment of officers to their charges. If his Majesty comes before 10 days, shall not be ready to show them anything worthy their sight. An army is no nimble body, and he found not a soldier armed. The troops out of the Low

Countries are deficient 500. Great want of clothes. Commissioners who served his Majesty with rogues ought to be punished. Is going to a Council to set out ships against the 18 Dunkirkers.

Sept. 8. Plymouth. 37. Sir Wm. St. Leger to Sec. Conway. The army in a miserable condition for want of clothes; there are many that have not anything wherewithal to cover their nakedness. Sir John Ogle is in much worse state of body, altogether disabled. Suggests to offer that place to Lord Essex again, who will give much lustre to the action; if that be not thought fit, he suggests Sir Ferd. Gorges with much commendation; and if neither of these, Capt. Courteney.

Sept. 9. Southampton. Sec. Conway to Sir John Ogle. Assuring him of readiness to assist him if he will retire. His entertainments continue still. Directions sent to the Lord Marshal for issuing the monies, which is a discharge for him. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 228.]

Sept. 9. Harwich. 38. Robt. Earl of Sussex to the Council. 3,000 men of the Trained Bands of Essex had been conducted to Harwich. That town unprovided with ammunition. The Captains were at the expense of bringing down the men; they now beg leave to depart, being noways able to serve the King on their own charges.

Sept. 9. Plymouth. 39. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. Being required by Sir Wm. St. Leger to signify his purpose of withdrawing, he thought it best to do so to the great General himself, Incloses a letter to the Duke to that effect. All the Captains (Capt. Anth. Leigh excepted) had been re-enlisted by the Lord Marshal.

Sept. 9. Southampton. 40. Duke of Buckingham [to Theophilus Lord Walden] his Vice-Admiral of the Counties of Dorset, Northumberland, Cumberland, and the North Parts. Instructions with respect to all passages, seisures, forfeitures, or other droits, happening in his Vice-Admiralty.

Sept. 9. Harwich. 41. Sir Francis Barrington to Sec. Conway. A rumour in the county of great concourse of people to the papists' houses, and of their preparations. Recusants should be disarmed. Incloses,

41. I. Sir Edw. Altham to Sir Francis Barrington, with examinations of Andrew Benton and Anthony Pennington, as to words uttered by Wm. Burling in derogation of the proclamation against Jesuits. 1625, Sept. 7. [Copy.]

Sept. 9. Sittingbourne. 42. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. On Wednesday the Admiral of Dunkirk and one other ship came out. They have not men to set out all their fleet. Their mariners mutinied for want of pay. The flat-bottomed boats are all tallowed and made fit. Death of Sir Richd. Bingley. Is it fit that the light at Dungeness should be continued?

Sept. 9. 43. Estimate of charge for setting forth the Nonsuch with 200 men for 3 months, and surcharge of 9 merchants' ships, all to be employed in the Narrow Seas (4,103*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*)

VOL. VI.

Sept. 10. Southampton. Sec. Conway to Thomas Lucas. Recommending Mr. Killigrew in his affections to his daughter. [*Minute, Conway's Letter Book., p.*228.]

Sept. 10. Harwich. 44. Robt. Earl of Warwick to Sec Conway. On arrival at Harwich he found there 3,000 foot and 100 horse. He communicated to the Earl of Sussex the King's order for a commission of joint-lieutenancy, which was received by the Earl with expressions of discontent. Is sending into the Low Countries for engineers, serjeants, and experienced officers. The command of the 3,000 men divided between the two Earls and Sir Thomas Meautys. Ships should be stationed at the mouth of the harbour. The enemy's strength lies in his frigates. He will probably land at Landguard Point and march to Ipswich. Had sent to the Dep. Lieuts. of Suffolk to draw down 1,000 men to Landguard. Letters should be written to the Lord Lieut. of Suffolk and the town of Ipswich. Has borrowed six pieces of ordnance out of a ship of London. Of all their wants, the greatest is that of money. The adjacent shires should be called in to make contribution for the public defence. The recusants should be disarmed. Incloses, 44. I. Information of a meeting held by night at the house of Mr. Benefield, a recusant, at Redlingfield, in Suffolk. 1625, Sept. 8.

Sept. 10. 45. Petition of parishes of St. John and St. Peter in the Isle of Thanet to Buckingham; they pray that the sconce of fortification erected there in the time of Queen Elizabeth, but then much ruinated, may be repaired.

Sept. 10. Appleby Castle. 46. Henry Lord Clifford to Sec. Conway. In Northumberland the papists are so powerful, and are so adhered to by the thieves, that his Majesty cannot find one man in ten to do him service. Such a faction among the gentlemen, that if those that are firm in religion be not encouraged, his Majesty's best servants will come to the worse. Newcastle so infected with plague, so ill-fortified, and so ill-neighboured, that 500 men would ransack it. Plague in Lord Will. Howard's house. Sir Fran. Howard's lady took the infection from a new gown she had from London, so as she died the same day she took it. They are all dispersed most miserably with the greatest terror in the world. Incloses,

46. I. Henry Lord Clifford to the Council. Had summoned the gentlemen of Northumberland to advise what might be done for better strengthening the coast. Hitherto these Northern parts have neither been charged with arms, nor ever used to training, so that they are altogether unfurnished and inexperienced. Upon information of the country's poverty, the Council have on former occasions not insisted upon these things. They are now less able than before, but it were good if they were brought to the same condition as the other counties, though in less number, especially at first. 1625, Sept. 10.

Sept. 12. Southampton. 48. Sec. Conway to ——. Advising him how "his Lordship with the rest that should give present answer" to a letter from the Earl of Sussex should reply. [The Earl's letter alluded to was probably a complaint to the Council of the junction with him of the Earl of Warwick in the Lord Lieutenancy of Essex. The present letter is dated by mistake "1626" instead of "1625." The date looks as if it may have been tampered with.]

Sept 12. Southampton. The same to Lord Treasurer Ley. To give order for a Privy Seal for 4,000*l.* to the Duke of Buckingham, for the loss he sustains upon a grant of fines on the natives residing upon undertakers' lands in Ulster, for redeeming whereof they made a composition, which is taken to his Majesty's use. 1625.

Sept. 13. Shaftesbury. Sec. Conway to Robert Earl of Sussex. The joining the Earl of Warwick in commission with him was not intended as any dishonour to him, but to add all necessary assistance in this dangerous time, which being passed over, his Majesty will turn all things again into their proper channel; in the meantime, it is expected that they join together for the public service. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 229.]

Sept. 13. Shaftesbury. The same to Thos. Earl of Suffolk. To draw down 1,000 men to Landguard; and to cause Suffolk and Cambridge to contribute towards the great charge the county of Essex is at. [Minute, ibid.]

Sept. 13. Plymouth. 54. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. Has withdrawn to a friend's house, preparatory to his journey towards London. Solicits his wonted favour for some allowance after the arrival of the Lord Marshal.

Sept. 13. Lincoln. 55. Francis Earl of Rutland to the Council. Had caused the directions of his Majesty's letters to be put in execution. The chief want for the present is the great scarcity of powder. Incloses, 55. I. List of officers appointed for the militia, co. Lincoln.

Sept. 13. Woodstock. 56. Mayor and Justices of New Woodstock to the same. James Hall had said that the King was gone to Scotland, and that there was a new King proclaimed there, whereupon the writers had committed him to custody.

Sept. 13. Southampton. 57. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sec. Conway. Sends information forwarded by command of the Earl of Sussex, that order may be taken for prevention of future danger. Incloses,

57. I. Relation of Edw. Eltonhed of a meeting of recusants at the house of one Cage or Gage in Suffolk.

Meautys stayed at Harwich for the King's service.

Sept. 14. 61. Marks of goods taken out of the St. James, of Calais, by order of Sir Francis Stewart and Sir James Bagg.

1625. VOL. VI.

The money from Burlamachi was on its way to Plymouth. It was expected at Southampton that afternoon, but being all in silver it would be the slower in arriving by cart.

Sept. 14. Dover Castle. 63. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. There are 19 ships under the fort at Dunkirk. He has spoken to persons who will undertake to burn them if well paid and good provision made. Six great old ships will be needed. Eight great ships more at Dunkirk are almost built.

Sept. 15. Parham. 64. Justices of Sussex to the Council. On the 13th inst. 14 seafaring men were set on shore at Kingston in Sussex. They say they are "Portingales," and were taken on a voyage to Brazil by a ship of Rotterdam. Ten more of them were put into a ship bound for Bristol. The captain and his boy are carried away with the ship and goods. The writers desire instructions how to deal with these men who have neither money nor weapons.

Sept. 15. Pembroke. 65. Wm. Earl of Northampton to Sec. Conway. The Trained Bands will be together on the 17th inst. The letters of the Council did not mention any other county than Pembroke, but as there are only 600 trained men within that county, and they mentioned 2,000, he should draw together the Trained Bands of Cardigan and Carmarthen. Out of duty to his Majesty he had come thither personally, fearing the service would not have gone so well without him, although his skill in martial business is but small. Sends him what they conceive of Milford Haven. Incloses,

65. 1. Minute description of Milford Haven, prepared by Sir James Perrott.

Sept. 16. Dover. 66. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Sent a ship for the Ambassador, but it had returned without him. Four large ships had arrived from the East Indies; one of 800 tons wrecked near Dover Castle. Desires instructions whether to stay them or not. Had stayed other ships bound for London. A ship brought in laden for Spain. The Dunkirkers had made a restraint, so that he could not send any certain news.

Sept. 16. 67. Narrative containing the instructions and proceedings of Sir Samuel Argoll, Admiral of 24 English and 4 Dutch ships despatched from Plymouth on the 6th Sept. in search of a fleet of 18 Dunkirkers, supposed to be sailing along the French coast towards Spain. [Sept. 16?] 68. Sir William Andrewes to Sec. Conway. One Emerson having spoken foul seditious matter touching a great nobleman, Sir William had committed him to gaol, and sent the examinations for consideration. Incloses, 68. I. *Information of John Marshall. 68. II. Examination of William Emerson. Confesses the words, being far gone in drink. 1625, Sept. 16.

[Sept. 17?] 69. Part of a letter intended to be addressed by the King to the Council, prescribing the course they were to take in issuing Privy Seals for the contemplated loan. It would seem that this letter was not adopted; the letter following was substituted in its place. [Draft in the hand-writing of Attorney General Heath.]

Sept. 17. Plymouth. 70. The King to the Council. Having resolved to borrow money upon Privy Seals, he had directed the Lord Lieuts. to inform themselves of the number of persons of ability to lend, and to certify the same to the Council; which certificates the Council are to subscribe and send to the Earl of Worcester, Keeper of the Privy Seal, as his warrant to direct forth so many Privy Seals accordingly.

Sept. 17. 71. Petition of Peter Bellingham to Buckingham. Served Queen Elizabeth and his present Majesty as "boteson" for 47 years, and now in his old age has lost all he had in the Speedwell. Prays that he may have the first place of a "boteson" that falleth. [The words of this petition indicate that it was prepared for presentation during the reign of King James. The date under which it is placed is that on which it is endorsed as having been received.]

Sept. 17. 72. Marks on eight barrels of cochineal taken out of the St. Peter, of Havre de Grace, by Abraham Jennings.

Sept. 17. 73. Note of 21 bags of money also taken out of the same ship by the same person.

[Sept. 17?] 75. Another account of the same goods.

Sept. 18. Harwich. 76. Robert Earl of Warwick to the Council. The County of Essex, having already been charged with between four and five thousand pounds for maintenance of the troops at Harwich, has given notice that they are resolved to refuse any further payment of such an excessive and unprecedented charge. The Council are earnestly requested to give the necessary directions. Warwick reiterates his suggestion of ships being sent to guard the coast. Harwich noways able to disburse money towards the intended fortifications. Complaint is made of Alderman Whitmore, who bought the manor from the late King, for having allowed the fortifications to go to decay. Landguard and the island of Mersey both necessary to be fortified.

Sept. 18. Harwich. 77. Dep. Lieuts. of Essex to the Council. The Council not having made mention of any course to be taken for payment of the soldiers at Harwich, the Dep. Lieuts. persuaded the country, in hope of restitution, to disburse a few day's pay. The country notice that no course is yet taken for the support of this great charge, save by laying the burthen upon them. They have raised above 4,000*l.* and are out of hope of raising more, they therefore represent the state of the country to the Council. Scarce any man has half an ordinary crop of corn; clothiers have no vent of their wares; graziers and marketmen have no sale on account of the infection in London; hop-masters cannot sell at Stourbridge fair or London; Michaelmas rents and an assessment of the subsidy are becoming due; and extraordinary taxes for relief of the sick poor. If the King will not bear the charge, other counties, and especially Suffolk, ought to contribute.

Sept. 18. Plymouth. 78. Secs. Conway and Coke to the Dep. Lieuts. of Dorset. To levy a proportion of 500 men required to make up the army at Plymouth. Lord Suffolk being so far remote the directions are sent immediately to his deputies.

Sept. 18. 79. Draft of the preceding letter.

Sept. 18. Plymouth. Sec. Conway to Wm., Earl of Northampton. Letters from the Council Board are sufficient warrant for assembling the forces of the country in time of danger. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 230.]

Sept. 18. Plymouth. 80. The same to Sir. Wm. Becher, Clerk of the Council. The letters sent had been signed by his Majesty; some had been delivered to Lords there and the rest returned by the Messenger. No letter to the Lord Privy Seal for Monmouth and Glamorgan. Form of the Privy Seal signed by the King, and the Lord Treasurer will give order for putting it to press.

Sept. 18. Minute of the preceding letter. [Conway's Letter Book, p. 229.]

Sept. 18. Tichfield. 81. Susan Countess of Denbigh to Sec. Conway. Mr. Bagenhall, who had been delayed in passing a patent on some pretensions made on behalf of the Countess, had died. The Countess would be extremely sorry if his posterity should suffer any damage, and is a suitor on his child's behalf that the patent may be passed in his name, and his wardship not be granted until her request be heard.

Sept. 18. Sydenham, Devonshire. 82. Sir John Ogle to the same. Intreats to be sent fairly from these eminent employments. On the least notice he will return home or wait upon the King.

Sept. 19. Cowes. 83. Thos. Salt and Francis Harber to their Captain, Mr. Harvey. They had arrived at "the Cowes" in the Isle of Wight, being chased thither by knaves; the folk of the castle will not allow them to depart, making doubt whether they serve the King or not. The master desires that order may be taken for the release of the ship and goods.

Sept. 20. Sydenham, Devonshire. 84. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. Has fixed his heart on such a retired course as he may go the nearest way to the service of his Creator. Begs Lord Conway to advance his purpose. Hopes the King and the Duke will think his withdrawing from the market of the world to the Church of the Redeemer proceeds from a well affected mind. Has intimated his inclination to the Lord Keeper.

[Sept. 20?] 85. [Sir James Perrott] to Wm. Earl of Northampton. States the opinion of the Dep. Lieuts. of co. Pembroke, on the places in Milford Haven which are convenient for landing and those which ought to be fortified. As of the latter kind they mention Dale Point, Rat Island, and the Stack. [Copy.]

Sept. 20. Haverford West. 86. Wm. Earl of Northampton to the Council. Gives account of the Muster of the Trained Bands of the Counties of Pembroke, Carmarthen, and Cardigan. The Dep. Lieuts. of Pembroke support the charge of an additional 500 men, rather than draw in the Trained Bands of any adjoining shire. The Beacons are repaired, and are watched day and night. If the Dale Point, Rat Island, and the Stack were fortified, Milford Haven would be absolutely secure.

Sept. 20. Harwich. Return of the names, places of abode, and descriptions of 100 soldiers pressed in co. Wilts, and delivered to George Greame to be conducted to Plymouth. [See Vol. xv., No. 14.]

Sept. 21. Harwich. 87. Robt. Earl of Warwick to the Council. Mr. Morice, Clerk of the Ammunition, had been there, and upon consideration of the places to be fortified, they had settled a minute of a new warrant to Lord Carew, which is submitted to the Council. Lord Conway's letter, expressing the King's pleasure that the monies disbursed by the country should be repaid, had given some contentment. The Earl and Dep. Lieuts. are borrowing money at interest, on their own bonds, to defray present charges and keep the troops together. Incloses,

87. 1. Form of warrant to the Master General of the Ordnance, to supply cannon and ammunition necessary for the fortification of Harwich.

Sept. 21. Harwich. 88. The same to Sec. Conway. Letter of 13th not received until the 20th. Wishes that letters of so much comfort were put into the hands of a more speedy messenger. He cannot prevail on the country to support the burthen any longer, therefore he is raising money as mentioned in his last letter. Mr. Sheldon, a great recusant, who is now at Dunkirk, keeps up communication with the coast of Essex. The Earl designs to stay the boat by which it is carried on. If letters are found, desires to know whether he shall open them or send them up. Incloses,

88. 1. Examinations of Thos. Dale, Frās. Dickenson, and John Walter, who had just landed at Harwich from Dunkirk. They describe the state of warlike preparation at Dunkirk when they left. 1625, Sept. 16.

Sept. 21. South Tidworth. 89. Lord Treasurer Ley to Sir Wm. Becher, Clerk of the Council. Has received copies of letters of the Earl of Warwick and of the Dep. Lieuts. of Essex; but for him to give any private directions he does not think it fit.

Sept. 21. Dover Castle. 90. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. The Duke's Commission of Oyer and Terminer has been put in execution, and a Dunkirk pirate condemned. Execution has been stayed until his Grace's pleasure be known. If he be respited, he will yield money, reasonable store; if he suffer, they will do the like upon our men.

Sept. 21. 91. Notes of examinations of Thos. Rovening and others, captains and owners of the Anne, Fortune, St. Andrew, and St. Ursula, ships brought into Plymouth, as to the lading of their ships.

Sept. 22. Woodford Bridge. 93. Sir Maurice Abbot, Governor of the East India Company to Sec. Coke. 5 ships had returned from the East Indies, laden with indigo, pepper, and calicoes; one had been cast away near Dover. Sends Mr. Sherburne, their Secretary, to solicit a warrant from the Duke of Buckingham, for the seizure and recovery of the pepper and other goods saved by the inhabitants thereabouts. Congratulates Sir John Coke on the honour lately conferred upon him, i.e., his appointment as Secretary of State.

Sept. 22. Edmonton. 94. Thos Style to the same. Congratulations on his appointment. Solicits a warrant on behalf of the East India Company for the manufacture of gunpowder. Sir Arthur Mainwaring objects, alleging that the King's deer are hindered from their feeding, and that the poor people will want a corn-mill, which the proposed mill used to be. Arrival of ships from the East Indies, with the loss of one at Dover.

Sept. 22. 95. Commissioners of the Navy to Joshua Downing, Assistant to the said Commissioners. They had appointed Thos. Easton and his wife, keepers of his Majesty's house at Chatham Hill, in the place of John Friday and his wife, both deceased.

Sept. 22. Sydenham, Devonshire. 96. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. Begs that his companies or one of them may be conferred on his son John. Errors of judgment and false suggestions of ill-willers have cast some shadow on his former desert towards the States, but in their consciences the Lords and the Prince of Orange must be assured of his fidelity.

Sept. 23. Imworth. 97. Thos. Locke to Sir Dudley Carleton. Appointments of Sir John Coke and Mr. Aylesbury, the latter one of the Duke's Secretaries. The King went for Plymouth on the 11th, and there Sir John Coke is to be sworn in. Lady Morton is gone to her mother's, in Sussex. She is to have the 500*l.* per ann. during life, which was granted to her husband, and other favours. Locke does not see how he can send Sir Dudley, according to direction, gloves, candles, &c., the infection continuing still as hot as ever. There died this week in and about London above 2,000, which is as great a number as 4,000 when the City was full of people. The King is to return to Southampton on the 22d or 24th at farthest.

Sept. 23. Harwich. 98. Robt. Earl of Warwick to Sec. Conway. Sent Lord Conway's letter from Shaftesbury to the Earl of Suffolk, whose answer is in another style than the Earl of Warwick expected. Borrowing money to support the troops now fails. The country is so bare of money that it is not to be taken up. Applications to Colchester and Ipswich totally unsuccessful. Beseeches that he may receive directions what to do, and may be informed what allowances should be made to the officers. Incloses.

98. I. Robt. Earl of Warwick to Thomas Earl of Suffolk. Sends him a letter from Lord Conway, which signifies the King's pleasure that he should draw down 1,000 of the Trained Bands of Suffolk to Landguard Fort. 1625, Sept. 20.

98. II. Answer of the Earl of Suffolk to the Earl of Warwick. As Lieut. of Suffolk and Cambridgeshire, he dare not let any forces pass out of those counties to any other place upon Lord Warwick's or Lord Conway's letter, but must have a warrant from the King or the Council. 1625, Sept. 22.

Sept. 23. 99. Abstract of the preceding letters of the Earl of Warwick to Sec. Conway from 14th to 23rd Sept.

Sept. 24. Plymouth. 102. Nicholas Blake, and three others, to Buckingham. They have taken view of certain bags of aniseed and almonds at Plymouth, and value the former at 5*l.* per cwt., the latter at 45*s.* per cwt. [These are said in an endorsement to have been goods received from Campaine, the pirate.]

1625. VOL. VI.

Sept. 24. Wanstead. 103. Francis Morice to Sec. Coke. On the encouragement of the Lord Admiral, and promise of the Lord Treasurer of 1,000*l.* within ten days, he procured the artificers to set themselves seriously to the business [of fitting out the fleet for the Narrow Seas.] More than 20 days have past and almost all things are ready, but no part of the money has been received. Desires his assistance to procure speedy order for payment.

Sept. 24. Southampton. 104. Sir John Suckling, Comptroller of the Household, to Sir William Andrewes. The King being daily expected to return from Plymouth, and Lord Conway in his company, Sir Wm.'s messenger had waited there to meet his Lordship. Sir Wm.'s letter, with the examinations respecting Emerson [see 1625, Sept 16], had been brought to Sir John, who suggests that inquiry should be made upon certain other points.

Sept. 25. Colchester. 105. Samuel Harsnet, Bishop of Norwich, to Sec. Conway. Mrs. Elizabeth Lucas lays at his Majesty's feet her consent to his desire for the marriage of her daughter and Mr. Killigrew. [Sept. 26.] 109. Particulars of ordnance and ammunition in three of the prizes.

Sept. 27. Woodford Bridge. 110. Sir Maurice Abbot, Governor of the East India Company, and Thos. Style to Sec. Coke. In their ship the Moon, cast away near Dover, arrived a Dutchman, who, by his own confession, is one of the Judges who gave sentence of death upon the Company's innocent servants at Amboyna. He is detained in Dover Castle. Order is solicited for the Lieut. of Dover Castle to detain him until the pleasure of the Duke and the rest of the Council may be ascertained. The Sec. is also solicited to procure warrant for the release of the Company's powder mills.

Vol. VI.

Sept. 27. Lichfield. 111. Sir Simon Weston, Dep. Lieut. of Staffordshire, to the Council. Anthony Wright, who conveys the stage packet, having lodged a person in his house whose companion had died of the plague, and afterwards denied the same, although it was manifestly proved, Sir Simon had for the present appointed another person to that service.

Sept. 28. Plymouth. 112. Minutes of a Council of War held at Plymouth by the Duke of Buckingham, Sir Ed. Cecil, and the Colonels there, for the determination of the precedency of the several commanders of the expedition. [Much mutilated.]

Sept. 28. 113. Copy of the preceding, made before the mutilation.

Sept. 28. Southwick. 114. Sir Daniel Norton to Wm. Earl of Pembroke and Sec. Conway. Portsmouth being grievously afflicted with the plague, the Mayor and other officers refuse to take the necessary steps to sever the infected, or otherwise exercise authority, on the ground that their term of office has expired. On the other side it is asserted that the choosers could not assemble for a new election on account of the contagion. The case is submitted to the King for his direction. Incloses, 114. I. Owen Jennings to Sir Dan. Norton. Requesting him to state the above circumstances to the King or Council. 1625, Sept. 27.

Sept. 28. 115. Inventory of goods taken out of the St. James, of Calais.

Sept. 29. Wilton. Sec. Conway to Bishop Williams, Lord Keeper. The cause is now to be treated in Council; his Lordship was not called by reason of a mistake in not warning him with the rest. Promise to endeavour to make his excuses for fourteen days, &c. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 230.]

Sept. 29. Harwich. 116. Robt. Earl of Warwick to Sec. Conway. Having often and earnestly written to Lord Conway, and once to the Council, he has not received answer except one letter dated the 13th inst. His resources have utterly failed and the payments grown into an arrear. Has not received any ordnance or ammunition, and should have been utterly destitute of powder, had not two ships come in from Eastland, from whose lading he borrowed two lasts. His servant, whom he sent to Holland for an engineer, has returned; the engineer is hourly expected.

Sept. 29. Lathbury. 117. Sir William Andrewes to Sir John Suckling. Sends farther examinations upon the points which Sir John had suggested. [See 1625, Sept. 24.] Incloses,

Sept. 29. Dover Castle. 122. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. The Hollanders had endeavoured to fire the fleet at Dunkirk but had failed, the ships being protected by shallops which drew off the fire-ships with hooks. If the King will send him a warrant he will go and see the place, and will make something of it, or die there. Has been to Harwich. In his absence the marshal let go two of his prisoners; one of them, the condemned Dunkirker, has been taken again. Has committed the marshal for neglect. The French Ambassador landed last night. The Dean of Canterbury is dead. Dr. Bargrave has the King's promise. The Essex men are very troubled at their great charge, the fault is laid upon my Lord of Warwick's forwardness.

Sept. 30. Plymouth. 123. Buckingham to the King. The Ambassador from Algiers is going away discontented on account of his nine months delay, and because his presents were not only unrewarded, but ascribed to the merchants. As he offers to do good service for the fleet, the Duke suggests that letters should be sent by him to Algiers, and that the King should send him a present of a ring from his Royal hand, to the value of 500*l.* The army is free from any just suspicion of sickness, and is in such forwardness that they are appointed to go aboard on Saturday, and to sail with the first wind, which the Duke purposes to see performed. Begs there may be no delay as to the present. The Duke stays purposely for it. Failure now would heap injury upon injury.

Sept. 30. Beaconsfield. 124. Alice Lady Borlase to Sec. Conway. Her husband has obtained leave from the Prince of Orange to come to England on private business. She solicits the King's permission that he may do so.

Instructions to Sir Allen Apsley to conduct the fleet of prize ships from Plymouth to London, and to himself and his co-commissioners, Sir John Wolstenholme, Sir Robert Pye, Mr. Fotherly, and Mr. Hopton, in what manner they were to proceed in procuring the ships to be condemned in the Court of Admiralty; in the meantime the cargoes were to be secured in store houses. [Minute.]

[Copy.]

[Sept.] 131. Petition of Elizabeth Carpenter, wife of Thos. Carpenter, of Southwark co., Surrey, cordwainer, to the King. Her husband had been impressed "upon spleen," whereupon, on the Monday preceding [1625, Sept. 12?], she had petitioned the King at Southampton and received his command to attend "here." Gave 3,500*l.* for an office, from which he is suspended without any known cause, and suffers under the want of necessary food and raiment, accompanied with shame and dishonour. [Sept.?] 136. Copy of the same.

[Sept.?] 137. Petition of the distressed soldiers of Pendennis Castle, to the King; a month ago they petitioned for their pay for 20 months, and order was given to the Lord Treasurer to pay the same; but their daily solicitations have been fruitless, and they have been forced to pawn their bedding and other necessaries to buy bread. Pray for an order for present payment for 21 months.

1. I. Earl of Northampton to the King, as above.

Oct. 2. Salisbury. Sec. Conway to Lord Treasurer Ley. To give order for a Privy Seal for 4,000*l.* to the Duke of Buckingham, in recompense of fines quit by him in Ireland. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 231.]

Sharp letters to be written to Newcastle, to provide for its own defence. Letters to be written for disarming recusants. Inquiry as to holding the approaching term at St. Alban's or Reading; and proclamation to inhibit repair of strangers to London.

[Oct. 2.] 3. Minutes of letters to be written to the Earl of Warwick and the Dep. Lieuts. of Essex, with directions for their proceedings at Harwich; to the Duke of Buckingham, for the fortification of the Cinque Ports; and to Portsmouth, with directions in what manner to proceed in the choice of a new Mayor.

Oct. 2. 4. The Council to Robt. Earl of Warwick. Thanks for his services. A fleet having been ordered to attend the motions of the Dunkirkers and secure the coast, the men assembled at Harwich are to be dismissed. The charges shall be dealt with according to the precedents of former times. On the arrival of persons skilful in fortification, ordnance shall be sent. [Copy.]

Oct. 2. The Court. 5. Lords Commissioners for the Subsidies to Sec. Conway. The payment of the first subsidy due by him amounted to 20*l.* Walter James, of Reading, had been appointed Receiver. The same to be paid within the month of October.

Oct. 2. 6. Book for taxing and assessing the first subsidy of the nobility, granted anno primo Caroli.

Oct. 3. Salisbury. Sec. Conway to Sir Dudley Carleton, to procure leave for the Lord Vere, to come into England, &c. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 231.]

Oct. 3. Foxley. 7. Lord Keeper Williams to Sec. Conway. Thanks for his mediating with his Majesty for the Lord Keeper's staying at Foxley until after the next Seal. Suspects he must make his account to winter at Salisbury. Wishes to know where the next term is to be kept. Windsor is visited, Northampton and Cambridge are clear, but Salisbury is the best place. Desires his duty and humble respects to the Duke, and his professions to live and die his humble servant, and to appear face to face against any man who shall for the time past accuse him of any unworthiness against his Grace. Desires only his Grace's love, not any effect thereof in matters of fortune or honour.

Oct. 3. Newelm Lodge. 8. Wm. Earl of Salisbury to Sec. Conway. The answer to his late letter rested in the breast of a multitude who for the most part are incapable of reason. Sends the reply, desiring that with it his faithful endeavours should be tendered to his Majesty. Incloses,

8. I. Dep. Lieuts. of Herts to the Earl of Salisbury. Having assembled the country, they had received an absolute refusal to contribute towards the charge of the co. of Essex; 1st, as unprecedented; 2nd, because Herts never had any relief from Essex; and, 3rd, because the subsidies granted were intended for the charges of the defence of the Kingdom. 1625, Sept. 29.

Oct. 3. Plymouth. 9. Warrant from the Duke of Buckingham to Attorney General Coventry, to make ready a grant for conferring the dignity of Lord Cecil, Viscount of Wimbledon, upon Sir Edward Cecil, employed as Lieutenant General of his Majesty's sea and land forces.

Oct. 4. From the Anne Royal. 10. Sir Edwd. Cecil to Sec. Coke. Came on board yesterday with determination to put to sea, but the munition "not at all shipped;" neither can Lord Essex come out of Falmouth with this wind. P.S.—Will sail at 3 A.M. Prays him to send the munition after them by the Dutch ships.

Oct. 4. Plymouth. 11. The same to Sec. Conway. Incloses a letter to the King, informing him that the army had embarked. The Duke had bestirred himself and played the General industriously and judiciously. He settled all men's places by vote, and not by authority. He that disputed most had come down a degree lower than he was. The Duke had done all in a week that they doubted to have done in three.

Oct. 4. Plymouth. 12. Form of warrant of the Duke of Buckingham appointing Collectors of the Tenths payable to him on letters of marque. With a memorandum underwritten that under this form John Drake and Sir John Drake, his son, were appointed collectors for Somerset, and Sir James Bagg for Cornwall.

Oct. 4. Attleborough. 13. Robert Earl of Sussex to Philip Earl of Montgomery. After all his pains in bringing down the Trained Bands to Harwich, he had had the command quite taken away from him by the junction of the Earl of Warwick in the Lieutenancy. Lord Conway tells him that these businesses being once over his Majesty will turn every authority into its own channel. He desires to be altogether discharged rather than remembered to his dishonour.

Oct. 4. Ipswich. 14. Thos. Eldred to Thos. Styles. Robt. Deering had shipped on board Eldred's ship 75 barrels of powder, but the King of Denmark had taken away 66 barrels at the rated price. Gentlemen at Ipswich desire to buy the remainder. Has brought back the Dutchman ("Johannes Ladislaus Melbik?") who went out with him.

Oct. 4. Plymouth. 15. Warrant from the Duke of Buckingham for the delivery of divers bags of aniseed and almonds seized for his use, to Edw. Nicholas and Gabriel Marsh. [See 1625, Sept. 24, No. 102.]

1625. VOL. VII.

Oct. 4. Hackwood. 16. Jane Lady St. John to Sec. Conway. On the intreaty of her cousin Savage, Lady St. John requests Lord Conway to move his Majesty for the first prebend's place in Windsor in reversion for Mr. Stokes, who had a promise of the same from King James. His Majesty has in all things performed his father's will and promise, to his eternal fame.

Oct. 4. Ipswich. 17. Officers of the Customs in Ipswich to Thomas Styles. They intreat him to sell to the gentlemen of that county the gunpowder which Thomas Eldred had brought for him from Elbing.

[Oct. 4.] 18. Sec. Coke to ————. Relating the true state of Sir Hen. Mervin's case. He was charged by the French Ambassador with having assisted the Rochellers in spoiling the French, and with having participated in the booty. King James after inquiry removed Sir Henry from his employment, and directed a judicial proceeding, but Lord Treas. Middlesex not supplying money the business was no farther prosecuted. [Draft.]

[Oct. 4.] 19. Petition of John Bardsey, goldsmith, to "the most gracious Prince George Villiers Duke of Buckingham." Prays to be taken into his service, or to be appointed a Groom of the King's Household or guard.

Oct. 5. Salisbury. Sec. Conway to the Master of the Wards. For all possible favour to be shown to the ward of Thomas Lucas, the rather for Mr. Killigrew's sake. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 231.]

Oct. 5. Salisbury. 20. The King to the Council. Having given order for the disarming of recusants, they are to require the Lord Lieutenants to cause knights, gentlemen, and yeomen of ability (not being recusants) to furnish themselves with such arms as shall be meet for their several households.

Oct. 5. 21. Copy of the preceding.

[Oct. 5.] 22. Another copy, undated and indorsed October 7, 1625.

Oct. 5. Lincoln. 23. Francis Earl of Rutland to the Council. The Trained Bands have been exercised and the coast surveyed. Places enumerated which are of greatest danger for the landing of an enemy. It were a safer way to have two or three ships on the coast.

Oct. 5. 24. Roll of the lading of the Golden Rose, of Hamburgh, with certificates of her despatch from Oporto. [Copy.]

Oct. 5. 25. Similar roll and certificates, with reference to the Golden Sun, of Hamburgh. [Copy.]

Oct. 6. Colton. 26. Sir Walter Aston to Sec. Conway. Desires that he may recal his Secretary home from Spain.

Oct. 6. Colchester. 27. Bishop Harsnet of Norwich, to Archbishop Abbot. Mr. Lucas, Bishop Harsnet's dearest friend being dead, and his heir in France, the Bishop prays for a license to Mr. Eyre to visit the heir for a pious purpose. The Archbishop's fiat for granting the solicited license is underwritten.

Oct. 6. 28. Henry Brewer to Clare Marian. Arrival of a French Ambassador, to mitigate, it is hoped, some cruel pretences against the Roman Catholics. The heart of London worse infected than ever. Great miseries of the Roman Catholics. The ships not yet gone. The Duke is going for Holland on business not known. [Copy of an intercepted letter.]

Oct. 6. Pl mouth. 29. Sec. Coke to Sir Edward Cecil. Seeing, to his great grief, that the fleet had returned into the Sound in disorder, before he gave notice of this retreat, he thought fit to write to him. No news will be welcome but of his proceeding on his voyage. It concerns his honour to suspect those who give advice to lose time, or pretend the safety of the ships. Wars require hazard. If the safety of the ships were most to be respected, the way had been to have kept them at Chatham. If he does not give strict command that no boat go ashore his companies will scatter. [Copy.]

Oct. 6. Attleborough. 30. Robt. Earl of Sussex to Sec. Conway. The Earl of Warwick was sent to Harwich with the Council's letter for the command of the 3,000 men. That Earl had since been joined with the Earl of Sussex in the Lieutenantship. Had they been equally joined in the command of the army as they are in the Lieutenantship, the writer would most lovingly have embraced the Earl of Warwick; but, as it is, after all his pains taken, he is now in the opinion of the country rather a cipher than an assistant.

Oct. 6. Plymouth. 31. Sir John Eliot to the same. Lord Conway's son is shipped and gone, on whom Eliot waited to see him under sail on Wednesday morning (5th inst.) Part of the fleet then sailed with a fair wind, the rest following in the afternoon. The latter were last night put back into the Sound, the former recovering Falmouth. Admiral Nassau with the Dutch ships arrived just as they were going out, and attended the Duke in the Anne Royal at his parting with the Lord Marshal. The ships were at that instant forced in to Catwater with such haste and fear that divers had fallen foul of one another. He is now called upon to send out boats and men to them.

Oct. 6. Harwich. 32. Sir Thos. Meautys to the same. Coming to Harwich to ship himself for the Low Countries, he had been detained by command of the Earl of Warwick to advise him in ordering the troops. Had learned from Sir Hen. Carew, that his (Sir Thos.'s) company in the Low Countries was in danger of being cast, in consequence of his absence; the sentence had been revoked by the interference of Lord Tilbury, whom he wished Lord Conway to thank.

Oct. 7. Salisbury. Sec. Conway to the Turkey Company. Signifying his Majesty's pleasure for calling home Sir Thomas Roe and sending Sir Thomas Phillips thither, and willing them to conform themselves to his Majesty's pleasure, or else some of them that have not been in any infectious place to come to Court and show their reasons to the King. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 231.]

1625. Vol. VII.

Oct. 7. 33. Deed of covenant under the hand and seal of Capt. Richd. Gyffard. Gyffard having received, by order of the Duke of Buckingham, the bark called the Peter of Dunkirk, now in Portsmouth harbour, it is agreed, for the setting forth the said ship on a voyage with commission of reprisal, that Edw. Nicholas shall receive for the Duke's use (over and above the usual tenths), a third part of all goods taken by the said ship; one other third is to go to Capt. Gyffard for victualling the ship, and the remaining third to the captain and company, according to the custom of commissions of this nature.

Oct. 7. 34. Sir Edw. Cecil to Sec. Coke. The Admiral of Holland offered caution for the two ships from Guinea, knowing them to belong to Zealand, and desired earnestly that they might be despatched.

Oct. 7. Braintree. 35. Justices of Essex to the Council. The country is much grieved at the great sums of money levied for the maintenance of the forces at Harwich, and is apprehensive of the danger of this new precedent, many well remembering that they received pay from Queen Elizabeth in 1588, 1596, and 1599; they therefore pray that order may be given for their reimbursement.

Oct. 7. 36. Muster Roll of Archcliff Bulwark, for the year ending Michaelmas 1625.

Oct. 7. Sessions at Buckingham. 37. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Buckingham to the Council. Since the sea-fights and the fortification of the coast began, the houses of recusants had been extraordinarily frequented. The present repair to such houses exceeded those which foreran the attempts of the Spanish Invasion and the Gunpowder Treason. Disproportionable raising of men, horses, arms, munition of all sorts, extraordinary provision of meal stored, and the men trained; and this in houses of some that are absent, and of others who are in debt and decay. They recommend a search for priests, or disarming of recusants, the country being much affrighted.

Oct. 8. From aboard the Anne Royal. 38. Sir Edw. Cecil to Sec. Coke. Since the wind has served, he has been from ship to ship to make ready, for no warning will serve their turns, either with the Hollanders or the others. Now they stay only for the tide. He will not lose hour or minute, and will believe in neither captain nor master. No orders observed but those he follows in his own person. Requests a pilot, and advice as to whom he shall make his Rear-Admiral, Lord Denbigh or Sir John Chidley.

Oct. 8. Plymouth. 39. Sec. Coke to Sir Edw. Cecil. Had seen and read what he told him yesterday, that instructions were given by his captain, not in Sir Edward's name, but in his own. If those next him thus usurped upon him, what obedience could he expect from those farther off. Want of instructions occasioned the disorderly coming in of his fleet. Advises him to call aboard the captains who have received those instructions, to recall and disavow them, and to give out others. Expected an order in writing respecting the Lion, but has acted upon his message, taking out her victuals and dividing them amongst the fleet. [Copy.]

Oct. 8. The Anne Royal. 40. Sir Edw. Cecil to Sec. Coke. Thanks for his information. The fault [of his captain] was committed rather out of ignorance than arrogance. They now wait for water. Should have written about the leaky condition of the Lion, but knew he was aware of it through the shipwrights. Thanks for his care and zeal in advertising him "true and home."

Oct. 8. Plymouth. 41. Sec. Coke to Buckingham. This evening the ships have put out again with a prosperous wind. The Lion left behind. Endeavours will be made to carry her to Chatham to be repaired in dry dock. The rest of the fleet, with the Earls of Essex and Denbigh, Lords Cromwell and Delaware, recovered Falmouth, where they await the Admiral. The Vanguard is before Rochelle. A French Admiral had put into Falmouth, and desired to be allowed to proceed to Plymouth overland. As he had come to discover the proceedings of our fleet, or to surprise Mons. Soubise's ships, Coke had advised the Captain of Pendennis to keep the French ships embargoed until his Majesty had notice, and to protect those of Mons. Soubise. The country complained of the multitude of soldiers that lie upon them.

Oct. 8. On board the Lion. 42. Sir Francis Stewart to the same. On the 5th he sailed after the Lord Marshal, returned with him, and followed him to Catwater, where the Lion made so much water that order was given for discharging her stores, and her flag was sent for by the Lord Marshal. Submits himself to the disposition of Buckingham.

Oct. 8. Blandford. 43. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Dorset to Sec. Conway. In obedience to directions to press 100 men, and to send them to the fleet at Plymouth, they hope to have them ready on Monday or Tuesday next; but understanding that the Duke passed yesterday through Blandford, and that the fleet was set to sea, they seek further directions.

Oct. 8. 44. Jo. Woodford to Sir Francis Nethersole. Sir Francis is advised to make use of the occasion of the Duke's coming into those parts to set himself straight with his Grace. It is presumed that he is too wise to neglect the advice given him at Oxford. The Duke has seen the fleet set sail, and, having first visited his Duchess, is to pass into Holland. Mons. de Blainville has arrived to see to the execution of the treaty of marriage between the King and Queen. He may expect, like his predecessors, more diamonds than we can spare. Mons. de Soubise is at Mr. John Poulett's house in Somersetshire. Granville, the lawyer, is sent with the fleet to supply the place of Secretary. Other Court news.

Oct. 8. Salisbury. 45. Sec. Conway to Edward Viscount Wimbledon. His Majesty had been made acquainted with Lord Wimbledon's letter to Sec. Coke, and commanded Lord Conway to charge him to keep all his men aboard, and take the first wind to put out.

Oct. 8. Dover Castle. 46. Sir John Hippisley to Sec. Coke. Congratulations on his appointment. For his part, there shall be no man more "respective" than himself. The Dunkirk ships lie still. The Holland men attempted to fire them by burning two of their own ships, but did no good.

1625. Vol. VII.

Oct. 8. 47. List of the ships of his Majesty's fleet which put to sea for Spain this day from Plymouth; with the names of their Captains. [Corrected by Nicholas.]

Oct. 8. 48. Another similar list, with addition of the tonnage of the ships, and numbers of seamen on board the King's ships.

[Oct. 8.] 49. List of the ships, with the names of the colonels and captains of the several regiments embarked.

[Oct. 8.] 50. List of the ships as divided into squadrons, with the tonnage of every ship, and the numbers of seamen and soldiers on board.

[Oct. 8.] 51. List similar to the preceding.

[Oct. 8.] 52. Another list of ships serving in this expedition, with the tonnage, stowage, ballast, and other particulars.

[Oct. 8.] 53. Copy of the same.

[Oct. 8.] 54. Another copy.

[Oct. 8 ?] 55. List of the men belonging to the ship Bonaventure, with their several divisions, whereby every man may know his place, and what to take himself unto in time of fight.

Oct. 9. Plymouth. 56. Sec. Coke to Edw. Viscount Wimbledon. Had commanded the 14 ships which stayed behind on pain of death to weigh anchor, which they had obeyed. Had examined Mr. Rawley. He is a Warwickshire man by descent, and had followed the wars for seven years; is very contrite for having offended Lord Wimbledon, wherefore Coke sends him back either for further punishment or pardon. Desires to know what he hears about the ships at Falmouth.

Oct. 9. Hinton. 57. John Poulett to Sec. Conway. The next day after the King went from his house, he rode post to Plymouth to wait upon Mons. Soubise, who came yesterday to the writer's house. Some ships of the King of France designed to take a ship of Mons. Soubise out of the harbour of Falmouth. Conversation with Mons. Soubise thereon; his strong enforcement of a hope that his Majesty would protect his ships, and be the means to gain peace for the French protestants.

Oct. 9. From aboard the Esperanza. 58. Capt. Richard Gyffard to Nicholas. Did not come on shore to take leave of Nicholas, lest the Dutch might convey away goods out of the ship. Thanks for his love and well-wishing in spite of what evil and disparaging tongues spit out against Gyffard. Will see the ship safely delivered, in the hope that he may then attend the Duke's service in a better and more respected manner.

Oct. 9. 59. Note of the arms taken from recusants in co. Southampton.

Oct. 10. Salisbury. 60. John Earl of Annandale to Sec. Conway. Sends petition of his servant, with request that it may be presented to the King. [It appears from an indorsement, that the petition referred to was that of a "Mr. Bainbridge."]

[Oct. 10.] 61. Minute of petition of Christ. Bainbridge, that judgment might be entered upon a verdict obtained by him against Harris and Challenger, for cutting down 1,200 timber trees in the forest of Deane.

Oct. 10. 62. Muster roll of the garrison of Sandown Castle for the year ending Michælmas 1625.

Oct. 10. 63. Muster roll of the garrison of Deal Castle for the like period.

Oct. 10. London. 64. Nicholas Leatt to Sec. Conway. In the absence of the Governor and the rest of the Levant Company he has received the Sec.'s letter, apprising him that the King had given direction for a warrant to discharge Sir Thos. Roe and substitute Sir Thos. Phillips. All the Company are dispersed to avoid the sickness, and it is, therefore, not possible for any of them to attend the King to give him satisfaction; begs that the matter may be stayed. The sickness begins to cease, and before the term he hopes they will be returned.

Oct. 10. Bishop's Auckland. 65. Richard Neile, Bishop of Durham, to the Council. Sends a certificate of persons inhabiting within the co. of the Bishoprick on whom the loan may be imposed. Some of the most ancient names, as Eure, Conyers, Bowes, and others, omitted on account of their decayed estates. Sir William Bellasis, the High Sheriff, suggested as Receiver.

Oct. 11. Dover Castle. 66. Sir John Hippisley to Sec. Conway. Had seen a warrant from the Council for Mr. Hugessen to attend. If the Duke had been there he would have given reasons for sparing him at this time. By taking him away the King will lose 2,000*l.*, and the design of burning the ships at Dunkirk fall to nothing. Hugessen is the man that Sir John employs in that matter, and in fitting out the four ships, which is all done upon credit. Intreats that for small things such a man should not be discouraged.

Oct. 11. Salisbury. 67. Sir Sidney Montagu to the City of Exeter. Incloses a petition of Thos. Walker, lately chosen Mayor of Exeter. If the reasons alleged for his not being eligible are true, they are to proceed to a new election.

[Oct. 11.] 68. Receipt for a gold chain, a jewelled hat band, various sums of money in Spanish coin and other articles of value, derived from the ships brought into Plymouth, and by the Mayor handed over to Gabriel Marsh, by appointment of the Duke of Buckingham.

Oct. 11. Salisbury. Proclamation for the further adjournment of Michaelmas term from the fourth to the fifth return, and from Westminster to Reading. [Coll. Procs., Car. I., No. 29.]

Oct. 11. Wigan. 69. John Bridgman, Bishop of Chester, to Lord Treasurer Ley and Sir Richard Weston, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Acknowledges the receipt of directions concerning tenths and subsidies. Sent information to the Council on Sept. 25, that Sir Thos. Gerard had sworn the death of the King, and that there was a plot to be sped in Warwickshire or Worcestershire. Desires directions what to do with Sir Thos. and other prisoners under arrest. Meetings of recusants, seditious speeches of Thos. Helme and widow Jaques.

1625. VOL. VII.

Oct. $\frac{11}{21}$. Rome. 70. Testimonial under the hand of Thomas Fitzherbert, Rector of the English College, at Rome, and under the seal of the college, that Troilus Lovell had remained at the college for six days, during which time he had attended divine service and received the sacrament.

Oct. 12. Salisbury. Sec. Conway to Wm. Earl of Northampton. Recommending in the Duke of Buckingham's name, Sir Thomas Harris to be Chief Justice of Chester. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 231.]

Oct. 12. Salisbury. The same to Sir Edward Cecil, Lord Marshal of the Army. Taking notice of the ships being driven back with contrary winds, requires the men may be kept on board, and that he lose not the first wind. [Minute, ibid.]

Oct. 12. Salisbury. The same to Sir Francis Gofton. To send a note of the King's jewels, out of which his Majesty will make choice of some to be sent into the Low Countries; and, therefore, he may prepare such warrants for delivering them as may be sufficient for the Lord Brooke's discharge and his. [Minute, ibid.]

Oct. 12. Salisbury. The same to Fulke Lord Brooke. The Duke of Buckingham goes Ambassador to the Hague, and is to carry with him such of the King's jewels as his Lordship hath in his custody; he is, therefore, prayed to send up the keys by some trusty messenger for delivering them. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 232.]

Oct. 12. Salisbury. 71. Ralph Hopton to [Sir Dudley Carleton?]. Explains how two former letters had chanced to miscarry. Desires advice concerning his service under Count Mansfeldt. Did not go with the fleet because it went not on the ground which Sir Dudley esteemed most necessary, the war being begun without money, and the fleet, as he fears, not properly victualled. The miseries he suffered in the last expedition make him afraid to command men without the means to support them. His expectation of a press for 600 men to reinforce his company under Count Mansfeldt is not realized. If Sir Dudley deems him bound to return he will not fail; otherwise, he begs him to procure his discharge. Trusts there will be cause to be glad of the Duke's journey. Hopes of the papists to regain their power.

Oct. 12. Lichfield. 72. Dep. Lieuts. of Staffordshire to the Council. Send list of persons to be applied to for the loan.

Oct. 12. Caversham. 73. Sir Henry Mildmay to Sec. Conway. Since there is a necessity for mortgaging the Crown jewels, yet, in regard there are too many, both in the Court and kingdom, who look upon the Duke's proceedings with more than a curious eye, he begs Lord Conway to consider whether the King should not take the advice of the Council for the transportation and pawning of the jewels out of the realm, and a warrant under the Great Seal be founded thereon.

1625. VOL. VII.

Oct. 13. Skipton Castle. 74. Francis Earl of Cumberland and Henry Lord Clifford to the Council. Recapitulate their proceedings under orders for arming and fortifying the Northern counties, and also for returning the names of persons to be rated to the loan. Inclose letters received from the Dep. Lieuts. and others of Northumberland, on both those subjects. No answer as yet from the town of Newcastle or the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland. Inclose,

74. I. Dep. Lieuts. and others of Northumberland to the Earl of Cumberland and Lord Clifford. That 500 foot and 500 horse are the most that can be enrolled in their county. On survey of the coast, various places are pointed out as being in great danger. The county wholly disfurnished of all military provision. 1625, Oct. 8.

74. II. The same to the same; same date. Certify the present great and general want of money, and poverty, of that country on account of certain special reasons which are stated, and pray that for that time they may be spared from lending monies.

Oct. 13. Hardwick. 75. Wm. Earl of Devonshire to the Council. Sends a paper book of persons thought fittest to be lenders on Privy Seals in the co. of Derby.

Oct. 14. Pendennis. 76. Capt. John Bonython to Sec. Conway. Lord Conway's son, Sir Edw. Conway, in company with the Earl of Essex, and 40 sail of several squadrons, sailed on the Saturday preceding, and are thought to have joined the fleet off the Lizard. Desires directions respecting Mons. Soubise's ship, the St. John, which the French Vice Admiral wished to be allowed to capture.

Oct. 14. 77. Copy of the above; misdated, 1625, Oct. 19.

In obedience to the King's letters [respecting the loan] he had taken a strict survey of the county, and in the proportions had looked with a faithful eye upon his Majesty's occasions rather than upon the disposition of the people. The Dep. Lieuts. hope that their more than ordinary travail and expense in his Majesty's service will move to their own discharge from contributing on this occasion.

Oct. 17. Dover Castle. 89. Sir John Hippisley to the same. On Thursday, at night, 21 of the Holland ships lying before Dunkirk were almost destroyed by a storm: five driven into Dover dismasted. The ships of Dunkirk may now go out at their pleasure. The Duke is hourly expected.

Oct. 18. Plymouth. 91. Gabriel Marsh to Nicholas. Hastened affairs all he could, but the English masters found great want of sails, masts, and cables, and there is great backwardness in providing men. The wind had been constantly fair for the fleet. Oct. 19. Hartford Bridge. 2. Sec. Coke to Sec. Conway. Tidings have reached him on the road of the great losses by the late storm, so as if the Dunkirkers take the opportunity, our seas, coasts, and ships are without guard. He will write immediately to hasten away all merchant ships, and to cause them to be stayed in the Downs. Solicits Conway to order the Great Neptune to the Downs. The main danger is lest in these dark nights they attempt Chatham. He will therefore order the guards to be doubled, and the forts and castle to be manned and provided. He will also direct the Dep. Lieuts. to be ready to come down with the Train Bands. Conway may see if it be good service to deprive ourselves of our merchant ships to serve other men's turns.

Oct. [20.] 10. Buckingham to Sec. Conway. Prays him to deliver two packets to his Majesty, and to intreat him to burn the accompanying letter. He is also to make the Duke's excuses for staying so long, which should not have been, though a wife and the weather were something. Oct. 21. Newcastle. 18. Mayor and Aldermen of Newcastle-upon-Tyne to the Council. Have sent one of their aldermen to give information of the true state of the town for provision of arms and safety. Oct. 22. Salisbury. 21. Jas. Earl of Carlisle to Buckingham. The French Ambassador has more and more employed his wit to make the greater discovery of his own folly. No other course than to make all haste after them.

If the Duke holds his resolution in going for the Low Countries, he ought to have a very good guard of ships.

Oct. 23. Salisbury. 29. Sec. Conway to Buckingham. Reports directions given by the Council on the loss of ships in the storm. The French Ambassador demands certain ships. He has been informed that he shall have justice. His Grace has already been told how much the Ambassador played the offended man, and how good he desired to seem to be. Packets from Buckingham were delivered to the King, after waiting three hours whilst he was with the Queen, where the countenance and outward forms were very gracious and the Queen exceedingly pleased, the rather on return of a Gentleman Usher from France sent with beagles to the Queen-mother.

Miserable condition of tradesmen, artificers, and farmers, consequent upon the plague and stoppage of trade. Blame thrown on the obstinacy of Sir Edw. Oct. 24. Salisbury. 37. Sir John Suckling to Buckingham. His Majesty, having advertisement that the plague was in six or seven houses at Windsor, had resolved to go to Hampton, where it was thought he would winter. The Treasurer somewhat cold respecting a grant of the petty farms, probably to Suckling. Minor offices in the Household filled up, except that held by Sir Charles Glemham. To-morrow Suckling goes to the Lord Keeper's house with a warrant to receive the Great Seal, and bring it to the King at Hampton Court, where, on Sunday next, it will be bestowed on Mr. Attorney General. This is a due disgrace to one who had been unthankful and unfaithful to his Grace, and may the like misfortune befall all such as shall tread in his hateful path, and presume to lift their heel against their maker.

Oct. 25. Battersea. 38. Peter du Bois to Sir Robert Pye, Auditor of the Exchequer, and collector of money to be raised from strangers by Privy Seals. The Duke had ordered that eight or ten thousand pounds found in the prizes at Dover should be employed, one half in buying powder and arms to be sent to Ireland, and the remainder in setting out more ships. Had written to Sir James Bagg to apprehend the Captains of the ships returned from the fleet, and certify the truth to the Council.

Oct. 27. Auckland. 48. Bishop Neile of Durham to the same. Remits a letter received from Newcastle. He had advised that Tynemouth Haven should be secured, and that the Hollanders set on shore should be relieved. Newcastle lies open to the enemy, who besides the spoil of a great, populous, and very rich town, may burn 200 or 300 ships, for there are oftentimes so many lying in the river. Had conferred with a committee of such persons connected with the East India Company as best understand some particular services respecting which Sir John Coke had written to him, [apparently their power of assisting in the warehousing of goods and victualling of ships], but they could give no answer until they had been to the Court. If they proceeded with their trade to the Indies, their own houses were only sufficient for their own occasions. The master of every ship should cure his own provisions. An arrival of 100 or 200 hogsheads of Irish beef expected very shortly.

Oct. 28. [Wanstead.] 55. Sir Hen. Mildmay to Sec. Conway. Has sent towards Harwich all the jewels of value within his charge. If his Majesty will have any more they must be of silver and gilt. Desires allowance for himself, two officers, and a jeweller. Understands the jewels in Lord Brooke's custody will come to a poor sum.

Oct. 28. Brecon. 56. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Brecknock to the Council. They find that Roger Williams, conductor of 100 pressed men from that county to Plymouth, has been much wronged by the accusation of receiving money to discharge men committed to him. They petition that there should be an examination into the circumstances under which so many soldiers have returned with passports.

Oct. 28. Newcastle-upon-Tyne. 57. Mayor and Aldermen of Newcastle-upon-Tyne to Sec. Conway. The Duke of Buckingham had apprised them of the coming of the Dunkirk fleet, and directed them to report to Lord Conway. On the 26th, 15 Dunkirk great ships were off Scarborough, and eight Hollanders, of whom they sunk two, and put the rest to flight. The Dunkirkers made spoil of 70 Holland busses, and put 140 fishermen on board an English ship coming to Newcastle. The fishermen had been relieved, and 20*l.* given to a ship to land them at Enckhuysen. The Dunkirkers have now gone farther northward, and about Yarmouth roads there are 13 sail of Holland men-of-war going in pursuit of them. The Dunkirkers offer no violence to English men or ships.

Oct. 29 Salisbury. Sec. Conway to Sir Henry Palmer. Giving him notice that the coast is clear, and therefore requiring him to come away with the prizes from Plymouth. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 233].

Oct. 29. London. 58. Gideon de Laune to Sir Robt. Pye. Is unable to satisfy a Privy Seal sent to him. Has given his little property to his children, reserving a stipend to himself and his wife. Profits from his apothecary shop frustrated by the deaths of his servants of the sickness.

Oct. 29. From the Bay of Cadiz. 59. Sir Wm. St. Leger [to Buckingham.] The fleet came into the bay of Cadiz on the 22d. On the 23d, the fort of Puntal was attacked by the Earl of Essex. An attempt to land troops close under the fort failed; but having landed at another place the fort capitulated. On the 24th, on rumour of an attack, the men marched towards the bridge, where, being faint and without provisions, the Marshal gave them wine, under the influence of which they became unmanageable. On survey of the town, it appeared that it could only be taken by siege, for which they were unprovided; they therefore embarked their men again, to their great dishonour. St. Leger proposed to march to St. Lucar, but it was not hearkened unto. The action was too great for their abilities. He is so much ashamed, that he wishes he may never live to see his Sovereign, which he thinks he shall not do, for his heart is broken. They are now standing for the Southward Cape, where, if they miss the fleet, they shall do nothing.

Oct. 29. Plymouth. 60. Sir James Bagg to Sec. Conway. Accounts for letters to Sir Henry Palmer and Capt. Gyles, sent to him to be delivered. One of the horse-ships of the fleet, having suffered damage in the great storm and lost the fleet, had returned to Mount's Bay. From her report, Bagg hopes that the storm did no great hurt to the fleet.

Oct. 30. 61. Thos. Fulnetby to Nicholas. Mr. Cannon [who signs the letter] had agreed to give Fulnetby 115*l.* for his place in the Admiralty. Fulnetby wishes Nicholas to arrange for his security, on his doing which he will resign his place and silver oar.

Oct. 30. Newelm Lodge. 62. Wm. Viscount Wallingford, Lord Lieut. of Berks and Oxon, to the Council. Returns the names of persons able to lend to his Majesty.

Oct. 30. Foxley. 63. Bishop Williams of Lincoln to Sir George Goring. Hopes Sir George will hear that the Bishop bears his crosses with patience and temper. As for the Duke, although questioning his justice in casting off an old servant unheard, he will not forget his former bounties. The Bishop never spoke a word or did an act with intent to prejudice him. In the consultation about the dissolution of the Spanish treaty, (which the Duke made the Bishop's sin against the Holy Ghost,) he differed from the Duke as to the best way to serve the Duke and save himself. The Duke refused to speak to him, or to answer any of his letters. When the Duke shall produce the Bishop's letters (of which he has spoken) to prove his falsehood, the world will be convinced that he suffers deservedly; in the meantime he is a kind of martyr. Must live upon 1,000 marks a year. Has served the King, since his father's death, at his own charges.

1625. VOL. VIII.

Oct. 30. Brooke House. 64. Jo. Dawson to Sec. Conway. Sends by Lord Brooke's Secretary a memorial of all the King's jewels in the custody of Lord Brooke, few of which seemed to be of worth; the best being in Lord Compton's custody for the King's own use and wearing. If the King makes choice of any of them, Sir Francis Gofton will fetch them out of the Tower. Incloses,

64. I. List of jewels remaining in the Queen's chest, with an appended list of jewels delivered to Lord Compton, [Master of the Robes,] on May 30, 1625, for the King's own use.

64. II. Similar list of jewels remaining in the old chest.

Oct. 30. Gore End Road, aboard the Happy Entrance. 65. Sir. Hen. Palmer to the same. On Monday last the prizes in his charge arrived in the Downs, and all save one went for London on Wednesday. Suggests the necessity in these stirring times of an addition to the one ship stationed in the Downs. The Dunkirk fleet had done great spoil upon the fishermen in the North.

Oct. 30. Plymouth. 66. Sir James Bagg to Nicholas. The two Hamburghers still stayed at Falmouth. Two of the Spanish Brazil fleet had been brought into the same port by the Dutch. The storm overtook the fleet in lat. 45°, but he cannot imagine that it did them any great hurt.

Oct. 30. Newark. 67. Diana Countess Dowager of Oxford to the Council. The Lords have required of her, the payment of the first entire subsidy; (6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*) The late Lord set over his whole estate for the payment of debts, so that she has neither lands nor goods, and only depends on the goodness of her parents.

Oct. 31. Ipswich. 68. Duke of Buckingham to Attorney General Heath. Capt. Pennington being employed in his Majesty's service at sea, the Duke at his entreaty recommends the expedition of the business of the rents in arrear for the assart lands, whereof the Captain has a lease for years.

Oct. 34. 69. Sir Robt. Karr to Sec. Conway. If any one in Sir Robert's absence should move the King about the business of setting up the royal arms in churches, he begs Sec. Conway to remind the King of his interest therein. Report that the Dunkirkers have landed at Londonderry.

Oct. 31. 70. Sec. Coke to the same. A clerk in the Court of Wards having brought to him divers grants of custodies of wards for the King's signature, he had sent the clerk to his Lordship.

Oct. 31. Plymouth. 71. Sir Ferdinando Gorges to the Council. Received their commands for setting forth his ship that day. Thought she had long before been at the place of rendezvous assigned to her. Had sent along the coast to find her, with instructions to the Captain to inform himself of the course held by the enemy, and thereof to give notice. General want of powder throughout the country.

1625. Vol. VIII.

Oct. 31. Penryn. 72. Richard Rickman to Sir Jas. Bagg, Vice Admiral of the South of Cornwall. A French ship had come into that harbour from the King of France to advertise that Lisbon is taken by the English fleet. Capt. Blook saw the letter from the King of France to Mons. Montmorency, read aboard the ship of Mons. de Menti. A free-booter has taken 5 Spanish prizes, but 2 have been rescued. [Copy.]

Oct. 31. 73. Another copy of the same letter.

Oct. 31. Audley End. 74. Thos. Earl of Suffolk to Sec. Conway. Sends the names of persons thought fit to lend money in the co. of Cambridge. The Suffolk returns are not all come in. They will amount to nearly 6,000*l.* All this is cheerfully done. In Dorsetshire there is some backwardness. The names of the Dep. Lieuts. are not returned, conceiving that they ought to be excused from contributing.

Oct. 31. East Retford. 75. Commissioners for Musters within the co. of Nottingham to the Council. They had mustered all the forces of the county, and commanded such arms and military provisions as were decayed to be supplied. They disarmed the recusants in 1612. The arms then taken from them and delivered to the sheriff are now old and unfit for use. They crave directions whether the recusants are to replace the same with new and serviceable arms.

Oct. 31. 76. Joes Jedschalc to Sir Robt. Pye. One thousand marks is far beyond his ability to lend. Part of his little estate is beyond seas, and part in other men's hands here, which presently to get in is altogether impossible, by reason of the sickness and removal of the term.

Oct. 31. 77. Paper by Sir Julius Cæsar, entitled "Concerning the private Counsell of the most high and mighty King of Great Britain, France, Scotland, Ireland, &c.," containing brief observations on the component parts of the Privy Council and the officers thereof.

Oct. 78. Paper in the handwriting of Sec. Coke on the component parts of the Privy Council, and the mode of their proceeding in the transaction of business.

Oct. 79. Fair copy of the preceding.

Oct. 80. Another copy of the same.

Oct. 81. Specification of the duties of the Clerk of the Council. [Copy.]

Oct. 82. Form of oath of the Clerk of the Council.

[Oct.] 83. Henry Viscount Rochford to the Council. He had sent up [John] Finch to them at Reading. Note of such things proved against him as are most material.

[Oct.] 84. Remembrances of Robt. Earl of Warwick as to the authorities, ordnance, and arrangements necessary for defence of Harwich and the county of Essex.

[Oct.?] 85. List of ships composing the fleet for the protection of the Narrow Seas; Capt. Pennington being Admiral in the Garland,

1625. Vol. VIII.

[Oct.?] Melchborne. 86. Oliver Earl of Bolingbroke, one of the Lord Lieutenants of co. Huntingdon to the Council. They had informed themselves of persons fit to lend money to his Majesty. The country very defective in resident persons of quality, much of it being possessed by citizens of London, and the greater part in the hands of under farmers. They inclose a schedule of names and sums. [The letter runs in the plural number as if it had been intended to be signed also by Viscount Mandeville, the other Lord Lieutenant.]

[Oct.?] 87. Petition of Rowland Woodward, formerly Secretary to Sir Henry Wotton, at Venice, to the King. Sets forth his sufferings from being assaulted by thieves in Champagne, and a promise of the late King to send the petitioner to Brussels as Mr. Trumbull's successor. That mission being at an end and Mr. Trumbull returned, the petitioner prays for a small pension.

[Oct.?] 88. Petition of Thos. Melville to the King. Having been for 5 years a Lieutenant under Capt. Hamilton in the Low Countries, in the pay of the King of Spain, he had with much difficulty returned to this country in obedience to the King's proclamation. Having quitted his entertainment of 40*s.* a month, and being destitute, he prays for employment in the King's service.

[Oct. ?] 89. Petition of Wm. Ambrose, Adam Morte, and others of co. Lancaster to the Council. Through misinformation they have been certified to be fit persons to lend money to the King; they are not able to lend any money at all.

[Oct.?] 90. Memoranda, in the handwriting of Sec. Conway, of business transacted in Council relating to a commission for Musters.

[Oct.?] 91. Another similar paper, principally containing brief memoranda of letters to be written by Sec. Conway.

[Oct.?] 92. Certificate of the names of recusants in co. Lancaster; with account of the arms taken from them.

[Oct.?] 93. Minute of a request, addressed to Lord ———, that on the resignation of John South, Professor of Greek, at Oxford, Henry Stringer, M.A., and Fellow of New College, might be appointed his successor.

[Oct.?] 94. Chart of the coast of Essex near Harwich and Landguard, with its bearings in relation to Dunkirk and the adjacent harbours.

[Oct.?] 95. Note in the handwriting of Sec. Coke on the allowances to be made to Lord Valentia as Master of the Ordnance to the Cadiz expedition.

VOL. IX. 1–17 NOVEMBER, 1625.

Nov. 1. Dover Castle. 1. Sir John Hippisley to the Council. The wine now challenged by the States Ambassador was bound for Ostend, and was stayed under an order from the Duke to stay all goods that belonged to the Archduchess. For stay of the Merchant Royal he had a like order; the money on board has been sent to the Mint; the goods shall be kept safe.

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. 2. Privy Seal directed to Francis Windebank, of Hurst and Okingham, Esquire, for the loan of 15*l.* [Printed.]

Nov. 2. Newcastle-upon-Tyne. 3. Mayor and Aldermen of Newcastle-upon-Tyne to Sec. Conway. They send information concerning the Dunkirk fleet received from masters of ships of Lynn and Lee. Inclose,

3. I. Informations of John Raven, John Albert, and John Heptinstall. Raven and Albert were boarded and plundered by the Dunkirkers. Heptinstall was chased by them, but got into Scarborough.

[Nov. 2.] 4. Minute of the contents of the informations above mentioned.

Nov. 2. Tottenham. 5. Sec. Coke to Sec. Conway. Sends a packet of intercepted letters written by a priest or Jesuit who had a strong party amongst the women. All diligence was being used in discharging the prizes. Two of them are to join two of the King's ships in fetching the Duke back from Holland.

Nov. 2. In Fulham parish. 6. Francis Van Ackere to Sir Robt. Pye. Is not any way able to advance the great sum of money solicited on a Privy Seal, being clean driven out of his trade and having had great losses.

Nov. 2. Richmond. 7. Sir Robt. Pye to the Council. Had received Privy Seals directed to certain merchant strangers. Inclosed a schedule containing their names, with a return of which of them sent or wrote excuses, and which could not be found. Daniel Godfroi was dead. No one gives any hopeful answer. Incloses,

7. I. The schedule before mentioned.

Nov. 2. Battersea. 8. Oliver Viscount Grandison to his nephew Sir Thos. Roe, Ambassador at Constantinople. An old infirmity has prevented his frequenting places of business. He has not been from his house these 4 months, nor been at Court, nor seen the King, nor the Duke. Wrote to the Duke on receipt of Roe's last letter, but by reason of some storms risen in the Parliament, and the Duke's subsequent journey to Plymouth, could not get an answer; resolution for Roe's longer stay at Constantinople is pleasing to the merchants here. Hears from the Court that Roe's negotiation is much applauded.

Nov. 2. Aboard the Anne Royal. 9. Sir Thos. Love to Nicholas. In the storm of the 12th Oct. they lost the Long Robert, with 175 men, 1 ketch, and all their long boats. Account of the capture of fort Puntal, and of the defences whereby the enemy prevented the ships from attacking Cadiz. They have put out to sea to look for the West India fleet. The army not fitted to stay out a winter journey. Ships leaky. Capture of three ships which came out of St. Lucar; they say they belong to Hamburgh and France. The ketches so old and leaky they must be sunk. Present order should be taken to dispose of such soldiers as come home.

Nov. 2. Aboard the Anne Royal. 10. Sir Thos. Love to Buckingham. Gives various other particulars respecting the expedition against Cadiz. It was resolved to send away some 12 or 14 of the coal ships with some 2,000 men, and the horse-ships. The greatest part of the sea and land men had neither will nor ability.

Nov. 2. 11. Ambrose Randolph to his father-in-law Thos. Wilson. He can get no money from his cousin Warder. Importunately requests assistance.

[Nov. 2.] 12. Thos. Wilson to Ambrose Randolph (in answer to the above). He had laboured as for his life to get money, but had failed. The best answer from the Lord Treasurer and Chancellor was, that when there was money he was one of the first that should have his part; but the King must be served first. The money for his land in Ireland is deferred.

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Warrant to pay to Dame Elizabeth Morton, widow of Sir Albertus Morton, 2,400*l.* for a diamond ring and a jewel bought of her by the King, and given to the Ambassadors from the King of Sweden and the Elector of Brandenburg. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 80.]

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Warrant to pay to George Sheires, Apothecary to the Household, such money as should be certified by the ordinary physicians to be due to him for physical provisions for the King's poor servants, not exceeding 60*l.* per ann. [Ibid., No. 81.]

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Warrant to allow the charges of removing the receipt of Exchequer from Richmond to Reading. [Ibid., No. 82.]

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Warrant for continuing to Eleanor Felton, widow of Thos. Felton, for her life, a pension of 100*l.* per annum, granted by his late Majesty in respect of her husband's service. [Ibid., No. 83.]

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Grant of protection to Edward Roy, of Weymouth, for six months after the expiration of a protection granted in June last. [Ibid., No. 84.]

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Grant to Sir John Coke of the office of one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State during pleasure, with the fee of 100*l.* per annum during his life. [Ibid., No. 85.]

Nov. 2. Hampton Court. Warrant to pay to Sir John Coke, Secretary of State, 700*l.* per annum during pleasure, for secret services. [Ibid., No. 86.]

Nov. 3. Hampton Court. 13. Privy Seal directed to Sir Walter Covert for the loan to the King of 20*l.*, to be repaid within 18 months. [Printed.]

[Nov. 3.] 14. Petition of Sir Walter Covert to the Council. Is sorry that those who gave his name for the loan did not look into his estate, which is nothing, but at the pleasure of his father and uncle. If his person or life may do his Majesty service, he shall ever be ready to render them.

Nov. 3. From the sea in 36 degrees. 15. Sir George Blundell to Buckingham. Loss of the King's horses in the great storm. The Earl of Essex was not well seconded by his own squadron in the attack on Puntal Castle. Sir John Chidley followed him close. The Captain of that castle was forced to give it up by his men; without it they could never have retired to their ships. They have been for six days looking for the fleet; but he assures himself that they have warning. Great wrong done to the King and his service by pretending the ships were fit to go to sea; they were leaky and rotten, and every man cries out for victuals. Some drink beverage of cider that stinks worse than carrion, and have no other drink. They have been much wronged and abased. No provision for the horses. The miseries in sea service are not to be reckoned when a man's provisions pass through such hands. Beseeches that he may have the keeping of a park, to end his days in quiet. Lord Cromwell is doubly grieved that the Duke took so ill some words he spake to him. Lord Cromwell has no friend to trust to but his Grace, under whom he expected to have risen in the world.

Nov. 3. Plymouth. 16 Sir Jas. Bagg to [Nicholas]. Rosekimer and White, Captains of the ships which stayed behind, went off to sea seven days after the fleet. Thanks and professions of affection.

Nov. 3. Hampton Court. 17. Articles set down by the Council for such merchants as shall have leave from the Lord Admiral to repair to the seas against the subjects of the King of Spain. [This paper has been subsequently altered by Nicholas, to suit the case of letters of marque against the subjects of the French king, as well as against those of the King of Spain.]

[Nov. 3.] 18. Dep. Lieuts. of Northamptonshire to the Council. Having received directions to search recusants' houses for arms, on the last day of October they repaired to the house of Mrs. Elizabeth Vaux, of Boughton, where they found Lord Vaux and his brother William Vaux. They imparted their business, and searched the house. In the course of which William Vaux declared that they could not be worse dealt withal, unless they should cut their throats, and Lord Vaux assaulted Mr. Knightley and a servant of his. All which is submitted to the Council.

Nov. 3. Hampton Court. Commission to the Lord Keeper, Lord Treasurer, the Judges, and the Attorney and Solicitor General, to see the laws against Popish recusants put in execution according to the petition of the Parliament; with a declaration of the King's pleasure that all fines and forfeitures of recusants' goods be set apart for certain specified public services. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 87.]

1625. Vol. IX.

Nov. 3. Hampton Court. Grant to Sir Edward Cecil of the dignities of Baron Cecil of Putney, and Viscount Wimbledon of Wimbledon, and to the heirs male of his body. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 88.]

Nov. 4. Adisham. 19. Dr. Walter Balcanquall, Dean of Rochester, to Sec. Conway. He has been very much laboured against the admission of Mr. Lorkin, but on Lord Conway's recommendation will be absolutely for him. Prays to be remembered for the deanery of Westminster if there be a probability of a vacancy.

Nov. 4. Lichfield. 20. Dep. Lieuts. of Staffordshire to the Council. The directions for disarming recusants came so slowly, that they were divulged before they were received; the writers, therefore, presumed that if the recusants had any arms (as, they believed, some of them were well stored withal), they would surely have removed them, and the search would have produced nothing but scorn. When they shall have an effectual opportunity, they will not fail to express their diligence.

Nov. 4. Harwich. 21. Duke of Buckingham to Sec. Conway. Has received information of Sir Thos. Harris, wherein he desires to be satisfied, and therefore prays Lord Conway to use some means to defer Sir Thos.'s appointment as Chief Justice of Wales until the Duke's return.

Nov. 4. Hampton Court. 22. Sir Benj. Rudyerd to [Sir Francis Nethersole]. The Lord Chamberlain had received advertisment of the English fleet being all safe about the North Cape. News of what they had done was expected every day. The design was thought to be on St. Lucar, which. if taken, was to be held. Effects of the storm on the English and Dutch fleets; and the sailing of the Dunkirk fleet northward. Business restrained in one hand; that of Lord Conway. Lord Clanrickard appointed to go to Connaught to keep that country in order. Appointment of Mr. Shilton, one of the Duke's Counsel, as Solicitor General. The King has ordered the monthly and other payments of recusants to be received and reserved for the defence of the kingdom.

Nov. 4. Bishop's Waltham. 23. Bishop Andrewes of Winchester to Sec. Conway. Nothing has been done in the matter of the Confessorship [of the Household] but with the King's knowledge. Mr. Beckett, the present Confessor, who was appointed by Bishop Mountague, has been labouring under palsy for some years past. The King signified that he would have Mr. Beckett continue in his place for life, whereupon he was orderly sworn by Bishop Andrewes. This it was likely his Majesty did not call to remembrance. His memory being informed, his pleasure shall be fulfilled.

Nov. 4. Lichfield. 24. Dep. Lieuts. of Staffordshire to the Council. They gave notice to the gentlemen who are to show horse and arms, and appointed the 10th October for a meeting; but Sir Thos. Whorwood, Richard Levison, Sir Roland Egerton, and Richard Mosely, made default.

Nov. 4. Aboard the Great Neptune. 25. Capt. Edward Gyles to Sec. Conway. Had arrived in the Downs with 3 prizes. Solicits Conway to give directions for bringing them to London, as Sir Henry Palmer, by order of Buckingham, required Gyles to go away with him to the Brill.

Nov. 4. Hampton Court. 26. Jo. Woodford to Sir Francis Nethersole, Secretary to the Queen of Bohemia. He will have heard of the tempest, and the consequent failure of the design against the Dunkirkers in their own harbour. They are since out, and have committed great spoils among the fishermen. It is presumed their main design is against Ireland. Order is sent to Scotland to furnish relief; and it is in consultation to send the Earl of Clanrickard to Ireland with supplies. The fleet which is to transport the Duke of Buckingham is to pursue them wherever they shall be found. Change in the custody of the Great Seal. Privy Seals are flying abroad into all counties. London itself is not spared. No news yet from the fleet. Lord Conway is sick. The Lords are going to the term at Reading. Deaths in London last week 357, of the plague 89.

Nov. 4. Hampton Court. Warrant to license the importation, free of impost, of 150 tons of French wines, over and above 1,050 tons allowed for the yearly expense and provision of Privy Councillors, Ambassadors, and Officers of State; and in consideration thereof to abate 315*l.* out of the yearly rent paid by the farmers of the customs of the said wines. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 89.]

Nov. 5. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sir Dudley Carleton. Care shall be taken of the money for which he stands engaged. The Duke of Buckingham being there supplies all advertisements. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 234.]

Nov. 5. Hampton Court. Warrant to Sir Allen Apsley, Sir John Wolstenholme, Sir Robert Pye, and the rest of the Commissioners for the prizes brought from Plymouth, to pay to Philip Burlamachi the sum of 20,000*l.*, in part of 70,000*l.* to be employed in the King's service in the Low Countries. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 90.]

Nov. 6. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to the Lord Keeper. On behalf of Lawrence Lownes to have the collection of monies upon fineable writs. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 234.]

Nov. 6. London. 27. Matthew de Quester [to Sec. Conway]. Had received intelligence from Marseilles, that the Genoese throughout France are imprisoned, and that great wars with all Italy were likely to ensue.

Nov. 7. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sir Henry Marten. Acquaints him with the instances made by the Ambassadors of France and the Low Countries for the ships stayed here, and prays him to send such reasons as may be given to the Ambassadors for a present answer. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 234.]

Nov. 7. Hampton Court. The same to Sec. Coke. To the same purpose touching the Ambassadors' complaints. The estimate for the second fleet, and the warrants for Ireland are expected. The directions for furnishing the King's stores, and making ordnance are approved. The propositions he mentions will be taken into consideration when he shall offer them. His Majesty will take notice of the backwardness of the East India Merchants, and will allow the changing of the Spanish monies. Doubt of the Dunkirkers attempting upon Ireland. Sends back the intercepted letters, and a letter from Sir Robert Lee for saving Sir Robert Jenkinson from being Sheriff. [Minute, ibid.]

1625. VOL. IX.

Nov. 7. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sir Robert Lee. Giving him an account of the endeavours used for Sir Robert Jenkinson. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 234.]

Nov. 7. Hampton Court. Warrant to pay to Sir William Uvedale, Treasurer of the Chamber, 944*l.* per annum, for annuities granted by the King, when Prince of Wales, to his musicians. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 91.]

Nov. 7. Adisham. 28. Dr. Walter Balcanquall to Sec. Conway. Entreats his mediation with the Duke for the Deanery of Westminster if the Bishop of Lincoln be removed. Lord Carlisle will join in any course which may advance Balcanquall's suit.

Nov. 8. Hampton Court. 29. Sec. Conway to the Council. Thought it his duty to open an inclosed packet directed to their Lordships, lest it might require present directions for preparation or prevention. That is not the case, but it relates to an exorbitant insolency committed upon a gentleman of right noble family whilst in the service of the King, to which he draws attention. [The circumstance alluded to is perhaps that mentioned in the letter of the Dep. Lieuts. of Northamptonshire, 1625, Nov. 3.]

Nov. 8. Minute of the above letter. [Conway's Letter Book, p. 234.]

Nov. 8. Aboard the Anne Royal. 30. Edward Viscount Wimbledon, but still writing as Sir Edward Cecil, to [Buckingham]. Despatch containing full report of the proceedings of the expeditionary fleet. Losses in the great storm; danger of the Anne Royal; great care of Sir Thos. Love; dispersal of the fleet. Council of war determined that St. Lucar was too difficult of access to be attacked. Great strength of Cadiz. Attack of the fort of Puntal. Cowardice of the colliers whom it was necessary to force upon the service with threatening and cudgelling. Loss of Capt. Raymond, Sir John Bruce, and Capt. Bromicham. Surrender of the castle. Readiness and sufficiency of the Dutch. Disorder occasioned by the capture of 600 tons of wine. Inhumanities practised by the Spaniards on the stragglers. Uselessness of the pressed landsmen. Little loss in getting the men aboard. Determined by Council to send back ships with the sick and four prizes. Purpose to continue on the coast as long as they can. The ships leaky and foul, and the men unhealthy.

Nov. 8. 31. Relation by Edw. Holland, High Sheriff of Lancashire, of such things as had happened from Sir Thos. Gerard's committal to custody up to the time of his delivery to the Lieut. of the Tower.

Nov. 8. Bray. 32. Sir Henry Marten to Sec. Conway. The Ambassadors of France and Holland are earnest to stay the disposal of the prizes. It is intended to land, inventory, and appraise the goods, and hold a court at Maidenhead to adjudicate upon claims. Mr. Wyan, Proctor for the King and the Duke, has good hope to establish their interest.

Nov. 9. 33. Muster roll of the garrison of the castle of Sandgate for the year ending Michaelmas 1625.

1625. Vol IX.

Nov. 9. Plymouth. 34. John Cawse and Nathaniel Apslyn to Sec. Coke. They had taken a view of the River Tamar, commonly called the river of Saltash; and send a draught of the same, with an estimate for a dock.

Nov. 9. Chatham Dock 35. Joshua Downing to [Nicholas]. Symon Nichols being disabled from taking charge of the Nonsuch by sickness, Capt. Edw. Christian had been appointed Captain by the Duke. She has only 85 men aboard and some beer, but no other victuals. The ship stays for a crew and provisions.

Nov. 9. Aboard the Rainbow. 36. Sir Edward Conway to Sec. Coke. He hoped the Plate fleet, for which they were now lying by, would make their voyage prosperous; for the land, or looking into the Spanish ports, they had given it over.

Nov. 9. Hampton Court. 37. Privy Seal directed to Thos. Marshe, of East Langdon, for the loan of 10*l.*; with a receipt for that amount from Sir Dudley Digges, dated Dec. 20.

Nov. 9. On shipboard. 38. Sir Francis Willoughby to Sec. Conway. Hopes the conclusion of the business will be happier than the beginning. Relates the circumstances of the storm, the capture of Puntal, and the retreat, as detailed in previous letters. If the business succeeded not better than it had done, in lieu as they hoped of all returning rich, they should be beggars.

Nov. 9. Aboard the Anne Royal. 39. Edward Viscount Wimbledon to the same. Recounts the circumstances of the Cadiz expedition. The great storm; reunion of the fleet; arrival off Cadiz; attack of the fort and its surrender. Sir Samuel Argoll reconnoitred the town, but found it strongly fortified, and the Spanish fleet inaccessible. Withdrawal of the troops and fleet, with intention to waylay the Plate fleet on its return home. Sends home 4 prizes. The landsmen so ill exercised that they killed more of their own men than of the enemy. The sickness so great that there are not seamen enough to keep the watches. The ships leaky. Want of a competent number of pinnaces, which in Queen Elizabeth's time were always furnished, but now, to save charges, they have ketches which men are afraid to go in. Their beverage of an ill quality, and victual growing short. He anticipated all these difficulties and wants before setting out, but being commanded by the Duke, resolved to undertake anything. Sends his letter by the Rainbow, Sir John Chidley, which returns leaky.

Nov. 10. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sec. Coke. The great care the Duke has of the state of Ireland from the danger of attempts there by the Dunkirkers. We must have a strength of shipping abroad, else they will multiply loss and contempt upon us. The great hazard the protestant party in France is in. The necessity of supporting Soubise and his men; recommends seriously the furnishing them with one month's entertainment more. The King will not give Soubise commissions to go to sea. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 235].

Nov. 10. Reading. 41. Attorney General Heath to Sec. Conway. Sir Thos. Harris is a man of so mean descent, and of so ill report, that it would give much discontentment if he were appointed Chief Justice of Chester. The President of Wales [Earl of Northampton] is coming to Court, and may press for one whom the Duke would not like.

Nov. 10. York. 42. Emanuel Lord Scroope to Buckingham. He wrote to the principal gentlemen throughout his Lieutenancy to certify names for the loan; out of thirty only seven have returned certificates, the rest making excuses. Nov. 10. 45. Henry Earl of Kent and Thos. Lord Wentworth, Lord Lieuts. of Bedfordshire, to the Council. They had made search for martial munitions amongst the recusants, but had found only ordinary weapons convenient for the guard of their houses, which they have left in their custody. They have forborne to muster the Trained Bands on account of the infection, which daily increases.

Nov. 10. 46. The same to the same. They send the names and dwelling-places of persons in the co. of Bedford of ability to furnish money on loan, with the sums they can lend.

1625. Vol. IX.

Nov. 10. Newelm Lodge. 47. Wm. Viscount Wallingford to the Council. The difference and possession-keeping between Sir Peter Vanlore and Sir Richard Lydall had been a great trouble to that part of the country. Sir Richard is desperate, and the possession will be worth nothing, no man daring to rent the lands which lie waste. Lord Wallingford suggests that Sir Richard should be heard by the Council or some public Court.

Nov. 11. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Attorney General Heath. Concerning Sir Thomas Harris. The Earl of Northampton will forbear presenting any names to the King for the election of the Chief Justice of Chester till the Duke return. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 235.]

Nov 11. Tottenham. 49. Sec. Coke to Sec. Conway. The sum given to Mons. Soubise at Plymouth, for one month's entertainment for his men, was 900*l.*; which it is hoped the Lord Treasurer may supply. On coming to Court he will propound a feasible means to fetch home our ships from the French, and deliver Rochelle. He has also a plan to propose how the fort lately raised at Dunkirk may be destroyed by engines, to be made by Mr. Burrell and put into execution by Capt. Bert; wishes that his Majesty should see these gentlemen. The former will also show him the models of the new ships about to be built. If the account of the Dunkirkers from Newcastle be true, he may be confident they cannot land 2,000 men in Ireland.

Nov. 11. 50. "Note of all the parishes in Sir John Lambe's division, within the Archdeaconry of Leicester, as also of the incumbents, and which of them have paid, and how much, to his Majesty's benevolence, as also such as have not paid;" with a memorandum underwritten, dated "Foxleys," and signed "Willm. Vane and Sir Marmaduke Darrell, Cofferers of the Household, for the diet and expenses of the Marquis de Blainville, Ambassador Extraordinary from France, with such further sum as should be needful. Nov. 14. Woburn. 57. Francis Lord Russell to the Council. Reports the execution of commands respecting Musters and training in co. Devon. Urges the necessity for a supply of powder. A lady coming daily to see them, was sent home after supper. The coach making a great noise upon the stones gave rise to the report.

Harwich is a tempting harbour for an enemy, and an army can hardly be well governed by two Generals.

Nov. 15. Attleburgh. 63. The same to Sec. Conway. Apprises him of the preceding letter, and prays him to put to his helping hand that the Earl's reputation now a-bleeding may be rectified. On that occurrence the Bishop prevailed on Mr. Cary to accept of the next prebend in Lincoln, that out of this living the Bishop might provide for one or two of the many scholars who by his removal were hopeless and destitute. The ship cast away near Hythe is a Hamburgher. Van Malle is waiting for a passage, but all our men are grown cowards. A person apprehended who will not take the oath of allegiance; is thought to be a priest. A brabbling business fallen out between Mr. Wade, the late Mayor of Dover, and Mr. Reading, their preacher. On the 17th inst., they went to Sir Richard Fleetwood, who showed them his arms, but excepted against their commission, alleging that he was no recusant. They request information whom they should take for convicted recusants, and who may be justly suspected. Notwithstanding Preston, the priest, and the Barclays, father and son, defended the taking the oath of allegiance, they fear some of those who have taken it will now refuse it. As they are the only Dep. Lieuts. for Staffordshire, and live 20 miles apart, they entreat they may be allowed to act in this matter separately.

Such a disgrace never before happened to a family that has preserved their arms to do service to their country. Beseeches that they may rather sell the arms towards payment of their debts, which have been increased by attending the King and Queen at Dover.

Nov. 25. Chelsea. 28. Dr. John Donne, Dean of St. Paul's, to [Sir Thos. Roe, Ambassador at Constantinople]. Sir Thos. had mentioned the dying of 2,000 a day at Constantinople. "Your number was so far attempted by us, that in the city of London, and in a mile compass, I believe there died 1,000 a day. The citizens fled away as out of a house on fire, and stuffed their pockets with their best ware, and threw themselves into the highways, and were not received so much as into barns, and perished so, some of them, with more money about them than would have bought the village where they died. A Justice of Peace told me of one that died so with 1,400*l.* about him." Donne scattered his family and removed to Chelsea, after which the infection multiplied so fast, "that it was no good manners to go to any other place." Before the Seal was removed from the Bishop of Lincoln, for ten days together there was speech that Roe was Secretary. There are abundant examples of particular persons advanced by Buckingham; but some having proved unthankful, Donne cannot find any example of the Duke's leaving such persons, in his just displeasure, worse than he found them. He has satisfied himself by withdrawing the additions which he had pinned upon them. The infection has made Chelsea so infamous, that Donne goes not to Court. During the summer, he had reviewed and written out 80 of his sermons, which he hopes will be of use to his son.

Reports information received respecting preparations making in Flanders for the invasion of England, also the stay of a vessel, said to be a Dunkirker bound for Spain, but thought to be bound for Dunkirk. The two Holland men-of-war stationed in the Downs carried over Mr. Rimes to the Duke. State of Sandgate Castle.

Dec. 2. [Dover Castle.] 8. The same to Sec. Coke. Informs him of the preparations making in Flanders for the invasion of England, and other circumstances mentioned in the preceding letters to Lord Conway and the Council. [Abstract.]

Dec. 2. Hartley Waspail. 9. Wm. Pitt to Sir William Becher. On his return from Reading, he was saluted by a Privy Seal for the loan of 50*l.*, a sum immoderate for his estate. Has petitioned to be excused, and trusts Sir Wm. will take charge of his petition. By his services on commissions for the late King, he saved him at least 150,000*l.*, and never yet received any allowance, even for his expenses, which were above 2,000 marks.

Dec. 2. Burghley. 10. Francis Earl of Rutland to Sec. Conway. Begs Lord Conway to excuse him to the King for not having attended his Majesty on the last of November, to give account of the horse in Lincolnshire. It is now very bad, but he hopes will be complete by the spring. He forgot the day, being occupied with his daughter [the Duchess of Buckingham] by reason of her Lord's absence. If his Majesty will not forgive him, he will pray to "sweet Jesus" to make him a father of many children, and then he will pardon his faithful servant.

Dec. 2. Theobalds. 11. James Earl of Carlisle to the same His Majesty exceedingly approved of his advice. He is to write in the King's name to the French Vice-Admiral, requiring him to desist from his threats against the ships of Mons. Soubise, or the King will resent the same as if offered to his natural subjects; he is also to direct the Dep. Lieuts. to draw the Trained Bands down to Fowey.

Dec. 2. 12. Copy of the preceding.

Dec. 2. 13. Petition of Commissioners for repair of sea-breaches between Great Yarmouth and Happisburgh, in Norfolk, to the Council; all the strong and costly works of former Commissioners were overthrown by extraordinary tides in February last, and 1,120 rods in length of substantial old banks entirely demolished. The Commissioners having summoned a jury, and taken the advice of Mr. Briggs, Public Reader of Mathematics in Oxford, as to the level, they now complain of the decision of the jury, and solicit the assistance of the Council.

Dec. 3. 14. Sir John Lytcott and Francis Drake to the Council. Certify the circumstances which occurred in their search for arms in the houses of Sir Edmund Lenthall not far from Fair Oak, and in that of John Good of Malden.

Dec. 3. Dover Castle. 15. Sir John Hippisley to Sec. Conway. Negligence of Post-masters between London and Dover. Alarm of the preparations at Dunkirk still increases. Has sent to the Governor of Calais to give notice of what he hears. With reference to the complaint of an Ambassador against Sir John, he desires to know the Ambassador's informant. The ships were stayed because they were freighted for Dunkirk.

Dec. 3. Newark. 16. Mary Lady Leeke to the same The Lord Deincourt had manifested his utmost malice against her, by imprinting into the King's heart a most false and unjust opinion of her. Lord Deincourt is a disobedient and violent son. His father, Sir Francis Leeke, will not allow him to come into his sight, unless he pays the money which he detains, and which is Sir Francis's maintenance. Protests her own innocency towards them all. Incloses,

16. I. The King to the Aldermen of Newark, Sir George Manners and others; to procure Lord Deincourt, his wife and children, access to Sir Francis Leeke, father of Lord Deincourt, who by reason of his great age, kept his house, and was under the control of his then wife. 1625, Nov. 19. [Copy.]

16. II. Report of the violent conduct of Lord Deincourt towards his father.

1625. VOL. XI.

Dec. 3. Newark. 17. Eliza Countess of Exeter to Sec. Conway. The worthiness of his kinswoman, the Lady Leeke, and the infinite misery of her fortune for 20 years past, emboldens the Countess to make a warm appeal to Conway to assist her against the unsufferable wrongs inflicted upon her by her son-in-law, Lord Deincourt. The rent which he withholds from his father is the main substance reserved by the old Knight for the maintenance of himself, his family, wife, and two other sons. This insatiable Lord boasts that he will have all, even the few goods Lord Conway's cousin hath spun up and gotten together.

Dec. 3. 18. Wm. Earl of Exeter to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain. Details the circumstances of the unfilial conduct of Lord Deincourt, and moves Lord Pembroke neither to allow the King to be abused, nor himself to accept the protection of so dishonourable a cause.

Dec. 3. Totenenham. 19. Sec. Coke to Sec. Conway. Went that morning to his Majesty, at Theobalds, and acquainted him with the relation of Bullock, and the order taken to prevent an attack upon Mons. Soubise's ships. One of the letters in cipher found in the Spanish Agent's packets, sent to Mr. Philips, who used to decipher letters in Queen Elizabeth's time, to be deciphered; he is in the King's Bench. The King of Denmark has taken 80 barrels of powder out of English ships at Elsinore. That King should be entreated to make stay of all warlike provision for Spain or Flanders. Letters received from Sir John Hippisley respecting the meditated attempt of the Dunkirkers. It seems incredible at this time of the year, but it is wisdom to provide against the worst. State of the fleet ordered for the Downs, and of Dover Castle. Bullock's prize ordered to be brought from Plymouth to London. By one of the post letters, it appears that Lewis Holbroke has been sent for to Calais by a merchant of Antwerp, to communicate on matters of importance, and to receive two pearls of value for sale in this country. His letter shall be sent to him, and his return be watched.

Dec. 4. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sir Lewes Lewkenor. To come presently to the Lords. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 239.]

Dec. 4. Whitehall. 20. Order of Council upon certain exceptions taken by Sir Edward Coke, as High Sheriff of co. Buckingham, to the High Sheriff's oath. The exceptions had been referred by the Council to the Judges, and the order was made on their report. A passage relating to the extirpation of Lollardies and heresies was ordered to be ever after left out of the oath. [Copy.]

Dec. 5. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Capt. John Bonython. Concerning the securing the refuged ships from violence. Approves the drawing the St. John up to shore, and the letter written by the Dep. Lieuts. to the Vice-Admiral, drawing down the Trained Forces, if there be cause, and requiring the exertions thereof. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 239.]

Dec. 5. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sir James Bagg. To advertise presently any news that shall come from the fleet. To certify why Bullock brought no letters. When any ships come thither to stay them till order, and certify what they are, and how furnished. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 239.]

Dec. 5. 21. Sir Geo. More, one of the collectors of the loan in co. Surrey, to the Council. Had received 300*l.*, which he had sent to the Exchequer. Incloses,

21. I. Names of those to whom Privy Seals were improperly directed, and of those who excused themselves on the ground of disability.

Dec. 5. 22. Journal of the Swiftsure, one of the ships engaged in the expedition against Cadiz, Sir Samuel Argoll being Captain, and having on board Robert Earl of Essex, Vice Admiral of the fleet, and Colonel General of the land forces, from October 1 to the ship's return to Falmouth on December 5. [Various instructions and letters addressed to the Earl of Essex are entered in this journal.]

Dec. 6. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Francis Earl of Rutland. His Majesty accepts his account of the Musters, and recommends the perfecting of that work. Approves well his being at Burghley. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 239.]

Dec. 6. 23. Sir Heneage Finch, Recorder of London, to Sec. Conway. Lord Grey was willing to have paid in the money due from him on delivery of his statute; but as the statute does not appear to be in Lord Conway's hands, Lord Grey prefers now to stay till the day of payment.

Dec. 6. Tottenham. 24. Sec. Coke to the same. Not being able to attend the Council as requested, being engaged in the examination of papers, in bulk more than a strong man can carry on his back, concerning the prize goods, he states his opinion on the question of setting free the making of powder, and breaking the contract with Mr. Evelyn. He was favourable to the maintenance of a restraint on the manufacture; but urged the propriety of increasing the supply of saltpetre by compelling ships homeward bound to bring saltpetre as ballast.

Dec. 6. [Dover Castle. 25. Sir John Hippisley to the same. The Archduchess, on Saturday se'nnight, proclaimed war against England by sound of of drum. Three Scottish ships had been taken, so that if ships were not ordered to lie to and again in the Narrow Seas, there would be no trading. The Admiral and one or two more had come out of Dunkirk. Sir Wm. St. Ravie had been lamed by the kick of a horse.

Dec. 6. Sarum. 26. John Davenant Bishop of Salisbury to the Council. Reports the circumstances of a search for arms in the houses of Lord Arundel of Wardour, and the Earl of Castlehaven. Incloses,

26. I. Certificate of the arms removed from Wardour Castle and of those observed in the house of the Earl of Castlehaven, but not removed, under circumstances stated in the letter.

1625. Vol. XI.

Dec. 6. Nonsuch. 27. Geo. Lord Carew, Master General of the Ordnance, to the Council. Being prevented by ill health from attending the Council, he writes his opinion on the question of dissolving the contract with Mr. Evelyn, and permitting a free manufacture of gunpowder. He suggests ways of increasing the supply of saltpetre, especially from Ireland, in which country it had been the wisdom of former times to keep the manufacture of powder from the people.

Dec. 6. Nonsuch. 28. The same to Sec. Coke. He had written to the Council on the subject of dissolving the contract with Mr. Evelyn. Hooker, his messenger, will show the letter to Sec. Coke before presenting it to their Lordships.

Dec. 6. [Plymouth.] 29. Sir James Bagg [to Sec. Conway?]. Two ships had arrived from the fleet with many soldiers, most of them sick. It was conceived that the whole fleet intends a speedy return. The Rochellers had come from Fowey to Plymouth. The Dutch ships at Falmouth, in the service of the French, had been recalled, whereupon three of the Rochelle ships had gone to Falmouth to bring away the St. John. [Minute.]

Dec. 6. [Plymouth.] 30. The same to the same. The Earl of Essex, with two colliers, arrived on the 5th at Falmouth, and on the 6th at Plymouth, intending to go to the Court the next morning. He says the Swiftsure has not 40 serviceable men, so that she cannot come out of Falmouth without a supply. [Minute.]

Dec. 6. Hampton Court. 31. Warrant to Sir Wm. Uvedale, Treasurer of the Chamber, for payment of John Pence, who brought a packet of letters from Henry de Vic, attending the King's affairs at the Court of France. [Draft.]

Dec. 7. Hampton Court. 32. Sir Benjamin Rudyerd to Sir Francis Nethersole. The Duke arrived that evening, and the Earl of Essex an hour after. Want of pickaxes to begin any siege works, and of victuals to continue them, had driven the expedition home. They had provoked a powerful enemy without weakening him, and discouraged their own party by this unadvised miscarriage. The fleet was nothing inferior to that of '88. The Spanish Agent had taken a civil leave of his Majesty. On Monday the King would go to Windsor to install the new Knights of the Garter, The Queen stayed behind, and both would remain at Hampton until Christmas.

Dec. 7. Tower of London. 33. Commissioners of the Navy to Sec. Coke. Send their opinion respecting the dissolving the contract for making powder and abating the weight of iron ordnance. John Browne, the founder, will not be able to complete his contract without an advance of 1,000*l.*

Dec. 7. Tottenham. 34. Sec. Coke to Sec. Conway. Sends the opinion of the Commissioners of the Navy mentioned in the preceding letter. On the second point, respecting iron ordnance, Coke points out the advantage of the substitution in the manufacture of cannon of iron for brass. He suggests that order should be given for care of the soldiers of the fleet on their arrival: also, that when the whole fleet has returned, the soldiers should be kept in garrison in Falmouth and Plymouth ready for service on the first opening of the year. The Parliament on consideration of this ready army will be the more willing to contribute.

Dec. 8. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sec. Coke. His excuse made. His advice swayed the resolution for keeping up the contract for powder. The Duke of Buckingham has sent home Sir Henry Palmer, and the other ships, on news that six Dunkirkers are abroad to meet with our Bordeaux merchants, to prosecute the design he knows of. Solicitation for money for the gun founder. Order given for disposing of the soldiers as they come home, and for securing Soubise's ships. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 239.]

Dec. 8. Hampton Court. The same to Captain Bonython. Sends a copy of the French Ambassador's complaint against him, and requires a particularly exact answer thereunto, confirming and clearing the same by examinations, certificates, &c. [Minute, ibid., p. 240.]

Dec. 8. Hampton Court. The same to Archbishop Abbot. Concerning the appointing none but civilians to be Chancellors of Dioceses. That his Lordship should displace a divine now appointed by the Bishop of Hereford, and place a civilian in his room, to which Dr. Reeves is specially recommended. [Minute, ibid.]

Dec. 8. Bishop's Waltham. 35. Bishop Andrewes of Winchester to the Council. Being grievously afflicted in health, he was unable to execute their instructions for taking into his custody the arms of the Marquis of Winchester and his son the Lord St. John. He returns the King's letters addressed to them, and suggests that they should be sent to some other person.

Dec. 8. Hampton Court. 36. The Council to Robert Sheppard, one of the Messengers of the Chamber. Warrant to bring Sir Edmund Lenthall, Sir Anthony Buggs, and Francis Plume before the Council.

Dec. 8. Bangor. 37. Lewis Bayly Bishop of Bangor to the King. About August last a ship sounded the North East coast of Anglesea, and at the same time Hugh Owen Gwenwynog returned for a short period very gallant and full of gold. The Roman Catholics flocked to him, and since then several of them have sold all they had and gone after him. The same party are audacious, and a stranger has lately surveyed the havens. The arms and powder at Beaumaris and Carnarvon are totally unserviceable, and 100 men would overrun the Isle of Anglesea. The Dep. Lieuts. and Justices abuse their authority to favour their friends, and the country stands in the greatest danger. One of the King's ships would be a great protection.

Dec. 8. 38. Charles Earl of Nottingham to the Council. Sends certificate of the names of recusants in co. Surrey, from whom arms have been taken. Incloses, 38. 1. The certificate before mentioned.

1625. Vol. XI.

Dec. 8. Chichester. 39. George Carleton Bishop of Chichester to the Council. Reports his fulfilment of the Council's order that he should wait upon Viscount Montagu and receive his arms. Incloses,

39. I. Inventory of arms received from Viscount Montagu.

Dec. 8. Cambridge. 40. The Vice Chancellor and Senate of Cambridge to Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey. Thank him for assistance in the determination of a cause relating to an infringement by certain London booksellers [the Stationers' Company] of the privilege of printing granted to the University by Henry VIII. [Lat.]

Dec. 8. Office of the Ordnance. 41. Francis Morice to Sec. Coke. John Browne, the King's founder of iron ordnance, having been ordered to cast 300 pieces of ordnance for 30 Newcastle ships, the writer had given him hope of an imprest of 1,000*l.* to be paid out of a Privy Seal for 10,348*l.* 7*s.*, for furnishing those ships; and also that he should have payment of the remainder of his account on delivery of the ordnance. The writer sends Browne to Secretary Coke with solicitations that he would further the service by procuring imprests for Browne, and also for Smith the carpenter.

Dec. 9. Hendon. 42. Lord Chief Justice Crewe to the Council. The examinations concerning Sir Thos. Gerard, Joan Jaques, Thos. Helme, and the conventicle of popish recusants at an alehouse in Wharmer Forest, having been sent to him by the Council with directions to certify his opinion, he comments thereon fully, and concludes that he dare not advise any use of them in a court of justice.

Dec. 9. Plymouth. 43. Sir James Bagg to Sec. Conway. Complains of the slowness of the posts, and the miscarriage of letters. No tidings of Captain Chidley; conceives that he and his consort ships may have put into Ireland. The William, of London, arrived at Dartmouth from the fleet, all well. Suggests that if this army of sea and land forces is to be quartered at and near Plymouth, some both of ships and men should be sent for Dartmouth, Fowey, and Falmouth.

Dec. 9. Plymouth. 44. Mayor of Plymouth to the Council. Sends examination of a Spaniard who had come into Plymouth, in a ship, which he calls the Edward and John of Colchester: the ship had been stayed, and the Spaniard committed to prison. One hundred sick soldiers had arrived at Plymouth, and many hundreds more were daily expected. Beseeches that some course may be taken for their relief. He had provided houses and firing for those who have already landed, and clothes, without which they would have perished. Sir Jas. Bagg had advanced 20*l.* to provide them with food. Incloses,

44. I. Examination of Paio Dreeges de Paz respecting his past life, a letter which he had written since his arrival in England, and the ownership of the goods in the Edward and John. 1625, Dec. 5.

44. II. Further examination of the same person, now termed Pius Roger de Paz, relative to the ownership of the goods in his ship. 1625, Dec. 9.

1625. VOL. XI.

44. III. Letter from the same person to Domingo Pereira, being the letter alluded to in inclosure No. I. 1625, Dec. $\frac{5}{14}$. Spanish.

Dec. 11. Kinsale. 48. Sir Thos. Love to Sec. Conway. Gives account of the expedition to Cadiz. They plyed 20 days, but could hear no news of the West India fleet. The men fell sick, the victuals proved bad, drink scarce, and the ships leaky, especially the King's ships, whereupon it was held the best course to return. On arrival off Scilly, the wind was so contrary that they ran for Kinsale, which they reached with six feet water in the hold. More than twenty other ships had put in to the westward.

Dec. 11. Ventry. 49. Sir Michael Geere to his son William Geere. Gives account of the expedition to Cadiz, with the management of which he was extremely dissatisfied. The Earl of Essex was unsupported; the troops were unnecessarily withdrawn; the West India fleet had peaceably gone home whilst they were looking for it. Great mortality and sickness in the ships; with many wants. Their meat not half the King's allowance, and stinks so as no dog of Paris Garden would eat it.

Dec. 11. Gore End. 50. Sir Henry Palmer to the [Duke of Buckingham.] As directed, he was looking out for fifteen sail of Hamburghers. Had been driven into Gore End. Much distraction in the inhabitants on the coast, arising out of a false alarm from Dunkirk. Divers had left their houses, and the gentlemen begged Sir Henry to entreat the Duke that they might have a competent guard. Sir Henry requests warrant for munition for a small ship now at Dover.

Dec. 11. Gore End. 51. The same to [Nicholas]. Was not so fortunate as to bring over the Duke. Requests Nicholas to forward the warrant for the St. Peter at Dover mentioned in the last letter, and to send a commission for John Tench to be Captain of her. Entreats Nicholas to move the Duke that he (Sir Henry) may have a better ship.

1625. VOL. XI.

Dec. 12. Liskeard. 52. Dep. Lieuts. of Cornwall to Wm. Earl of Pembroke. Send account of arms taken from recusants; with strong expressions of thankfulness to God for having directed the heart of the King to a timely prevention of the dangerous growth of Roman Catholicism. Inclose,

52. I. Account of arms taken from John Trevilian, the only recusant in whose possession they have found arms, although there are nearly 200 in that county.

Dec. 12. Hampton Court. 54. Blank warrant from the same, appointing a person, unnamed, Captain in the fleet under the command of Capt. Pennington.

[Dec. 12.] 55. Blank warrant from the same, requiring the person appointed Captain of a ship in the fleet under the command of Capt. Pennington, to take charge of his ship forthwith.

Dec. 12. Bromley. 56. John Buckeridge Bishop of Rochester to the Council. Reports his proceedings in waiting on John Lord Teynham to receive his arms. Incloses, 56. I. Note of the arms delivered up by Lord Teynham.

Dec. 12. Londesborough. 57. Henry Lord Clifford to the same. Reports his proceedings in disarming Lord Eure at Malton. Incloses,

Dec. 13. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Sec. Coke. Sends letters that had been opened here. A committee for settling a rule to be observed in matters of prizes. A proclamation and increase of mariners' wages to be considered of. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 240.]

Dec. 13. Ipswich. 58. Bailiffs of Ipswich to Buckingham. Soon after the Duke's departure over seas, there was at Ipswich Francis Baxter, reported to be Gentleman Usher to his Majesty. On information of scandalous speeches spoken by him imputing gross profligacy to his Grace, they had examined him and committed him to prison. On a letter from the Lord Chamberlain commanding his release as one of the King's servants, they had set him at liberty, and now report the circumstances to the Duke. Inclose,

Vol. XI.

Dec. 13. Hampton Court. 59. Sir Benjamin Rudyerd to Sir Francis Nethersole. Rectifies the assertion in his last letter, that the fleet was in want of victuals and pickaxes. They had them in their ships, but forgot to take them ashore when they marched towards the bridge. Some doubt as to the rest of the fleet which had been outsailed by the Earl of Essex, and had not yet come to land.

Dec. 13. Whitborne. 60. Francis Godwin Bishop of Hereford to the Council. Reports that as directed he had waited upon Lord Herbert, and requested him to deliver up his arms. He replied that he was verry sorry that his loyalty was called in question, but as to arms, he had none, having never bought any but what he ventured to sea, where he was robbed of them by Turks and pirates.

Dec. 13. Ragland. 61. Henry Lord Herbert of Ragland to the same. States in explanation of the answer given to the Bishop of Hereford, as mentioned in the last letter, that in those parts he had no house of his own, but lived as a servant to his father, subject to be removed at his pleasure, and was not charged with any arms.

Dec. 13. 62. Opinion of the King's shipwrights as to the dimensions proper for a man-of-war to be built for service in the Narrow Seas.

Dec. 13. 63. Specific dimensions of the several parts of a ship for the Narrow Seas set down by various shipbuilders.

Dec. 14. Tottenham. 64. Sec. Coke to Sec. Conway. Being required to attend the committee appointed to speak with the States Ambassador about the prize ships, he explains why his withdrawal from his present labours would be extremely prejudicial. The fleet is coming scatteringly home; the Lords have given directions for relief of the sick and quartering the soldiers; but Sir Jas. Bagg writes plainly, that the gentlemen of those parts will in no wise be drawn to any contributions; and if money be not supplied, the misery and clamour will be no less dangerous than grievous to be borne. He appeals to Lord Conway, for God's sake, to unite with him in procuring money to discharge the unfortunate army and fleet. Until monies are made in London, there is no possibility either to pay the fleet or set forth the ships prepared to attend Capt. Pennington to Plymouth. The Lord Treasurer will shortly sleep unquietly in his bed.

Dec. 14. 65. Petition of the Dean and Chapter of Sarum to the King. Pray for a grant of the tithes of lands formerly portions of the forests of Dorset, Wilts, and Berks, the tithes whereof as forests had been granted to their church by Henry II.; with a reference of the petition to the Lord Keeper.

Dec. 14. 66. Journal of the expedition to Cadiz, written by some one who was in the division of the fleet which arrived at Plymouth this day.

Dec. 14. 67. Copy of the same in the handwriting of Thos. Locke.

1625. Vol. XI.

Dec. 15. Buckden. 68. Bishop Williams of Lincoln to ———. Sends a petition of Richard Cleyton, parson of Shawell, who had been prosecuted for nonconformity, with a certificate of his parishioners; and as he is in all points willing to conform, prays that the execution of the sentence against him may be foreborne until there be opportunity of conference. Incloses,

68. 1. Petition of Richard Cleyton to the Bishop of Lincoln, above referred to.

Dec. 15. Audley End. 69. Thos. Earl of Suffolk to Sec. Conway. Transmits letters from his Dep. Lieuts. of Dorsetshire respecting liberties claimed by Lady Hatton as owner of the Isle of Purbeck. Solicits instructions respecting other castles on the sea coast, the Captains whereof would not account to him, but which were so defectively fortified that the country could look for no security from them.

Dec. 15. 70. Bill of Mortality for London and the out-parishes from Dec. 16, 1624, to Dec. 15, 1625; total of burials 54,265, whereof of the plague 35,417.

Dec. 15. Hampton Court. The same to the Duke of Buckingham. Sending the acts perfected concerning the jewels and plate. [Minute, ibid.]

Dec. 15. Hampton Court. The same to Thos. Dove Bishop of Peterborough. On behalf of Mr. Stephens. [Minute, ibid.]

Dec. 15. Plymouth. 71. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Had obeyed the directions of their Lordships with respect to the soldiers already arrived, both sick and whole; those directions applied only to 15 ships, but the whole army is likely to arrive with the first wind. Solicit further directions, and that the Council would consider the great charge and trouble that small corner of the kingdom had already undergone. Request that some regiments may be sent into other counties, and that the soldiers may be speedily clothed, the greatest part not having wherewith to cover their nakedness, which is the greatest cause of their miseries. Order should also be given for the maintenance of the Captains and officers, whose complaints are equal to those of the soldiers. A commission should also be sent down to put in execution the law martial.

Dec. 16. Windsor. Proclamation that soldiers lately employed in the fleet on their arrival should not depart from their colours. [Coll. Procs., Car. I., No. 31.]

Dec. 16. Windsor. 72. The King to the Lord Keeper, Lord Treasurer, Lord President, Earl Marshal, Lord Chamberlain, James Earl of Carlisle, Sec. Coke, and Lord Chief Justice Crewe. Commission prepared for the Great Seal. After reciting the importance of secrecy in affairs of state, and that some royal instruments of especial secrecy had lately been unwarrantably divulged and copied, authority is given to the persons therein named to examine suspected persons and to give such directions as the King's honour and the necessity of his service should require.

Dec. 16. 73. Memorandum: That Sir Nathaniel Barnardiston, one of the Commissioners for the Loan [in co. Suffolk], refused to lend to his Majesty the sum of 20*l.*, alleging that he was not satisfied therein in his conscience; and that he also refused to take the oath tendered to him according to the Commission.

Dec. 16. Windsor. 74. Sir Dudley Carleton to Buckingham. The writings judged necessary for pawning his Majesty's plate and jewels and the Duke's were not completed until that very instant. They are now sent for his Grace's signature, together with a letter of the Attorney General which explains their nature. On their return by the Duke the King's commission will be ready, and they may be all transmitted into Holland. A King's ship should be appointed to take Mr. Sackville Crow into Zealand, and await his return. [Copy.]

Dec. 16. 75. Attorney General Heath to the same. Sends documents relating to the pawning of the jewels prepared by the Solicitor General and himself, in conjunction with Sir Henry Marten and Dr. Reeves, and with the advice of Secs. Coke and Conway. Besides the documents sent, there is one by which the King gives absolute authority to the Duke, and in his absence to Sackville Crow. [Copy of the letter inclosed in the letter preceding.]

[Dec. 16.] 76. Minute of motions to be made at the Council Board, on the suggestion of the Lord High Admiral, for proclamations that goods intended for Spain found in ships of any nation should be confiscated; that ships of above 60 tons should be furnished with muskets for half their company; that the wages of mariners in the King's service should be raised to 15*s.* per month, [which was appointed for consideration when the Duke should be present,] and that ships hereafter to be built should be made musket-free fore and aft.

Dec. 16. 77. Estimate of the expense of revictualling the Swiftsure and six merchant ships for 3 months, also of adding 50 men to the Nonsuch, and of setting forth to sea the Aletheia and the Francis Bonaventure (5,520*l.* 5*s.*).

Had written to Sir James Bagg to intercept those in the Channel, and to send notice of the others into Ireland. The clamours of the Ambassadors as to the prize goods ought not so to govern our councils as to hinder the course of justice. If we proceed to work without means, we shall but expose our actions to the scorn of the world, and draw upon ourselves more danger than is yet taken to heart.

Dec. 17. Kinsale. 2. Sir Thomas Love to the Duke of Buckingham. Gives account of the attempt against Cadiz, similar to that contained in his letter to Sec. Conway of 1625, Dec. 11. Dec. 17. Hartlebury 3. John Thornborough Bishop of Worcester to the Council. Reports his proceedings in waiting upon Lord Windsor and the Earl of Shrewsbury to receive their arms. The arms of the former were delivered by Mr. Blunt, who had charge in Lord Windsor's absence. The Earl protested that he had no manner of arms, not so much as a musket, caliver, or birding piece. Ten brown-bills were all he had provided for defence of his house. Incloses,

3. I. Inventory of arms in Lord Windsor's house at Bradnam. 1625, Dec. 10.

Begs leave to kiss his Grace's hands, although he shall be ashamed to look upon his Sovereign or the Duke. All the chieftains will fly with open mouth upon the Lord Marshal, neither can nor will he excuse him; yet he knows that they that will blame him most are not blameless.

Dec. 18. Plymouth. 7. Sir James Bagg to Sec. Conway. Transmits a letter [probably from the Commissioners at Plymouth]. The Convertive and 18 other ships had arrived.

Dec. 18. Dorset Court. 9. Lord Keeper Coventry to Sec. Conway. Had sent the letters patent touching the King's jewels. Dec. 19. Plymouth. 18. Sir Wm. St. Leger to [Buckingham]. Reiterates his charges against some of the Council of War in the expedition against Cadiz. Some of them had no desire they should do anything, because they would value their counsel given before. The Marshal had not such abilities as could be wished in a general. Speaks out of anguish to see so brave and chargeable a business so foully miscarried. The army is in wretched poor condition for want of health and clothes, and much decayed in numbers. Hears that the Duke intends a journey into France; should be glad to kiss his hands before his departure.

Dec. 20. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Archbishop Abbot. To give his advice touching the redelivery of the casket taken with the two priests, wherein there is a massing suit; and also to certify the conditions of the men. Will make a full report on the victuals remaining, state of the mariners, and condition of the ships. If victory had accompanied the fleet's return, never had an army been better manned, victualled, or clothed, now, to cover their shame, they will insist they have wanted in all. If his Grace will refuse to hearken to general complaints Mr. Lieut. [of the Tower, Sir Allen Apsley,] and himself will be able to free themselves from blame. The Lion has long been ready for sea, but she shall be kept.

[Dec. 20.] [Plymouth.] 23. The same to the same. Dec. 21. West Deane. 29. Attorney General Heath to his kinsman Sir Wm. Becher. Prays him to acquaint the Council that before he left Windsor he delivered to Lord Conway the proclamation that soldiers returning with the fleet were not to depart from their colours. The commission for martial law, and proclamations forbidding traffic with Spain and directing ships of above 60 tons to be furnished with muskets, had been sent to Lord Conway that morning. A letter concerning musters was inclosed. A proclamation that ships carrying victuals to Spain should be lawful prize, was drawn, but he had no warrant for it.

Dec. 21. New Alresford. 30. Deputy Lieuts. of Hants to Sec. Conway. Certify their proceedings in disarming recusants. Inclosed, 30. 1. List of recusants in the divisions of Andover, Basingstoke, and King's Cleere, with account of arms taken from them.

Dec. 21. Imworth. 31. Sir Dudley Carleton to Sackville Crow. Sends documents signed by his Majesty and the Duke for engaging their jewels and plate. Crow is expected here like the Spanish fleet. [Copy.]

Dec. 22. Hampton Court. Sec. Conway to Buckingham. What chief commanders have returned with part of the fleet. The relation Captain Bruce makes. What comes from Plymouth in other ways. Directions sent thither to provide for and keep the soldiers together. The Queen's Secretary would not take the oath from the Chamberlain, but demanded and had leave to go for France. The acts concerning the jewels and plate are sent away by an express, with directions for a convoy. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 241.]

Dec. 22. Hampton Court. The same to the Commissioners at Plymouth. Dec. 22. 34. Inventory of armour belonging to Thos. Viscount Colchester, delivered to Sir Harbottle Grimstone by Robert Earl of Warwick.

Dec. 22. 35. Commissioners at Plymouth to [the Council]. About 30 sail had arrived in that port, with about 4,000 soldiers in such miserable condition as for the most part to be incapable of such comfort as the country would afford them. They have billeted them where they were before, which they hoped the country would for a while undertake, although there was much complaint. Desire to receive the commission for martial law, and solicit instructions on various points connected with the payment, clothing, and general management of the troops.

Dec. 22. Plymouth. 36. Commissioners at Plymouth to the same. Desire further instructions for disposing of the ordnance, arms, and munition belonging to the land army, there being no officer of the Ordnance at Plymouth.

Dec. 22. Office of Ordnance. 37. Officers of the Ordnance at the Tower to Sec. Coke. Brown, the iron founder, not finding any present satisfaction, and having spent five weeks in attending in hope to receive money, they had not been able to persuade him to further patience. He had departed into the country with determination to employ himself in such works for the subject as would yield him ready money.

Dec. 22. Plymouth. 38. Sir John Eliot to Sec. Conway. Had been charged by Lord Conway's son to send to his Lordship a copy of the general letter of the Commissioners to the Council. The miseries before them are great. Capt. Bolles, who died since their coming in, declared the occasion of his sickness to be scarcity and corruption of the provisions. Great numbers of the soldiers are continually thrown overboard; yesterday seven fell down in the streets; the rest are weak, and unless there be a present supply of clothes there is little hope to recover them. Incloses,

38. 1. Copy of the letter of the Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council, dated this day.

Dec. 22. 39. Bill of Mortality for Westminster, Lambeth, Newington, Stepney, Hackney, and Islington, from Dec. 30, 1624 to Dec. 22, 1625; total burials 8,736; of the plague 5,896.

Dec. 23. Sudeley. 40. Geo. Earl of Castlehaven to Godfrey Goodman Bishop of Gloucester. He would be ready on the morrow to deliver up all such arms as he had at Sudeley. He will not expostulate, but from his infancy he has been ever conformable to the Church of England, and is ready to take the oaths of allegiance and supremacy. He desires that this declaration may be made known to the Council, for he fears some malicious suggestions have traduced his loyalty.

1625. Vol. XII.

Dec. 23. Tottenham. 41. Sec. Coke [to Sec. Conway]. There being 16 ships come into Plymouth, and the Lord Marshal and four others being at Scilly, whence they would presently make for the coast, he suggests that the Treasurer should have notice from the Council or his Majesty to provide money for the wages of the sailors, and that order should be taken for billeting the soldiers, with a proclamation against all buying and receiving of the King's stores. The merchant and Newcastle men as soon as they have landed their troops should be ordered to the Downs. He hears nothing of the Lord Admiral's return, without whom the businesses in hand will suffer very much.

Dec. 23. Tottenham. 42. The same to the same. The Samuel at Portsmouth is victualled for two months, all saving beer, for supply of which the bearer is to apply to Sir Allen Apsley. Conceives that this ship might reinforce the fleet under Capt. Pennington.

[Dec. 23.] 44. Copy of the preceding, but without date.

Dec. 23. 46. Sir Wm. St. Leger to the Duke of Buckingham, General of his Majesty's army. Requests his commands for disposing of companies whose Captains have miscarried. Recommends Capt. Andrew Judd for one of the companies in Sir William's own regiment.

Dec. 23. Pendennis Castle. 47. Capt. John Bonython to Sec. Conway. In reply to complaints of the French Ambassador respecting his treatment of Mons. de Menti, he sends certificates of Capt. Quaster, the Lieut. of Capt. Washinghoven, and also of the town. He has written a letter to the King, as well as he can, but he was maimed in his right hand in a sally at Manheim, in respect of which he solicits a pension out of the receipts of Cornwall. Incloses,

47. I. Certificate of Capt. Quaster above mentioned.

47. II. Like certificate of Teunis Masman, Lieutenant to Capt. Washinghoven.

47. III. Certificate of the Mayor and Justices of Penryn, of all passages between the companies of the King of France and Mons. de Soubise, since their arrival at Falmouth.

Dec. 23. Pendennis Castle. 48. The same to the King. Utterly denies the allegation of the French Ambassador, that he commanded Mons. de Menti out of the harbour, although when two of the French ships moved up to attack the St. John, which had placed herself under the town, he warned those two ships to return to their former anchorage.

[Dec. 23.] 49. Capt. Bonython's answer to the French Ambassador's complaint; being an abstract of the above letter.

[Dec. 23.] 50. Petition of Joshua Downing, and seven others, officers of the King's works at Chatham to the Commissioners of the Navy. Increase of employments at Chatham, and likelihood of more from the removal thither of works from Deptford and Woolwich. The accidents which occur are more than John Pawson, the surgeon, can attend and cure. The petitioners pray that John Norton may be recommended to the Duke for a warrant for joining him with John Pawson.

Dec. 23. 51. Joshua Downing to Nicholas. Begs him to recommend to the Duke, John Norton, as an able surgeon and good physician, for appointment as above. The fee from the King is only 20 marks per annum, the cures being paid for out of the chest to which every seaman contributes. Also recommends Henry Hubbert for boatswain of the Constant Reformation, if Peter Cannon be removed on his appointment as Serjeant of the Admiralty of the Cinque Ports.

Dec. 23. Certificate of Sec. Conway that Capt. Thos. Markham had returned from foreign service in obedience to the King's proclamation. [Minute, Lord Conway's Foreign Letter Book. France. Vol. clxxviii., p. 249.]

1625. VOL. XII.

Dec. 26. Belvoir. 54. Francis Earl of Rutland to Sec. Conway. Desires him to acquaint his Majesty with the inclosed aspersions against the Duke of Buckingham and the Earl. Prays that if either of them have a thought to hurt his Majesty "sweet Jesus" will damn him perpetually. Incloses,

54. I. Wm. Carr to Francis Earl of Rutland. Informs the Earl of the information of Martin Danby against Christopher Hogg [see 1625, Nov. 26,] and of Hogg's examination [see 1625, Nov. 30]. The writer had committed Hogg to the gaol of Newcastle-upon-Tyne. 1625, Dec. 3. Incloses,

[Dec. 26.] 56. Duke of Buckingham to Sir Wm. St. Leger. At the first coming home of the fleet there may be much disorder prevented by Sir Wm.'s presence, the Duke therefore entreats him not to stir from Plymouth; he might write to the Duke or Nicholas. When Captains' places were void, the Colonels should recommend to the Duke persons to be appointed. In proof of the attention he should give to such recommendations, he approved of Capt. Andrew Judd to be Captain of one of the vacant companies in Sir Wm.'s regiment. [Copy.]

Dec. 26. 57. Fr. Beda of the Barefooted Carmelites to Silvester Pardo of Ypres. The persecution of the Catholics increased, but without effusion of blood at present. The officers robbed the houses of the Catholics, and made good prize of their books, beads, images, and priests' vestments, with their money and other things not pertaining to their commission. In the country the Justices tender the oath of allegiance, and they who refuse it are thrown into prison and their goods confiscated. They were hoping that the Queen or the French Ambassador might interpose on their behalf. The fleet had returned from Cadiz with the loss of 4,000 or 5,000 men. Four or five priests had been put in different prisons, and last week 300 Catholics were accused in one district near London. Spanish.

Dec. 26. 58. English translation of the above.

Dec. 26. 59. The same to the Prioress of the Barefooted Carmelites at Ypres. The agents for Spain and Flanders having left England, his means of receiving news from Flanders had failed. He had written to the Father Provincial of France to arrange some means of communication. Similar account of the persecution of the Catholics, to that contained in the last letter. Spanish.

Dec. 26. 60. English translation of the above.

1625.

Dec. 26. 61. Fr. Beda to the Father Provincial of the Barefooted Carmelites of France at Paris. Has recourse to his reverence to find means of performing the duty of sending intelligence, to which he is bound by his holy obedience. Suggests a communication through Giovanni Baptista Grimani or Peter Requesens. Reports the progress of the persecution, and the failure of the expedition to Cadiz. Italian.

Dec. 26. 62. English translation of the above.

Dec. 27. Peterborough. 63. Bishop Dove of Peterborough to the Council. As directed, he had applied to Lord Vaux for his arms. He replied that he had no armour; his progenitors left him none; neither did he ever buy any. He led them through all the rooms of his house, and they found none.

Dec. 27. Hampton Court. 64. Theophilus Lord Walden to the same. Information having been given to the Council that Roger Widdrington was trusted with the government of Lord Walden's estates, near the Borders of Scotland, he replies that Widdrington has not held any office under him for the last five or six years. In proof how "curious" he has been to employ any man of Widdrington's religion, he refers to James Douglas, Dep. Secretary of the Scottish affairs at Court.

Dec. 27. Dover Castle. 65. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Suggests to the Duke to obtain from the King a commission to grant letters of marque out of the Cinque Ports; no man will go to London on account of being bound not to break bulk until they come thither. Advantages of bringing ships stayed into Dover; suggests a general order to that effect; this was done in Sir Richard Bingley's time. Reports proceedings in the Admiralty Court, and begs the Duke not to doubt that he will make a business of it worth his acceptance.

Dec. 27. Dover Castle. 66. The same to Nicholas. If letters of marque be issued from the Cinque Ports, Dover will be the port in England for the Duke and Nicholas. Desires a warrant for swearing in Roger Chesterman as a Gunner of Dover Castle, in place of John Chesman. Mr. Reading requests that Mr. Byng may have leave to exchange his place.

Dec. 27. London. 67. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Recommend Robert Ambrose for boatswain of the Rainbow, in the room of Wm. Ward, deceased.

Dec. 27. Exeter. 68. Mayor of Exeter to the Council. In obedience to their order he had taken on himself the office of Mayor, and had personally attended to that service. By reason of the continued absence of the other officers and magistrates there had been dangerous tumults, the poorer sort resisting the officers and threatening to relieve themselves. The number of poor, being about 4,000, daily increases; almost all the able and better sort have abandoned the town; and tradesmen have removed their wares to other places and there keep shops and markets, to the ruin of Exeter if not timely remedied.

1625. VOL. XII

Dec. 27. Exeter. 69. Mayor of Exeter to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain. Stating in brief the circumstances mentioned in the last letter, and beseeching the Earl to continue his favour to the city of Exeter. Dec. 28. Charborough. 71. Sir Walter Erle to Sec. Conway. Extraordinary concourse in Dorsetshire to the houses of persons ill affected, daily increase of recusant strangers, and continual passing to and fro in covertly manner. These things argue some great business in hand. The letters for disarming coming late took little effect. The house of John Arundel of Chideock contains arms for 100 men, not to be got at without digging up a floor, or making a hole in a wall. Means by which a serviceable body of horse might be obtained. Incloses, 71 . 1. A note of the recusants' houses to which the late concourse has been; also of the names of recusants lately come out of other counties, of the houses that have not been searched, and of the passage of carriages to and fro by night; with observations on the best mode of raising a body of 100 carbineers.

Order of Council that the St. Peter of Newhaven, and all such goods therein and in the other prizes as appertain to subjects of France, or of the United Provinces, or of other states in friendship with his Majesty, should be delivered to such persons as should reclaim the same.

Dec. 28. Audley End. 73. Thos. Earl of Suffolk to Sec. Conway. By some omission his Dep. Lieuts. for Dorsetshire had been returned in the list of names for the Privy Seals. Desires that, as in other counties, they may be spared, especially as in these hard times they had advanced the service 400*l.* more than heretofore it was in days of plenty.

Dec. 28. 74. Dep. Lieuts. of Monmouth to Edward Earl of Worcester, Lord Lieut. They forward a list of recusants disarmed, with an account of the arms taken from them. Inclose,

74. 1. The list above mentioned.

1625. VOL. XII.

Dec. 29. Buckden. 75. Bishop Williams of Lincoln to Sir John Lambe, Commissary within the Archdeaconry of Leicester. Charges him to perform whatever is enjoined upon the Bishop by a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury, of which a copy was inclosed, so that the Bishop might be able to make a return before the last day of March. He is particularly to examine the number of recusants, and if he shall find any increase within 7 years, is to set down what he conceives to be the reason.

Dec. [29.] Hatton House. 76. Eliza Lady Hatton to Sec. Conway. Was sorry to receive commands from his Majesty which neither her health nor her fortune would allow her to obey. Had no other house fit for her to reside in but that in Holborn. Begs he will present that answer to the King.

Dec. 29. Hampton Court. 77. Order of Council that Lord Conway, Lord Vere, and Sir John Borlase [Burlassie] should consider what officers were fit to be kept with the forces which are to be lodged on the seacoast, and upon what entertainment.

Dec. 29. Cornwall. 78. Dep. Lieuts. of Cornwall to Wm. Earl of Pembroke. Fowey, a safe port to receive a great fleet of ships, lying between Falmouth and Plymouth, is open and unfortified. Dec. 29. Plymouth. 79. Commissioners at Plymouth to Sec. Conway. At present, the miseries of the soldiers are such that the recovery of their healths and the hope of new apparel keep them together, but they are forced to dispense with their ordinary duties. The extremity of their wants being past, and the soldiers once settled in fitting places, the Commissioners hope that all things shall so sort as to give his Majesty satisfaction. Care shall be taken to prevent embezzlement.

Dec. 29. Plymouth. 80. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. For the present they are of opinion that the army should be distributed into petty garrisons along the sea coast, but before that can be accomplished, they must receive some fourteen days or three weeks refreshing where they are now lodged. In their present state it is impossible they should go any whither, and to defer their apparelling is to suffer a multitude to perish. They might be transported along the coast in the ships that brought them. May be disposed of in Somersetshire and Dorsetshire, and five regiments in Devon and Cornwall. The payment of 2*s.* 6*d.* a week is complained of; it is desired that it may be 3*s.* The list of allowances for the officers is also objected to, especially as the serjeants are omitted. Commissions for martial law are much needed. Care shall be taken of the remainders of provisions.

Dec. 29. Plymouth. 81. Sir Wm. St. Leger to [Sec. Conway.] Incloses a list of Captains and companies arrived in England. The gentlemen of the country, now they have seen the men, agree that it is not possible to remove them until they have recovered their strength and are clothed. They stink as they go, and the poor rags they have are rotten and ready to fall off if they be touched. This is the general condition of the men, and some of the inferior officers are in no better plight. Insufficiency of the 5,000*l.* remitted by the Lord Treasurer. The bare clothing will come to 15,000*l.* Incloses,

Publication to the same purport had been made in every church, with a rule how to effect the same. He had also seen personally to the execution of these directions, so that what was possible had been done. Westminster as clear from infection as any place in the world. Only four died of all diseases last week; not known so few these 30 years.

Dec. [30?] 86. Edmund Bolton to Sec. Conway. King James suffered him with his wife and family to live in peace to the conscience in which he was bred, and also gave him power for any three or four priests, but he only named John Colleton, a man of about fourscore years of age, and of so great integrity that he had leave to live free abroad under Queen Elizabeth and King James. Prays Lord Conway for a supersedeas to remove from him and Mr. Colleton all vexation until his Lordship should be spoken to.

Dec. 30. St. John's. 88. Edmund Bolton to Buckingham. The late King bequeathed a necessary war to his royal son, but counsels and successes are not relatives. If his Grace would once again move in Parliament for the College or Society of Honor, besides what his Lordship conceived high and hopeful in that proposal in point of gain and glory, it would undoubtedly make a diversion of many bitter and curious fancies and turn them to benevolent.

Dec. 30. Dorset Court. 89. Lord Keeper Coventry to Sec. Conway. It is usual at coronations to summon gentlemen of likelihood to come and take the degree of knighthood. Sends a warrant to be signed by the King for that purpose, similar to the one which passed in the King's father's time. He also sends the commission for executing martial law, and the writs [for electing Members of Parliament] for the remote counties of Devon and Cornwall, that he may charge the messenger to see them delivered to the Sheriffs.

ships at Boulogne, on pretence of French goods being detained here in the prizes which were taken. All our merchant ships are stayed in Spain on the same reason. The Ambassadors are also to demand the ships lent against Rochelle, and if they be denied, we are to take a forcible course. Sends a letter from a Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, respecting a relapsed scholar of that college who was said to be about to visit the Queen's Court, that he might be apprehended and examined. Has sent notice to the outports. The Archbishop of Canterbury would find means to intercept him. The man himself of less importance than his corrupters and abettors. Incloses,

94. 1. William Aufeild to Sec. Coke. On Christmas eve Richard Carpenter, a Bedfordshire man and scholar of King's College, openly professed himself of the Romish religion. He purposes to set forth towards Rome. His lands in Bedfordshire conveyed to a certain Lord. Has had entertainment in the Queen's Court and is minded to be there this Christmas.

Dec. 31. Plymouth. 95. Sir John Eliot to the same. Solicits that his father-in-law, Mr. Richard Gedie, may be freed from a Privy Seal of 40*l.* with which he was charged, (notwithstanding his being in debt and having last year served Sheriff of Cornwall at a great expence,) out of some particular disaffections, and during Sir John's employments abroad in the service of the Duke. The sum they value not, but the circumstances give it another taste. Returns the name of another for that supply, rich and a usurer, which Sir John believes made him a passage out of the first certificate. No intelligence from the ships in Ireland. The sickness and mortality of the soldiers continue. Lord Conway's son had passed the holidays at Eliot's house.

[Newgate.] some few weeks ago for his release from Newgate, where he is imprisoned by the Lord Mayor on suspicion that he is a priest. He has waited a full month, and now renews his application.

Lieut. for those parts.

1625. TRINITY HOUSE CERTIFICATES.

Among the papers of this period there occur a considerable number of formal documents ordinarily termed "Trinity House Certificates." These are letters addressed by the authorities of the Corporation of the Trinity House to the Duke of Buckingham, as Lord High Admiral, and after his death to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. Their object was to solicit a warrant for "laying aboard" a particular specified ship, a certain number of pieces of ordnance, deemed necessary for the ship's defence. One of these certificates was issued in relation to every ship, the owners of which desired to have the protection of great guns. They are all substantially in one form, and in most cases specify the place where the ship was then lying, its name, by whom built and where, its tonnage, the names of its owners and master, and the number and particular character of the ordnance desired. As these certificates form one collection, comprised in Vols. XVI. and XVII. of the Domestic Papers of Charles I., and, for a certain period, are extremely numerous, it is thought better to insert a brief notice of them at the end of every year, rather than overload the Calendar by entering each certificate separately on the day of its date. Certificates with reference to the following ships occur in the year 1625.

Date of Certificate.	Name of Ship.	Where built.	Tonnage.	Reference to Certificate.

Vol. XVII A. 1625.

Account of England and its institutions, with some particulars relating to the Governments of France, Spain, the States, and Tuscany, written about the end of the reign of King James I., with some additions made after his decease. [Copy.]

1626. VOL. XVIII. JANUARY 1–20, 1626.

Jan. [1.] [Plymouth.] 1. Sir Wm. St. Leger to Nicholas. Is glad that the Duke has commanded him to address his correspondence to Nicholas. Has written to the Duke thrice, but he has taken notice only of the last. Is anxious about his former letters. If they have been read by any but the King or the Duke he shall suffer, although there be nothing in them but truth. If there be not some speedy course taken for clothing the soldier and satisfying the officer, the one will starve and the other leave the command, for in truth they are in extreme want. Is a suitor that they may have more speedy answers, for their extremities are greater than the Lords can imagine. They want martial law to punish offenders of several kinds, without the reformation of whom his Excellency will never be well served.

Jan. 1. York House. 2. Duke of Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. Warrant for impressment in the Thames of 20 of the best merchant ships he can find.

Jan. 2. Dover. 3. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. Reports directions given for the Hamburgher and two ships from Lubeck to be sent up to London. The Admiral of the Dunkirkers being in Calais Road has been chased by 12 Holland men-of-war. The Dunkirkers killed the Dutch Admiral and the master of his ship. Marvellous storms.

Jan. 2. Dover. 4. The same to Nicholas. Has sent the Hamburgher and the ships of Lubeck up the river in charge of Capt. Ledyard of the Charles. Has received commands to attend upon the Ambassadors, but has been prevented by very foul weather. Recommends Richard Harty, of the Isle of Thanet, and Capt. John Winter, of Canterbury, as Captains for the merchant ships.

Jan. 2. 5. Dep. Lieuts. of Glamorganshire to Edward Earl of Worcester. Received his letters of October 31 concerning the loans. Their country has suffered extreme losses by Turkish pirates, who have taken their ships trading for France and Ireland with butter, to the utter undoing of many men, and impoverishment of the whole country;—the farmers being disabled to pay their rents, and the honest men detained slaves at Sallee imploring the aid of their friends. Endeavoured to make a list of persons able to lend, but found them so few and the amounts so small that they prefer representing to his Lordship the state of their poor country, and waiting his further commands. They also received his letters for disarming popish recusants, a kind of people with whom they are not much pestered. Send a return of what they have done. Inclose,

5. 1. A list of popish recusants charged with armour within the co. of Glamorgan.

Jan. 2. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Abp. Abbot. On behalf of Capt. Langworth taken for a priest; with a suggestion for a general thanksgiving after the great plague. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 243.]

VOL. XVIII.

Jan. 2. Nonsuch. 6. Geo. Lord Carew, Master General of the Ordnance, to Lord Treasurer Ley. Reports what has been done between the Officers of the Ordnance and the Merchant Adventurers and the Eastland Company, concerning the importation of powder and saltpetre. The store of powder and all other munitions is very weak, but that of powder must first be specially had in consideration. Incloses,

6. I. Officers of the Ordnance to Lord Carew. The Merchant Adventurers had replied that, through their foreign agents, they would inquire what store of petre or powder might be had in those parts, but they recommend the King to commend the service to his Ambassadors. 1626, Jan. 2.

6. II. The answer of the Eastland Merchants. They will in like manner inform themselves what quantity of powder can be bought in the East parts; its quality may be tested by some now at Blackwall. Commodities are laden in the East countries in March or April, according as the winter is long or short, and commonly arrive here in May or June.

Jan. 3. Pendennis. 7. Capt. John Bonython to Sec. Conway. Rumour of a stay made of our ships in France. The St. John will be afloat again that evening. Solicits the command of the fort which his Majesty intends to make at Fowey.

Jan. 3. Plymouth. 8. Sir Edw. Harwood to Sir Dudley Carleton. One half the fleet has arrived in England and a good part in Ireland. Ten sail are missing, and great fears entertained for the Constant Reformation; when last seen, she had lost both her masts. The army in miserable plight; and although orders have been given to clothe them, there is no money even to feed them. The ships full of great defects, and the sickness has been so fatal amongst the sailors, that there are scarcely men left to trim the sails. [Minute.]

Jan. 4. Plymouth. 9. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. As directed they had stayed five merchant ships for his Majesty's service, and ordered the rest to proceed to the Downs. The ships stayed would require cost and time before they could again be set forth to the seas. The persons with whom the soldiers are billeted threatened to thrust them out of their houses for want of their weekly pay. Their summer's provision was all spent by the soldiers before they began this voyage, and they have no money to buy. Nothing yet received on the order for 5,000*l.* to be paid out of the loans in Devon and Cornwall. Difficulties they find in billeting the soldiers; the rich will not have them, and the poor cannot support them. Entreat a supply of money and further directions. Inclose,

9. I. Mayor of Dartmouth to Commissioners at Plymouth. Had provided shirts for the soldiers; but they were so destitute of other apparel, that, the cold pinching them, some died and none recovered their health. General sickness amongst the mariners. The ships are unmanned, and those parts could not supply sailors to carry them to London. He endeavoured to prevent embezzlement of stores, and had called for account of remainders of victuals. 1626, Jan. 3.

1626. VOL. XVIII.

Jan. 5. Whitehall. 10. Order of Council, that in order to prevent the sale of English ships to foreigners, no such ship of above 50 tons be allowed to sail until bond be given, with sureties, that she shall not be aliened to or for the use of any stranger born.

Jan. 6. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir Robert Naunton, Master of the Wards. Concerning his chamber in the Court. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 243.]

Jan. 6. 11. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. Order having been given him to make ready a fleet of 30 sail, he is authorised to press as many ship-carpenters, caulkers, and other workmen, as he should think fit.

Jan. 6. 12. The same to the same. Authority to press as many gunners, seamen, and mariners as should be requisite.

Jan. 6. Whitehall. 13. The same to all Admirals and others. His Majesty having appointed a fleet of 30 sail to be fitted for six months, and Capt. Pennington being sent to Plymouth to expedite the same, they are directed to give him their best aid.

Jan. 6. 14. Petition of Charles Aty to the Council. Having been 20 days in the custody of a messenger and 9 days in the Marshalsea, to his great loss and the injury of his credit, prays for his enlargement.

Jan. 6. 15. Jo. Reynolds, Master Gunner of England, to Nicholas. Recommends Michael Thompson to be Master Gunner of the Desire.

Jan. 6. Aylesbury. 16. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Buckingham to Buckingham. Send names of such of their county as are of best ability to lend. Have extended the list so as to make the burthen the less, and raise the sum to about the amount in the late King's time when the clergy contributed. The country importuned them to present their petition for the coat and conduct money (437*l.*) laid out that year, and also for the balance of the charges for Count Mansfeldt's forces.

Jan. 7. 17. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. Appointing him to take charge of his Majesty's ship the Lion, as Admiral of the fleet now fitting out for employment at sea.

Jan. 7. Whitehall. 18. The same to the same. Instructions:—He is to hasten to Plymouth, to select 30 ships out of the late fleet, and to take from the provisions and stores of the returned ships whatever may be necessary for his own fleet, together with such masters, pilots, gunners, and mariners, as he shall think fit, leaving only on board the ships not selected, sufficient stores and men to take them home.

Jan. 7. Whitehall. 19. Sec. Conway to Richard Wainwright, John Griffin, and John Gray. Warrant to search for and apprehend Father Muskett, Father Smith, and Father Wordington, Jesuits, seminary priests, or persons dangerous to the state; and also to seize all seditious books, papers, massing stuff, and other reliques found in any place where they may be concealed, and to bring both persons and all such stuff before Lord Conway.

Jan. 7. Mint. 20. Richard Rogers, Comptroller, and Andrew Palmer, Assaymaster of the Mint, to Sec. Conway. His Majesty having approved of a pattern for a 20*s.* piece of gold, designed by Abraham Vanderdort, the writers request Lord Conway to state to the King certain reasons why this pattern is not applicable to the ordinary coinage, although, if his Majesty were disposed, he could have some few 3*l.* and 5*l.* pieces curiously done for his pleasure.

Jan. 7. Southampton. 21. Dep. Lieuts of Hants. to the same. Two companies of soldiers are lodged in Southampton. Desire instructions as to what is meant by "the overplus of the entertainment" to be applied for clothes. The whole is only 2*s.* 6*d.* per week, out of which nothing can be spared. The soldiers are in such miserable case that they cannot be lodged anywhere till they be clothed. The writers ask for order to be given to the collectors of the loan to supply money for that purpose. The ships are coming from Ireland, therefore the case is urgent. Capt. Craft has come into Portsmouth in the Jacob with 60 men miserably poor and weak.

Jan. 7. Plymouth. 22. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Finding the Friendship, one of the five merchant ships stayed by them, as reported on the 4th inst., to be out of repair, they have substituted the George.

Jan. 7. Plymouth. 23. Sir Wm. St. Leger to Buckingham. It seems by the letters of the Council, that they understand his Grace's commission to be at an end, because they say they will send an order for martial law. Inconveniences of doubt upon such a subject. The gentlemen of the country have wholly forsaken the Commission which is left to the mayor and town clerk. Having no power to punish, the men grow bold and insolent, whilst the officers are ready to pull out the throats of the Commissioners for money. They receive no answers from the Council. The Lord Treasurer has sent down a paymaster, but never a penny of money. Such appointment is to the prejudice of the Treasurer appointed by the Duke.

Jan. 7. Whitehall. 24. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. Warrant for employment of the 500*l.* ordered to be paid to him in making ready so many of the ships of Mons. de Soubise, as he should think fit for sending to sea such carriages and provisions as the Duke had by word given order for.

Jan. 8. 25. Capt. Pennington's list of such ships as are nominated to go along with him if they can be made ready.

[Jan. 8.] 26. A similar list, with memoranda by Pennington, of various requests, principally relating to his instructions, which he desired to have plainly expressed, what he should do, and what he should not do, and to have it under the King's own hand.

1626. VOL. XVIII.

Jan. 8. Plymouth. 27. Sir John Burgh to Buckingham. Recommends Sir Chas. Vavasour for a company vacant by the death of Capt. Groves. The ill success of the late expedition makes him so ashamed that he is afraid to appear before the Duke. His reputation must be blemished amidst the throng, but as the justice of the Duke will ask account of every man's part, he hopes to find pardon. Solicits leave of absence.

Jan. 8. Dover Castle. 28. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Sir Edwin Sandys and Mr. Scott stand for the County of Kent, but are opposed by Sir Edward Hales, a very honest man, and by Sir Robert Hatton, of whom he cannot hear much. If the Duke will that night send to all those of the navy to be there "for Sir Sandys," Hippisley thinks he will carry it; if not, the Duke must bring him in for the Ports. Marvels that his letters are not come down to the Ports for the men he intends to put in: they must not be delayed, or the Duke will lose his right. Sir Dudley Carleton expects a place from the Duke. Hippisley wishes that he would not put him upon Dover, for a reason to be explained at the Duke's coming. For the provisions he had written about, Hippisley will do his best; but Dover is the worst place in all England. If the weather be fair, he will send into France.

[Jan. 9.] 29. Petition of the Combarons of the Cinque Ports to the Duke of Buckingham, that, by his assistance, they might, at his Majesty's coronation, be admitted to perform the service which of ancient time had been done by their predecessors.

Jan. 9. Gloucester. 30. Bishop Goodman of Gloucester to the Council. Reports his proceedings in waiting upon the Earl of Castlehaven at Sudeley Castle, and receiving from him his arms.

Jan. 9. Hartlebury. 31. Bishop Thornborough of Worcester to Lord Keeper Coventry. Sends a note of such arms as the City of Worcester has in their custody, having been taken heretofore from the father of the present Earl of Shrewsbury. Incloses,

31. 1. List of the arms sometime belonging to John Talbot, Esq., deceased.

Jan. 9. 32. Petition of eighty-three English and Scottish sailors prisoners in Dunkirk to the King:—Set forth the miserable nature of their bondage, and that they are told by certain Jesuit priests that the Princess of West Flanders will not relieve them unless a Jesuit priest who lies in Dover Castle be first released; pray that the Jesuit alluded to may be set free.

Jan. 11. Whitehall. Proclamation for better confining popish recusants, convict according to the law, to their dwellings or within 5 miles thereof. [Coll. Procs., Car. I., No. 37.]

Jan. 11. Bewdley. 33. Wm. Earl of Northampton to the Council. His delay in sending certificates for the loan had been occasioned by the backwardness of the country, so that the whole burden of making the returns had been thrown upon himself. They pretend poverty, the payment of subsidies, the charges for levies of soldiers, and the certainty of a Parliament. The shires of Gloucester and Hereford have never returned any answer, and lately a doubt has arisen whether the King's letter authorises the Earl to require certificates beyond the Principality of Wales. Sends certificates for Salop and Flint compiled as carefully as he could, being destitute of all helps, and finding infinite difficulty in persuading men to discover the state of their country.

Jan. 12. Sherborne. 34. John Earl of Bristol to his kinsman Sec. Conway. Has sent the bearer with copies of all the restraints he has received, and a note how he understands them, and shall receive it as an especial favour clearly to be informed in what position he stands. Has presumed against this happy time of the King's coronation to be an humble suitor for his Majesty's favour; the bearer will show Lord Conway the letter to the King to which he craves his assistance. Incloses, 34. 1. Extracts from and copies of various letters of restraint addressed to the Earl of Bristol by Sec. Conway, the Duke of Buckingham, and the King; the last dated 1625, June 10, excusing the Earl's nonattendance in Parliament, notwithstanding his writ of summons.

Jan. 12. Doctors' Commons. 35. Richd. Wyan to Nicholas. The Pursers' places of the Anne Royal and two other ships having fallen vacant, he recommends Mr. Duffield, late Mayor of Rochester. He will give 100*l.* for the Anne Royal, and 60*l.* for either of the others.

Jan. 12. 36. G. Marsh to [the same] He was desired by Lady Apsley to recommend her steward Philip Barnes, for Purser of the Phœnix.

Jan. 12. Dover Castle. 37. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Incloses an apology from the town of Dover for not choosing Sir Wm. Becher. For himself he was so vexed that he knew not what to say. A faction was made upon a sudden to have put them both out.

Jan. 12. Downs. 38. Sir Hen. Palmer to the same. With some difficulty he had landed the Ambassador at Calais. His professions of respect for the Duke and satisfaction at his treatment in England. He never began a meal aboard but with the Duke's health. Propriety of keeping the fleet in the Downs during this uncertainty of winter weather. Solicits the despatch of his commission for the St. Peter, promised him by the Duke at the Hague.

Jan. 12. From aboard the Entrance in the Downs. 39. The same to Nicholas. Has sent divers packets but received no answers. Desires instructions respecting the two Danskers whom he had stayed; also a warrant to press 40 men for his own ship in the Cinque Ports; also a commission for Capt. Fogg, whom he esteems next his own children, to serve with him; and a list of the ships to remain in his charge. His ship leaky.

1626. VOL. XVIII.

[Jan. 12.] 40. Purser's account of provisions received on board the Zouch Phœnix of London.

[Jan. 12.] 41. The like account of provisions spent to this day.

Jan. 12. 42. Receipt for 38*l.*, paid by Sir Geo. Holles for transporting sergeants and other officers from Rotterdam to London.

[Jan. 12.] 43. Memoranda respecting the duties, distribution, and mode of payment of the sergeants from the Low Countries.

Jan. 13. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir Francis Gofton. To prepare a Privy Seal for allowances made to the Queen's servants answerable to those made to the servants of Queen Anne of Denmark. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 243.]

Jan. 13. Whitehall. The same to Attorney General Heath. To prepare a pardon for John Tapps. [Minute, ibid.]

Jan. 13. 44. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Have received information from persons who have been aboard the Happy Entrance in the Downs and the Nonsuch and Garland at Gore-end, that for these Christmas holidays, the Captains, masters, boatswains, gunners, and carpenters, were not aboard their ships, nor gave any attendance to the service, leaving the ships a prey to any who might have assaulted them. The Commissioners sent down clothes for the sailors and there were no officers to take charge of them, and the pressed men ran away as fast as the Commissioners sent them down. If they had beaten up and down they might have prevented the loss of two English ships taken by the Dunkirkers off Yarmouth.

Jan. 13. The Tower. 45. Sir Allen Apsley to Nicholas. Recommends his servant Philip Barnes, for Purser of the Adventure, in place of Bartholomew Preston, deceased.

Jan. 13. 46. Archibald Douglas, Captain of a ship lost in the King's service, to Buckingham. Desires that he may be taken into the Duke's service; and solicits compensation for the loss of his munition and stores.

Jan. 13. Deptford. 47. Kenrick Edisbury to Nicholas. Solicits the confirmation of Peter Harding as master carpenter of the Convertive; the appointment of Thos. Wilkinson as Purser of the Adventure or some other ship, for which he offers to lay down 20 pieces; and the suit of one Fleming which Sec. Coke promised to mention to the King on the Duke's return from the Low Countries.

Jan. 13. 48. Certificate of Thomas Wyan, Dep. Reg. of the Court of Admiralty, that Timon Jacobson and others had laid claim in that Court to certain oil, bastard wine, &c., stayed in the St. Andrew, of Calais, which claim was opposed on behalf of his Majesty, and remained undecided.

Jan. 13. Canterbury. 49. Sir John Prewde to Nicholas. It being noised that there is a regiment to come into those parts, it is desired that it may be that of the Duke of Buckingham. If sent thither, there will be a choice of men without any press; and if the Duke pleases, Sir John will advise with the Dep. Lieuts. where the regiment may be lodged.

Jan. 13. Haverfordwest. 50. Dep. Lieuts. of Pembrokeshire to the Council. On Dec. 30, the Zouch Phœnix, of London, arrived in Milford Haven, having on board two companies of soldiers employed in this last action. The ship being leaky and the soldiers sick, the men were landed, and ultimately billeted at Pembroke and Haverfordwest. To defray the charges the Dep. Lieuts. have borrowed money which they pray may be allowed out of the subsidy money. Complain of being interrupted in the performance of the public service by Sir Thomas Canon, lately knighted.

[Jan. 13?] 51. Captains of the castles and forts belonging to the Cinque Ports to Buckingham. Pray that he would procure a new Privy Seal for the payment of their salaries, the one formerly granted having expired on the death of the late King.

Jan. 13. Compton. 52. John Verney to Nicholas. Acknowledges his letter announcing the death of a friend unnamed [Samuel Hopton?]. Thanks for his care in the burial of the deceased. Begs him to have special care of the accompts relating to his Majesty and the Duke; and promises to attend him on Tuesday or Wednesday next, at the Middle Temple.

Jan. 13. 53. Certificate of the charge of the navy for the present year: ordinary charges, 21,621*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.*; extraordinary, 7,137*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*

[Jan. 13?] 54. Notice by Henry Billingsley that Edward Quarles, who had for many years served in the office of post under the Company of Merchant Adventurers, having lately died, Charles Lord Stanhope had appointed the said Henry Billingsley to convey letters between the city of London and foreign parts, whereupon the said Henry Billingsley had appointed a place for receiving letters "behind the Exchange, at one Widow Bayneham's, at the sign of the George, a little beyond the Antwerp Tavern, on the other side of the way;" and on the Saturday then next, after midnight, he purposed to send away a post for Flushing, Holland, and the Hanse Towns, and so from time to time every Saturday; and thereafter, if God spared life and health, to other places.

Jan. 14. Westminster. 55. The King to the Council. Considering the importance of the Trained Bands, the King had formerly recommended to the Lord Lieuts. the putting in execution the rules sent down to them in printed books. He has now caused a certain number of experienced soldiers to be sent from the Low Countries hither to teach the Captains and other officers the true modern use of arms and order of soldiers. The Council are to distribute these soldiers among the several counties, and by letters to the Lord Lieutenants are to require them to see that they be presently put in employment, so that the best use be made of the three months, which is the longest time they can be spared to remain here. [Copy.]

Jan. 14. Whitehall. 56. Order of Council made on hearing the cause between Matthew de Quester, Postmaster for foreign letters, and Henry Billingsley, who claims to be appointed by Lord Stanhope, Postmaster General, to convey foreign letters to and from London. Billingsley is not to meddle in any sort with the conveyance of letters until the cause be determined by law. [Printed.]

Jan. 14. Whitehall. Another copy of the same. [Coll. Procs., Car. I., No. 38 A.]

Jan. 14. 57. Capt. Edward Cheke to Sec. Conway. Having received order from the Duke for present employment, he intimates that he is disabled by sickness since he came home, and entreats Lord Conway to prefer his son in his place.

Jan. 14. Dover Castle. 58. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. The people of Dover are all sorry for what they have done. Hears there was the same thing at Hythe. It was all owing to the want of the Duke's letters. There would be an Admiral's Court held at Dover on Tuesday next, where they should cast many goods. His Grace might send appraisers, or leave it to Hippisley to make the most money and the soonest. The goods at Portsmouth should be sent to Dover; if condemned at the former place, the Duke would only get his tenth, if at the latter, the whole. Hears that all our merchants' goods are stayed in France. Will he have certain French goods stayed at Dover?

Jan. 14. 59. Commissioners of the Navy to the Council. Having been commanded to certify their opinions concerning the danger of the Dunkirkers surprising the ships trading with Newcastle, the means which should be taken to secure the same, and what might be laid upon the coals towards the charge thereof. They have conferred with the officers of the Trinity House, who are of opinion that two of the King's ships of 500 or 600 tons, and 10 Newcastle ships of 350 or 400 tons, each of the latter carrying 14 guns and 60 men, would be sufficient as a convoy, the expense being, for the King's ships for 8 months, the trade ceasing in the winter, 8,000*l.*, and for the others 15,200*l.* The way of raising this amount should be considered in Parliament. There are 300 sail employed in the Newcastle trade, and 152,560 chaldrons were shipped in the year 1624. [Copy.]

Jan. 14. Dover Castle. 60. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. The people at Hythe are sorrowful men on account of their election, and have written to point out how Mr. Chancellor [of the Exchequer] may have a place. Hippisley had received a note of the rates set upon goods in London, therefore appraisers need not be sent to Dover. Sir Edwin Sandys has lost his election for the County of Kent. Incloses,

60. I. Corporation of Hythe to Buckingham. They had elected Sir Peter Heyman and Basil Dixwell before the Duke's letters came to hand recommending Sir Richard Weston, whom they would otherwise willingly have returned. 1626, Jan. 13.

Jan. 14. Dover Castle. 61. Sir John Hippisley to Nicholas. Mr. Manning stood for Dover, but Mr. Prinsell carried it. Recommends John Hopkins to be appointed a gunner in place of Mr. Rooles deceased; wishes an order to swear him in, and also Roger Chesterman.

Jan. 14. Haroldstone. 63. Sir James Perrott, Vice Admiral of Pembrokeshire, to Sec. Conway. Soliciting his favour with reference to the points on which he and other Dep. Lieuts. had written to the Council, [1626, Jan. 13.] Amongst other misbehaviour of Sir Thos. Canon, he had intercepted the writ for electing a burgess for Haverfordwest, and concealed the same from the Sheriff. Incloses,

63. 1. Thos. Philpot, Captain of the King's ship in Milford Haven, to Sir James Perrott. Setting forth their necessities and difficulties. Their carpenters unable from sickness to repair the ship; they have not sound men enough to man their long boat. They are about to exchange ling for butter and cheese; they have 300 cod fish, but so corrupt that the savour is contagion. Their men decline from want of clothing as well as of wholesome diet. Jan. 13, 1626.

Jan. 14. London. 64. Philip Burlamachi to Sec. Conway. Learns from his brother that the principal things necessary for the advancement of the business of the jewels are;—1, a letter from the King that he approves and will approve of the orders given by the Duke; and, 2, a letter from Lord Conway to Sackville Crow and Philip Calandrini, that out of the money advanced they may pay the entertainment of the four regiments for three months. [French.]

Jan. 15. Merson. 65. Capt. Edward Cheke to Nicholas. By the Duke's command had made repair aboard his ship. Found it under survey by Commissioners. Fears they may report it not fit for present service. Being disabled by sickness, entreats that his son may be appointed in his stead.

Jan. 15. 67. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. Communicates information received as to the officers and men of his fleet quitting their ships at Christmas time, [see Jan. 13, 1626,] and calls upon him presently to repair on board his own ship, and to charge the officers of all the ships composing his fleet not to depart from their ships without order. His fleet is also to ply up and down in order to meet with Hamburghers conveying munition to Spain, and to intercept and take ships of Dunkirk, Ostend, or elsewhere in the King of Spain's dominions. Jan. 16. 68. Sir John Eliot to his Agent in London. Sir Richard Edgecombe being dead, Sir John has written to James Eliot to solicit the Lord Chamberlain for the offices thereby become vacant. The agent is to urge on Mr. Eliot, and to tell him that if any money be expected by those who are about the Lord Chamberlain, Sir John would not spare for 20*l.* or 40*l.*, although he would not be seen in it himself, and that he would bestow upon Mr. Eliot as good a gelding as ever he owned. If Mr. Eliot be absent, the agent is to solicit one of the Lord Chamberlain's secretaries, and to make them promises, but to carry the matter as a motion of his own. [Abstract in the handwriting of a clerk of Sec. Conway, the original being stated in the endorsement, to have been "found in Sir John Eliot's chamber," probably when it was searched in May 1626.]

Jan. 16. 69. The same to the same. Recalling the directions given in the preceding letter, Sir Richard Edgecombe not being yet dead. [Similar abstract, written on the same paper as the above.]

[Jan. 16.] 70. The same to the same. Instructions how to conduct himself in learning news, and in transmitting the same to Sir John. [Written on the same paper as the preceding.]

Jan. 16. 71. Notarial certificate that Walter Wandelman and Michael Castell, having seen a notice set up on the Exchange that certain goods would be sold, produced to the Commissioners a certificate that the same goods had been duly claimed by Netherland merchants, but that the said Commissioners refused to stay the sale without order from further power.

Jan. 16. Ludlow Castle. 72. Wm. Earl of Northampton to the Council. The existence of the doubt alluded to in the Earl's letter of the 11th inst., as to whether he had authority to require certificates for the loan from the March shires, is confirmed by a letter inclosed; nevertheless he sends the best certificates he can frame for Radnor, Hereford, and Worcestershires. Incloses,

72. 1. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Hereford to Wm. Earl of Northampton. Acknowledge the receipt of his letter calling for a certificate of persons able to lend money to the King. On consideration of the King's letter, they conceive that he gave no directions to call for certificates except from the counties in Wales. Jan. 10, 1626.

Jan. 16. Whitehall. 73. [Sec. Conway to the Lord Mayor of London]. In behalf of Capt. Hill, a candidate for some office in the City. How faithfully he had employed himself during the late infection.

Jan 16. Eccleshall Castle. 74. Thos. Morton, Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield, to the Council. Had searched the Earl of Shrewsbury's house, called Pepperhill, but found therein nothing but vacuum, not only of armour, but almost of all furniture necessary for such an house.

Jan. 17. Plymouth. 75. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Got to Plymouth on Thursday [12th.] Was with Mons. Soubise on Wednesday, and made known the order to supply his ships for the transportation of corn to Rochelle. Has 23 sail, but most of them poor, miserable, rotten things; the men in number 1,263, but they had neither bread nor drink when Pennington came down. Is occupied removing provisions, sending away the unserviceable ships, and selecting those which will do the King best service. Yesterday, there came in from St. Lucar, the St. Peter of Calais, of which he made stay. Sends examinations from which it will appear that she is lawful prize. Minutely details his proceedings respecting her in connection with Sir James Bagg, who is wondrous industrious and willing. More money must be sent down; also a ship with cordage, anchors, and sails, and a strict command for a press, for the greatest part of the seamen are sick and dead. Incloses,

75. I. Particular of the ships and men of Mons. Soubise.

75. II. Examination of Thomas Williams, gunner of the St. Peter, of Calais. [Copy.]

75. VI. Examination of Garret Dubbler, master of the St. Peter, of Calais. [Copy.]

Jan. 17. Plymouth. 76. The same to Nicholas. Recapitulates the information as to his proceedings contained in the preceding letter. This is the third troublesome mission he has had within this twelvemonth. Thought the rest very bad, but they came not near this, for he is sent with a company of unwilling and unreasonable men. There is a miserable infection amongst them, and they die very fast. Refers him to the preceding letter for particulars as to the St. Peter, which will prove a very good purchase.

Jan. 17. London. 77. Philip Burlamachi to Sec. Conway. Recommends Baldassar Mendez, who has a request to urge, which is worthy of compassion. [French.]

Jan. 18. Plymouth. 80. Sir Wm. St. Leger to the Duke of Buckingham. Had received orders from the Council to reduce the number of Colonels, Lieut. Colonels, and all other inferior public officers, and had done so, but the order is full of inconvenience to his Majesty's service. Better disperse all the rest and retain these. When the States wished to reduce their armies, the late Prince of Orange advised them to keep together their prime officers whatsoever they did. Bodies of men may be got in all corners of the kingdom, but the officers being lost are hardly to be regained; and these men sent home with their fortunes in a worse condition than they were will not venture a second time. The whole army must be put upon another footing. The pay of the Captains must be increased to a competency. Is of no use where he is, and entreats he may be recalled.

Jan. 19. London. 84. John Chamberlain to Sir Dudley Carleton. No pleasure in going abroad to see the decay and desolation of the town. Coronation holds for Candlemas Day. The Dean of Westminster [Williams] ordered to appoint the Bishop of St. David's [Laud] as his deputy. The Queen's Bishop claimed to have the crowning of her, but the Archbp. of Canterbury would not permit it. The Queen has been publicly through the town in a rich embroidered carosse, to a banquet at the Tower. The King is to go into Scotland to be crowned. The blame of the late failure is laid by some on the Council, by others on General "Sit still" (as they style him), but by most on his Grace, and by him on Sir Thos. Love. Proclamation against recusants in anticipation of the Parliament, which is to begin on Feb. 6. Sir Edward Coke and other sheriffs returned, but the King will not allow them to quit their counties. Changes at Court.

Jan. 20. Lees. 96. Robt. Earl of Warwick to Sec. Coke. Continual tidings of insolencies committed by the Dunkirkers on the coast of Harwich and thereabouts, as appears by the inclosed letter from Sir Harbottle Grimstone [Sir Henry Glemham?]. Wishes it to be considered whether some order should not be taken for muskets, and aid for the defence of those parts. The country thereabouts begins to be as clamorous as hitherto they have been fearful. Incloses,

96. I. Sir Henry Glemham to Mr. Scott, Secretary to the Earl of Warwick. Yesterday several Dunkirkers took a Flemish pink at Orfordness, and an English ship within a mile of Aldborough, and drove another to run herself ashore. The Dunkirkers shot a piece of ordnance towards the people on the shore. Fears least they should attack Landguard Fort. Harwich is in great danger. 1626, Jan. 19.

Jan. 20. 98. Petition of "the Common Merchants of the United Provinces" to "the right gracious Prince, George Duke of Buckingham." Having sent out their ships to traffic in neutral countries, they had been seized on the English coasts, the goods they contained had been brought to the Tower, and the shipmen put in prison, as if the goods belonged to the subjects of Spain, contrary to the old alliance between Great Britain and the States. Pray the Duke to give gracious audience to their deputies, and that they may have restitution of their ships and goods.

Jan. 20. Plymouth. 99. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. 4,280*l.* all that has yet been received out of 5,000*l.*; the troops suffer severely in consequence. Nothing heard of the 6,000*l.* towards apparel. Many soldiers forced to keep their beds for want of clothes; and the Commissioners unable to fulfil the agreements they have entered into with merchants who have contracted to supply the clothes. No news of the troops in Ireland. If they are stayed in that country, the soldiers who have landed here may all be continued in Devon and Cornwall, but if they are drawn out of the villages into towns and garrisons where they are to provide themselves, they must be paid weekly in advance, according to the ancient course. Common clamour of the country as to the smallness of the soldier's pay; but as the Council think it fit to continue on the ancient footing, the Commissioners submit. The officers, except the provosts and surgeons, have been sent up to attend the Council for further directions. Inclose,

Jan. 20. Londesborough. 101. Henry Lord Clifford to the Council. His father and himself having been blamed by the Council for their slackness in the business of the Privy Seals, he refers to his letter to the Council of Sept. 13, and to that to Lord Conway of Nov. 18, to which he has received no reply. Protests his diligence in the service of the King, and desires them to free him from the imputation of having been guilty of so silly and unmannerly a thing as deferring to answer so special directions.

Jan. 20. Londesborough. 102. The same to Sec. Conway. On the same subject. Reminds him that in his last letter, sent by Mr. Ogle, he earnestly demanded further instructions. If he had not a rooted opinion of his Lordship's favour and affection he should interpret this last letter as a great injury.

Jan. 20. East Retford. 103. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Nottingham to the Council. Send a certificate of the arms taken from recusants in that county.

Jan. 20. Westminster. 104. The King to John Earl of Bristol [called in the MS. "the Lo. Digby"]. His Majesty wonders that the Earl should make a request to him of favour, when he knows what his behaviour in Spain deserved. At his Majesty's coming into that country, the Earl surmising that it was the King's intention to change his religion, offered his service to concur therein, and pointed out how convenient it was for the King to be a Roman Catholic. He did much wrong also to his Majesty's brother and sister, over-estimated the importance of Spain, depreciated this kingdom, and approved the proposal that the King's nephew should be brought up in the Court of the Emperor. Anthony Tutchin and Richard Harris as two of the four Masters Assistant of the Navy; and of Mr. Turner as Collector of the Duke's tenths in the port of London and elsewhere; with an application of Capt. Wilbraham to have warrant for the sole conveying of troops into the Low Countries, and to that end that he with the Nonsuch may remain in the Narrow Seas.

[Jan. 20.] 108. Minute of three petitions to the King. 1. From English merchants who desire to be discharged from bonds given during the last reign for a duty on hops, afterwards remitted. 2. For a pardon for Cardeus, a Dutchman, for manslaughter. 3. For a renewed lease to Mr. Meredith from the Cathedral of Leighlin.

Jan. 20. Dorset Court. 109. Lord Keeper Coventry to Sec. Conway. His Majesty's pleasure touching the priests at York should be signified to the Justices before whom they are to be tried, that, if condemned, they are to be reprieved until further direction; and this may be done by royal warrant or by letter from the Secretary. The document should apply only to those two persons, because, although his Majesty mean not to fall into blood, yet if they are delivered from the fear of blood, they will never go out of the land. Incloses, 109. I. Form of royal warrant applicable to this case.

Jan. 20. Wentworth. 110. Sir Thos. Wentworth to Sec. Conway. There being a strong and general belief that Lord Scrope purposes to leave the Presidentship of York, many of Wentworth's friends have moved him to use means to procure the office. He has never thought of it unless it may be effected with the good liking of Lord Scrope, and will not move further in it until he knows how his suit may please the Duke of Buckingham. He is fully resolved not to ascend one step in this kind unless he may take along with him a special obligation to the Duke, from whose bounty he acknowledges much already, and still reposes under the shadow of his favour. Subscribes himself, Conway's humble and affectionate kinsman.

Jan. 20. 111. Examination of Troilus Lovell before the Archbishop of Canterbury:—In September last was twelvemonth he went out of Ireland with Capt. Wye, on an adventure for pilchards; went to Rome, and there received a pass from the rector of the English College, but affirmed himself to be now a protestant, and in testimony thereof took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy.

Jan. 21. The Savoy. 2. George Lord Carew, Master General of the Ordnance, to Sec. Coke. Sends his opinion on certain suggestions of the Earl of Warwick, respecting the immediate fortification of Harwich, referred to Lord Carew by the Council. As to sending brass ordnance until iron may be cast; in and since Queen Elizabeth's time it has been thought fit to furnish forts with iron ordnance and to reserve brass for the ships. As to exchanging demy cannons for culverins; he thinks whole culverins will do sufficient execution. Nevertheless, if in consideration of the present time, the Lords direct otherwise, he will willingly obey.

Jan. 21. Whitehall. 3. Form of letter sent by Thos. Earl of Arundel and Surrey, Earl Marshal, to each of several noblemen and gentlemen, to give attendance at Westminster, on the 30th inst., to receive the Knighthood of the Bath.

[Jan. 21.] 11. Fair copy of the preceding as ultimately settled. The serjeants were allowed 2*s.* 6*d.* per day for travelling expenses, and were to travel 16 miles per day; total 102*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.*

Jan. 21. Tenby. 14. Sir Jas. Perrott to Sec. Conway. Refers to previous letters respecting the ship and soldiers at Milford Haven, and solicits favourable consideration. Complains that despatches of state come thither so slowly; the sheriff has just received three proclamations dated long since.

Jan. 21. Plymouth. 16. Mayor of Plymouth to Sec. Conway. Recommends to his consideration the petition of "a distressed Portugal," who has lain in prison a long time at Plymouth. His ship and goods were seized by Sir James Bagg, and sent to London, so that the petitioner is utterly destitute. Incloses,

16. 1. Petition of Paio Dreeges de Paz, Portuguese prisoner, to the Mayor of Plymouth. Has lived four days without any earthly sustenance; his case most miserable and contrary to the laws of God and nature; whilst his goods are detained, he is left to perish in a loathsome prison; has sold his clothes for food, and knows not what else to do.

Jan. 21. Dover Castle. 17. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. The greatest ship belonging to the Archduchess had been blown up "with a Hollander" in the road, and also another great ship laden with victuals. Sir John Suckling had been elected for Sandwich with great applause. Had been holding an Admiral's Court all that week, and may say boldly that he had made for the Duke 30,000*l.*, which he will proceed with all speed to make into ready money. Desires a warrant to put a ship of his to sea, and doubts not to give the Duke a good account of what she will do.

Jan. 22. Newark-upon-Trent. 18. Wm. Earl of Exeter to Sec. Conway. Begs a licence to be absent both from the coronation and the Parliament, having a grievous fit of the gout. This is not written to save charges. Before he attended the King into Kent, both he and his wife had all things ready, both for the entry and the coronation.

Jan. 22. Newark-upon-Trent. 19. The same to Buckingham. The Duke's honourable acceptance of the Earl's proxy in the last Parliament makes him the bolder humbly to present the same again, being grievously afflicted with the gout.

Jan. 22. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Lord Chief Justice Crewe. Concerning the reprieve of a prisoner. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 243.]

1626. VOL. XIX.

Jan. 22. 20. Sir Henry Glemham to Thos. Earl of Suffolk. Gives him information of the captures made by a Dunkirker on the previous Wednesday at Orfordness, and Aldborough [see 1625, Jan. 20, letter of Earl of Warwick and inclosure]. The country in great fear of the enemy's landing. Has prepared the towns to be in a readiness, especially for guarding the fort erecting at Languard; but the country is so backward in furnishing themselves with arms, that unless an example be made of some few there is little hope. They say that the ancient laws for these things are repealed. He fears that the Lord Lieut's. patent gives the Dep. Lieuts. no power to imprison but only in time of war.

Jan. 22. Hodsock. 21. Sir Gervase Clifton to the Council. Reports his proceedings with reference to 45 Privy Seals sent to him as collector for the co. of Nottingham. He had received the amounts from 34 persons (500*l.*) Five (100*l.*) had been silent or denied, and six (90*l.*) had sent excuses. Inclosed,

Jan. 22. Pendennis Castle. 22. Capt. John Bonython to Sec. Conway. Had stayed a Dutch East Indiaman under the authority of a letter from the Duke of Buckingham to Sir Robert Killigrew; there are 30 sail of Turks on the Spanish Coast, one of them (the Admiral) is sailing under his Majesty's flag, and threatens to visit Pendennis and Fowey, and so coast it along. Repeats his application for the command of the fort building at the latter place.

Jan. 22. 23. Order of Council made in the cause between the Company of Merchants Adventurers and Matthew de Quester, Postmaster of England for foreign services. Both parties are to attend the King's learned Council, who are to certify the true state of the cause. In the mean time, Mr. Billingsley is to forbear meddling with the conveyance of letters.

June 23. 30. Petition of Robt. Watson, John Bee, and others, owners of the ship Barbara, to the King. Their ship seized by Mons. Soubise, and carried into Rochelle, where it was captured by a French Admiral and adjudged prize. They pray for a remedy by reprisal. The petition is referred to the Duke of Buckingham as Lord High Admiral.

Jan. 23. Yarmouth. 31. Petition of Thos. Reeve to the same. Sends a sermon preached by him before the choice of Parliament-men, desiring that they might be such as might be forward to yield help to the King's designs. Offers it for publication, or, if the King will signify his command by Jeffrey Neave, a quarter waiter, Reeve will come up and preach it before the Parliament-men.

Jan. 23. Paris. 32. Sir Dudley Carleton to Dr. Balcanquall. Sends him two pieces set forth by an assembly of the French Church on politico-theological subjects. If all Churches in Christendom had maintained the liberty of that of France, very few had been reformed; and if all which are reformed had followed the example of England, few or none had remained popish. Wishes his successor in Holland the four elements, the buildings and conversation of France, but not the superstition of its populace, the dirt of Paris, or the confusion of the Court. Contrasts the fortunes of Elizabeth of Bohemia with those of the Queen of France.

Jan. 23. Dover Castle. 33. Sir John Hippisley to Nicholas. Recommends to his care Mr Brome's business which was to be heard in the Exchequer on the 30th. "One Sir Dearinge" has taken away a mast from the Duke's droit-gatherer at Hythe. Recommends that this should not be suffered, or other lords will do in the like kind. Mr. Prinsell, Mr. Eaton, Mr. Kemp, and Mr. Monings, likely to be chosen canopy-bearers for Dover. The last objected to as too low of stature, and as having been the cause of Sir Wm. Becher having lost his election. Sir John has now 30,000*l.* worth of goods of the Duke's in his hands. Wishes for a warrant for putting his ship the Have-at-all to sea. Begins the Musters to-day, and will then come to London.

Jan. 24. Haughton. 36. John Earl of Clare to his brother Sir Geo. Holles. Has just received the King's letter for his and his wife's attendance at the coronation. He is 110 miles from London, the ways are hardly passable. Even if they were ready on the morrow, and no family can be under two or three days in preparation, they could not perform the journey under five days, and should then only have 24 hours to fit themselves with robes. Begs him to represent these things to Buckingham and Conway, that they may satisfy the King respecting his enforced absence.

Jan. 24. 37. Commissioners for sale of prize goods to Buckingham. They had had one day's sale, which produced 7,000*l.*, by the candle. A second sale held that day had been altogether fruitless, because similar goods were selling at Dover at an under price. They recommend that all these goods should be brought to London for sale.

Jan. 24. 38. The Council to the Lord Lieutenants of the several counties. Requiring them to take effectual order that the King's commands, with reference to instructing and exercising the Trained Bands by men experienced in that service, be carefully executed. The necessity of this course is so obvious, that the Council assure themselves that no subject will account the small increase of charge any way considerable. [Minute.]

Jan. 24. Whitehall. 39. The Council to Buckingham. Letter in conformity with the above minute, addressed to the Duke as Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports. Inclose, 39. I. Copy of the letter from the King to the Council, 1626, Jan. 14.

Solicits directions as to apparelling two broken companies billeted at Fareham. Had received from the Collectors of the Privy Seals 1,000 marks, which would not long hold out, the weekly payment being 47*l.* Another Commissioner needed, the others dwelling at a distance. He had built a court of guard near the market-place, to keep the soldiers in practice and order.

Jan. 25. Dover Castle. 44. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. According to the Duke's command he had sent up Abraham Hugessen and Mr. Berry, but had stayed James Hugessen, who was so engaged in the business of the prize goods that he could not be spared. Sir John awaits the Duke's pleasure as to his coming to the coronation or the Parliament.

Jan. 25. Dover Castle. 45. The same to Nicholas. There had been a wreck at Seaford, but Lady Cotton and her son had taken all the goods. If this be suffered the ports will come to nothing. Cause why he has not sent up James Hugessen. The Lord Treasurer should remit the customs on the Duke's prize goods. Sir John has set Mr. Monings to his light horse again, which was struck out by Sir Henry Mainwaring; he will take it ill, but Sir John hopes Nicholas will give him no countenance.

Jan. 25. 46. Sir Robt. Karr to Sec. Conway. Sends him Capt. Walker, one who asserted that some whom he could name said that the King would not live to be crowned, and that he was married to the Infanta; with words concerning the late fleet.

Jan. 25. 47. Attorney General Heath to the same. The Archbishop of Canterbury had informed him that it was his Majesty's pleasure to renew the Ecclesiastical Commission, but the Archbishop being a principal Commissioner, it was not proper for him to signify the King's pleasure. He sends a warrant for the King's signature.

Having been directed by the Council to take order to indemnify the collectors of the second subsidy granted in the 21st of King James, against payments made by such collectors to the soldiers of Count Mansfeldt; the Dep. Lieuts. entreat the Council that if it be their meaning they should levy the money upon the country, they should have an express warrant to do so, and not be left to their own construction as to whether by rules of equity the same may be levied contrary to the Act of Parliament.

Jan. 26. 52. Order of Sir Henry Marten, Judge of the High Court of Admiralty, in the suit respecting the St. Peter, of Havre de Grace. It being proved that the owners were French subjects, and that the lading did not contain certain alleged Spanish goods, it was ordered that the ship should be released from all further detention.

Jan. 26. 53. Estimate, in the handwriting of Capt. Richd. Gyffard, of the charge of 8 merchant ships and 4 tartanas, with 800 men, for 12 months: 10,943*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, [Apparently with reference to some suggested expedition.]

Jan. 26. Downs, from aboard The Happy Entrance. 54. Sir Hen. Palmer to [Buckingham]. Ships sent to the westward met with no other ships than eleven Holland men-of-war. He had put to sea, but was driven back by a great storm. The Earl of Warwick had requested him to send ships to Harwich; they sailed on Saturday last. Visit to the Downs of Dunkirk spies. Solicits instructions concerning the two "Danskers" stayed by him; their victual is spent.

Jan. 26. 56. Commissioners of the Navy to Sec. Coke. Term for which the King's ships are victualled expired on the 12th inst.; the Commissioners solicit an order to prepare an estimate for a month's supply. Other suggested arrangements for ships to serve under Capt. Pennington, and also for those needed for guarding the Thames. The Garland to have her ballast shifted; by long continuance it has infected the ship, and caused great mortality; no less than 20 men thrown overboard.

Jan. 26. 57. Bond of Nicholas Bacon, of Gray's Inn, Gent., in 200*l.*, conditioned for his appearance before the Secretaries of State within three days after warning left at his chambers.

Jan. 26. 58. Statement addressed to Nicholas respecting a suit instituted in the Exchequer by Jacob Brames against John Berry and Thos. Fulnetby, for a matter which was already in dispute between the same parties in the Chancery of the Cinque Ports. It is suggested that the Duke of Buckingham should take such order therein as was necessary for preserving the right of his Chancery of the Cinque Ports.

Jan. 26. Westminster. 59. The King to Thos. Earl of Suffolk. The Lords and Commons in Parliament having petitioned his Majesty that the ancient discipline of the two Universities, which has much declined in these latter days, might be restored, the Earl as Chancellor of Cambridge is directed to write to the Vice-Chancellor and heads of Colleges to consider what are the true occasions of this general offence taken at their government, and what are fit to be the remedies thereof, whereunto the King will put to his hand if there be cause. [Copy.]

Jan. 27. Beaumaris. 60. Dep. Lieuts. of Anglesea to Wm. Earl of Northampton. Their island lies subject to the spoil of shipping bound for Ireland. It has of late been much depopulated by sickness and extreme poverty, so that last harvest great store of corn perished for want of men to bring it in. The fortifications which existed in 1588 are decayed and levelled with the ground. They desire permission to renew the same; with liberty to remove the ordnance from the castle of Beaumaris to places where it may be more useful.

Jan. 27. Westminster. 61. Order of Council, on the suggestion of the Lord High Admiral, that his Majesty be moved to increase the medium of allowance for every sailor serving the King from 14*s.* to 20*s.* per month, allowing thereout 4*d.* to a preacher, 2*d.* to a baker [barber?], and 6*d.* a month to the chest; also that there be allowed a bounty of 5*s.* per ton to shipbuilders on every ship built of above 100 tons.

Jan. 27. 62. Memorandum for the Duke of Buckingham to move his Majesty for the increase of pay to sailors mentioned in the last article.

Jan. 27. 63. Memorial of George Lord Carew, Master General of the Ordnance, to the Council. The Lord Treasurer had agreed with Burlamachi for 100 lasts of powder from Amsterdam and Hamburgh, and with Mr. Evelyn for 20 lasts monthly, but it is suggested that the shires and maritime towns should be warned to make provision for themselves without depending upon the King's stores, and that liberty should be given to manufacture gunpowder for home consumption from foreign saltpetre.

Jan. 27. Kinsale. 64. Sir Thos. Love to Buckingham. Since their arrival they have had great mortality both of sea and landmen; the soldiers are billeted ashore. Order given to the Rainbow and various other ships, which they had made as able as they could, to proceed to England with the first fair wind. The Reformation has lost all her masts and cannot depart until masts and rigging come from England. A Dutch East Indiaman of 1,000 tons has come into Kinsale dismasted. Sir George Chudleigh has made stay of a bark from Bilboa, having on board six Jesuits with divers letters. They have also stayed a ship from Lisbon, with a cargo of tobacco and sugar, and "a small bunch of diamonds." The two stayed ships are ordered for England.

1626. VOL. XIX.

Jan. 28. Plymouth. 65. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Had made choice of 16 ships in those parts, which, with the 14 coming from London would make up 30, the number for which he had commission. The great wants of the fleet, with suggestions for their supply. The masters of the merchant ships most unwilling to serve. The master of the Swiftsure very backward, and "very cross," as the report goes, to his Captain Sir Samuel Argoll, which broke his heart, and four days since he died. Interview with Mons. Soubise, and final arrangements for the despatch of his ships. Several ships had been stayed as prizes, and handed over to Sir James Bagg. Warrants should be sent to the Dep. Lieuts. in those parts to press 1,400 or 1,500 seamen, for all the best men have run up into the country. Requests 200*l.* on account to enable him to furnish himself for so long a voyage. Also desires to have his commission, and that it may be made so large that he may be able to govern these disordered people. Incloses, 65. I. Names of the 30 ships he has chosen, with their Captains.

Jan. 28. Plymouth. 66. Sir Wm. St. Leger to [Sec. Conway]. The charge of keeping these men were better spared than spent, if the present course be allowed to continue. The men live at more ease than if they were at home, but they will never be of use as soldiers unless paid beforehand, whereby the men will learn to live on their means, the Captains will be enabled to redeem their arms that now lie in pawn for the repairing, and the soldiers may be clothed that now lie abed for want of covering. Difficulty of getting the contracts for clothing executed in that country, and unwillingness of the Commissioners to deprive the country of advantage by reporting the fact. The increase of the soldiers weekly lendings to 3*s.* has benefitted the country, but not the soldiers. Begs for a payment to himself, having hitherto lived on his own poor fortune, and that he may have some authority above that of the town clerk.

Jan. 28. Bishopsthorpe. 67. Tobias Matthew, Archbishop of York, to Sec. Conway. Desires that he may be excused attendance at the Parliament on account of great infirmity and weakness of body.

Jan. 28. Compton. 68. Wm. Earl of Northampton to the Council. Sends certificates for Privy Seals for the Counties of Gloucester, Denbigh, Carmarthen, Brecknock, Merioneth, and Cardigan, no small task, having had so little assistance.

Jan. 28. Bridport. 69. Bailiffs and 12 inhabitants of Bridport to Buckingham. They had returned to Parliament Sir Richd. Strode, whom the Duke had recommended to them, and would have returned Mr. Clarke, but two days before the receipt of the Duke's letter they passed their promise to Sir Lewis Dive.

Jan. 28. 70. Sir Geo. More, one of the collectors of the loans on Privy Seals for co. Surrey, to the Council. Sends a list of persons (26) who made excuse or delay in paying the sums required of them. Has paid in the money received. The Privy Seals unpaid amount to 600*l.* Incloses, 70. I. The list before mentioned.

Jan. 28. Londesborough. 71. Henry Lord Clifford to Sec. Conway. Has received letters out of Northumberland with a long roll of strange disorders committed there. If he will send down a Commission of Inquiry, his Majesty will see how far the papists and the thieves have gotten the upper hand.

Jan. 28. 72. Minute of a communication from the owners of the merchant ships lent to the French [to Sec. Conway]. On the contract made at Dieppe, security was to have been given to these owners within 15 days after the delivery of the ships. This has not been given, nor any satisfaction for the monthly pay, likewise specified in the contract. Burlamachi offers, that if the owners will authorize a party to be named by him to receive the money in France, he will pay the same here in London at certain periods. Desire to know if they may accept Burlamachi's offer.

Jan. 28. Buckingham to Sir Henry Palmer. There is daily advertisement of English and Scottish ships taken by the enemy between Yarmouth and the Downs; and complaint is made that, notwithstanding Buckingham's many directions, no diligence is used in this service. Once more Sir Henry is required, presently to command to sea so many ships as may chase away or apprehend such ships as make spoil of the King's subjects. He is to send up the names of any Captains whom he finds careless or negligent. [Copy. See Vol. xviii. No. 67.]

Jan. 29. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Attorney General Heath. To renew the Commission for the reprieve and employment of convicted prisoners. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 243.]

Jan. 29. Whitehall. The same to Henry Lord Clifford. Giving him an account of the reasons of such omissions as his Lordship conceived were made to him, by the not answering of his letters concerning Privy Seals. [Minute, ibid.]

Jan. 29. Hinton. 73. John Poulett to Sec. Conway. Yesterday, in the evening, he received letters from Lord Arundel, giving him notice that the King had nominated him amongst others to receive the Knighthood of the Bath at the coronation, and for that cause requiring him to be at Court, furnished and appointed, on the 30th inst. His house being distant 120 miles, it is impossible for him to be there at the time appointed. Takes singular comfort to find himself in his Majesty's memory.

Jan. 29. 74. Certificate of John Royston, Curate of St. Andrews, Holborn, under the Rev. John Hackett, Rector, that Stephen Birkbeck, [Birthbeck], late attendant on the Spanish and French Ambassadors, had been reclaimed from the Roman Catholic religion.

Jan. 29. The Downs. 75. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. Perceived that the Duke had received information of much neglect in that service. Beseeches him to consider what could be done. Has in charge 12 ships; 4 are at Harwich, with instructions to scour the coast between that place and Yarmouth; 3 are ordered to the westward; 1 is gone to Flushing; 2 are employed to convoy the ships laden with deer and horses to Dieppe. The Hollanders have been little out of the Downs. Having had the happiness to become "his Grace's," Sir Hen. hopes he shall be favoured until he is found faulty.

Jan. 29. The Downs. 76. The same to Sec. Conway. Perceives that he has some back friends. Repeats the information in the preceding letter respecting the disposition of his fleet.

Jan. 29. Dover. 77. Daniel Urrye to Sir Henry Palmer. Thinks long to hear from him what shall become of the [St.] Peter. Sir Henry being in London, Urrye hopes he will procure order for her being fitted for sea. Sends account of what ordnance she will want.

Jan. 29. 78. Petition of the Master and Wardens of the Trinity House to Buckingham. The cause of the great abuses amongst the seamen of the navy is the smallness of their pay. The Duke is solicited, either by his Majesty's pleasure or by a bill in Parliament, to procure them such fair pay that they make a poor living of it.

Jan. 29. Whitehall. 79. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. There are under his charge at least 12 merchant and prize ships; he is to send three parts abroad to range the sea, to meet with Dunkirkers, or to intercept Hamburghers carrying prohibited provisions to the enemy. As before directed, he is to search the two Dunkirkers he had stayed, and if they contain prohibited goods, to send them to London; if not, to release them. [Copy.]

Jan. 30. Westminster. 80. Letters patent, whereby Thos. Earl of Arundel and Surrey, Earl Marshal, and Wm. Earl of Pembroke, were appointed Commissioners for making Knights of the Bath previous to the coronation. [Copy.]

Jan. 30. Lincoln. 81. Dean and Chancellor of Lincoln to Sir John Lambe, Commissary of their Peculiars, within the Counties of Northampton, Rutland, Leicester, and Huntingdon. Send him copy of a letter received from the Bishop of Lincoln, enjoining upon them the performance of the requirements contained in a letter addressed to the Bishop by the Archbishop of Canterbury; such last-mentioned letter containing a copy of a letter from the King to the Archbishop, in which he charges him to execute the laws against popish recusants. Sir John is required to put the said letters in due execution within the peculiar jursidiction in his charge.

Jan. 30. Dover Castle. 82. Thos. Benson to Nicholas. Letter sent by Mr. Van Hobrooke does not seem to have been delivered. It principally related to his helping Benson to resign his present place. News of ships stayed at Dover, and questions as to the ownership of their cargoes.

[Jan. 30.] [The King to Attorney General Heath.] Roger North and Robert Harcourt having discovered means to take journies into the river of the Amazons in America, the Attorney General is to prepare a bill for the King's signature, certifying a grant of incorporation of the said two persons and their company with all customary privileges. The limits within which they were to traffic are set forth. [Draft, in the handwriting of Nicholas, written on the blank page of the preceding letter.]

Jan. 30. 83. List of ships taken up for his Majesty's service.

Jan. 30. 84. Survey of victuals on board the Adventure, taken by Mr. Duffell and Mr. Terne.

Jan. 30. Chatham Dock. 85. Joshua Downing to Nicholas. Recommends Henry Hubbard, Thomas Corrall, and John White, boatswains, for promotion. Does not desire that any whom he recommends should not be as beneficial and thankful to him as any other.

Jan. 30. Dover. 86. Peter Cannon to Buckingham. Complains of the interference with his office of Peter Dibbs, formerly deputy to Fulnetby. The St. Clare, a Dunkirker, on the Goodwins last year, but seized by the Hollanders as a prize, having come into Dover Harbour, Cannon claimed her best anchor and cable as a forfeiture to the Duke for coming aground. The Captain contested the right, but ultimately gave bond for the value. Cannon submits that the Duke is also entitled to the ship as a drift.

Jan. 30. Whitehall. 87. Sec. Coke to Captain John Pennington. So much corn and other provisions must be bought in the markets there, as, upon conference with Mons. Soubise, shall be found necessary for the relief of the town [Rochelle]. As these cannot without great hazard be put into the town by Mons. Soubise alone, Pennington's whole fleet is to be made ready to convoy them, and he is to be sure to fit himself so that he may be able to encounter the French. Advice as to his selection of ships and preparation of victuals He should treat the Commissioners with due respect, and endeavour to concur with them in advancing the service. Care to be taken as to powder and other munition. Authority to press he has already ; monies and instructions will be sent by the Duke. When he takes prizes he should seize the bills of lading; he should have done so with the St. Peter.

Jan. 31. Plymouth. 88. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. The letters of the Lords directing them to send certain regiments to other places according to a list said to be inclosed, arrived without any list inclosed, therefore they cannot give satisfaction therein. The troops cannot be drawn together for want of clothing. Their weekly payment is 600*l.*, 12,000*l.* is wanted for 4,000 suits of clothes, and they have been there six weeks, so that 15,600*l.* is the amount required.

1626. VOL. XIX.

Jan. 31. 89. Commissioners of the Navy to Sec. Coke. Have received a charge, preferred by the master and company of the Sapphire, of London, against John Bond, their captain, in which many abuses and misdemeanours are attributed to him. The Commissioners entreat that the captain may be sent for, and the charges be investigated.

Jan. 31. The Downs. 90. Sir Hen. Palmer to Nicholas. If it were as much in his power as in his will to prevent the spoils committed by the Dunkirkers, they should not molest his Grace. In proof that he has endeavoured to incite the ships of his fleet to diligence, he sends his last instructions. The ships were shortly provided with necessaries, especially Capt. Driver's ship, the John Bonaventure, although he had given the Commissioners notice. The Duke's commission to press much slighted; of thirty pressed only seven appeared. Incloses,

90. 1. Instructions given by Sir Hen. Palmer to Capt. Maplesden to put to sea with the Delight, the Salutation, and the St. Claude, and to cruise in the Channel in search of ships of the enemy.

Jan. 31. Downs. 91. The same to Buckingham. The Merchant Bonaventure found a man-of-war of Sallee at Flushing. Sent his boat aboard and took by force 20 Christian slaves, whom he has brought thither. Being seamen, he purposes to dispose of them amongst the ships. The ships intended for the westward were still wind bound. Ships with deer and horses came into the Downs on Sunday. If weather will permit he will stand over to the coast of France and Flanders. Complains of Captains of ships pressing without moderation or discretion, which proves a great distaste to the subject, and a great hindrance to trade. He has never received orders as to the two Danskers; intends to release one of them on security.

Jan. 31. 92. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. The Duke of Buckingham, by his letters to Capt. Pennington, had discharged them from the care of the fleet. Only 4,280*l.* received out of the 5,000*l.* promised by the Lord Treasurer. Difficulty of procuring money in that country. The allowance of 3*s.* per week to the soldiers will much advance the service. P.S. 1,100*l.* of Privy Seal money just received.

Jan. 31. 93. List of men mustered aboard the Adventure at Gillingham, by Capt. Downing.

[Jan.] 94. Wm. Viscount Wallingford to the Council. Having received letters to put Sir Peter Vanlore in possession of the Manor House of Sonning, he inquires whether Sir Peter ought not previously to give bond for payment of 50*l.* yearly for the maintenance of Lady Lydall; and also, whether an injunction in Chancery is a sufficient warrant to remove a possession settled by a verdict at common law.

[Jan.] 95. Suggestion for a proclamation to be sent out with the writs for the Parliament, charging electors not to make choice of any burgesses who are not at that time dwelling within their towns.

VOL. XIX.

[Jan.] 96. Extract from Stat. 1 Hen. V., Cap. 1., for knights of shires and burgesses to be residents within the shires and boroughs for which they are chosen.

[Jan.] 97. "Remembrances against the Parliament;" being suggestions for Acts of Parliament for re-annexing all Hundreds and Wapentakes which had been severed from Counties, for annexing to the Exchequer the Court of the Duchy of Lancaster, and for the confirmation of Letters Patent from the Crown, where the patentee answered to the Crown after the rate of 60 years purchase.

[Jan.] 98. Petition of the owners and merchants of the Sampson to Buckingham. Having presented a former petition praying that their ship might be freed from the press made of her by Capt. Pennington, they have heard that the Duke has been given to understand that they desire to sell their ship; they certify that they are not willing to do so, and reiterate their former prayer.

[Jan.] 99. Richard Fitton [Phitton], Ensign to Sir Robert Knowles, in Lord Essex's regiment, in the service of Holland, to Buckingham. Coming to England for a supply of men about the last of October 1625, he and 60 of his men were taken at sea by the Dunkirkers, and have been kept prisoners at Ostend. They are helpless unless the Duke will interfere for their discharge.

[Jan.] Middle Temple. 100. James Howell to Sec. Conway. A person who haunts the Court may be suspected to come for no good. The father of the person alluded to was an English minister and afterwards an officer of the Inquisition. He comes from Brussels, and has dependency upon Gondomar; suggests that he should be brought before the Secretary. His name is James Waddesworth.

[Jan.] 101. Justices of the Peace for co. Middlesex to the Council. Report their proceedings in obedience to directions to air and purify houses and stuff infected.

[Jan.] 102. Clause suggested to be inserted in Capt. Pennington's instructions, directing him to give assistance to the officers of the Admiralty, in making stay of ships at anchor in any of his Majesty's ports. [Draft, in the handwriting of Nicholas.]

[Jan.] 103. Reasons assigned by Blase Carill, why he cannot lend 40*l.* to his Majesty.

[Jan.?] 104. Estimate for setting forth to sea two of the King's ships, and one merchant ship, with 530 men, to be employed in guarding the river of Hamburgh for six months; 9,519*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*

[Jan.] 105. Dep. Lieuts. of Cornwall to Wm. Earl of Pembroke, Lord Chamberlain. Report that they had caused the Trained Bands to be mustered and trained in the manner prescribed by the printed book, and that they had their beacons in readiness. Fowey, Looe, and Penzance are the places most liable to sudden incursions of an enemy. They especially recommend the fortification of the first. There are many other places where an enemy might land, but there they will be ready to oppose their bodies, which have ever been esteemed the best English fortresses.

1626. VOL. XIX.

Jan.? 106. Petition of Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford [claimant of the title] to the King. The King appointed Lords Commissioners to examine the cause between the petitioner and Lord Willoughby. Petitioner has attended the Lord Marshal's appointments, but the cause is still unheard. Prays that the cause may be expedited, especially on account of the approaching coronation.

[Jan.] 107. Sir Dudley Digges to the King. Long letter of advice as to the course best to be adopted in the ensuing Parliament. Writes as one who had served the King's royal father for 20 years, and as one of the King's loyal subjects and true men; reviews the condition of Europe and the state of England; holds up to the King the example of Queen Elizabeth; advises him to give the Commons satisfaction with respect to the question of customs by proposing "another book of rates reformed"; and suggests to him to disregard the various opinions of over-forward Parliament men. He doubts not of the next Parliament's success, if the King will yield some such good things as the Parliament may desire. Counsels the King to take no notice of particular follies, to receive all petitions with good words, to allow the Parliament to examine the revenues of the Crown, to dispark unuseful lands of pleasure, with several other practical reforms, and above all, to look into the several abilities of his noblemen, and be served by ablest men for parts and breeding. [Copy of a rough draft, said in the indorsement to have been "found in his chamber," probably when his study was searched in May 1626.]

Jan. 108. Declaration in an action of trespass in the King's Bench, Robt. Burges against Wm. Tanner, for breaking and entering the house of the plaintiff, at Colyton, co. Devon, and taking therefrom a certain horse.

[Jan.] 109. Order of the Earl Marshal that Peers at the coronation are to take precedence as Peers, and to wear their Peers' robes; also that they and the officers in attendance are to robe in the Painted Chamber and Whitehall where the Court of Requests is usually kept. The King will seat himself on his throne in Westminster Hall at 7½ A.M., and thence proceed to the Church.

[Jan.] 110. Minute of the first part of the preceding order.

[Jan.] 111. A collection out of the Liber Regalis, remaining in the Treasury of the Church of Westminster, touching the crowning of the King and Queen together.

[Jan.] 112. The order and ceremonies used at the coronation of the Kings and Queens of England; with marginal additions and alterations apparently with reference to the coronation of Charles I.

[Jan.] 113. "The Abreviament of the Ordre how the King of England shall behave himselfe in his coronation, and the Ordre of the Quene, crowned togedder, and what services all other persons shall doe att the same." [Jan.] 116. Names of freeholders in Gloucestershire, whose lands are worth 40*l.* per annum, and who were owners of them for three years before the death of King James.

[Jan.] 117. The wholesale tradesmen of London who frequent Lynn fair to the Council. Lynn fair, which is usually held on February 2, had been put off on account of the plague, but that disease having ceased in Lynn and abated in London, the petitioners pray that goods sent by them to Lynn, and intended for the fair, may now be put to sale in that town.

[Jan.?] 118. Petition of Capt. Richard Gyffard and Roger Gyffard to the Council. Their ship, the Fortune, was plundered on April 3, 1612, by the Dog or Hound of Rotterdam, Peter Cosson, master; they had sought for satisfaction in a variety of ways, and lately by the Lord Admiral in person, and had received a promise of reparation from the States; all being unavailing, they pray for letters of marque.

[Jan.?] 119. Another similar petition of Capt. Richd. Gyffard and Roger Gyffard to the Council, praying for compensation out of the goods of Flemings, then under arrest.

[Jan.] 120. Petition of the Bailiffs, burgesses, and inhabitants of Aldborough, co. Suffolk, with the Dep. Lieuts. of the county, to the Council. Aldborough is daily in danger to be surprised by the Dunkirkers, who have not only taken a bark of the town worth 700*l.*, but have assaulted the town by shooting at it. The petitioners pray that their town may be fortified, and that they may have 10 or 12 demy-culverins, with which they may defend themselves.

[Jan.?] 121. Petition of the Chief Officers of the Field, Colonels, Serjeant-Majors, and Captains, employed in this last voyage, to the King, for leave to resume their employments in the Low Countries. The petitioners make known to the King that they are most of them "men of fortune," wherefore they conclude he will think them "worthy to receive their entertainments."

[Jan.?] 122. Statement of the King's intentions with reference to the pledging of the plate and jewels of the crown by Sackville Crow and Mr. Calandrini, and the purposes for which they were to stand as a security. Fr.

Feb. 2. Plymouth. 20. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. Explanations of rumoured boasting on his part of the power he had received from the Duke, and of his reception by the Commissioners at Plymouth. He had taken up eight ships more, and had sent to Dartmouth for other two. They would all be ready before they had either victuals or men. Present of 5 lbs. of tobacco sent by Sir James Bagg. Does not want his Commission as the Duke is coming.

Feb. 2. Dartmouth. 21. Capt. John Mason, Commissary General for victualling the fleet and army, to Nicholas. Five weeks ago, he wrote respecting a ship of Sallee named the Heart's Desire or Good Fortune, which he had taken in Crookhaven, in Ireland, and had brought to St. Ives. Wishes to be allowed to have her in lieu of his pay due to him. Desires Nicholas's furtherance, which at his coming to London he would not make a fruitless accompt.

Feb. 3. Whitehall. 23. Sir Benjn. Rudyerd to [Sir Francis Nethersole.] Walter Montagu was said to have returned from France, bringing a promise of restitution of our ships, and a peace with the Protestants, but many believe this to be merely a preparation for the Parliament. His Majesty was yesterday crowned. The Queen was not crowned (her Church not recognising our Bishops) but stood in a window at Sir Abraham Williams's, to see the show. The Parliament begins on Monday. Sir Edw. Cecil is still in Ireland. The Duke will do what he can to get Nethersole returned, but he is exceedingly "streighted." Many Earls to be created;—Cardinals to carry the consistory if there be occasion. The title of Oxford likely to continue in the name of Vere; the claim has had a hearing, but no judgment given. The Queen's pastoral and mask deferred until Shrovetide. Other Court news.

Feb. 3. Chatham Dock. 24. Joshua Downing to Nicholas. Recommends Philip Warde for painter to the navy.

Feb. 4. Plymouth. 25. Captain John Pennington to Buckingham. On receipt of a command to make up his fleet to 40 ships, he had given warrant to the shipwrights, who had chosen 9 at Plymouth, and he had sent to Dartmouth for three or four more. What men will be required. Hopes to finish all the ships by next spring-tide. The French ships will be ready by the end of next week. Hears nothing of the provisions for the Rochellers. Details the wants of the fleet; amongst them, surgeons, with their salves and unguents, and 1,500 "hamackoes" for men's lodgings. There is a general complaint, especially amongst the common sailors, of want of their pay; they will hardly be drawn to sea without it. Order ought to be sent that the Mayor should allow the sick to be put ashore, and strict orders for a press of sailors. News from Rochelle, which leads him to think they shall find little opposition. Two ships arrived with Persian Ambassadors. Sir James Bagg very forward in the service. He has paid to Pennington 540*l.* out of the prize. Incloses,

25. I. Report of the shipwrights as to nine ships by them selected for this present voyage.

25. II. List of the 39 ships he had made choice of, with subsequent additions and alterations made by Nicholas.

Feb. 4. 26. Petition of Mark Willes to the King. Prays that he may receive compensation out of prize goods at Dover, for the loss of 400 quarters of oats, and 100 quarters of malt, shipped for the Duke of Brunswick, and taken by the Dunkirkers: with reference underwritten to the Duke of Buckingham.

Feb. 4. 27. Petition of Thos. Askew and James Stroud to the same. Prays for similar compensation for 660*l.*, the value of their bark, the Hopewell, captured by a Spanish frigate and taken into Blankenburg, and 155*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* paid by them for their ransom: with similar reference.

Feb. 4. 28. Bill of Sir Lewes Lewkenor, Master of the Ceremonies, for coaches and attendance on Extraordinary Ambassadors of France and Savoy, from Dec. 7, 1625, to this day: total 330*l.*

[Feb. 5.] 29. The Duke of Buckingham to Sackville Crow. The carriage of the States in the business of the jewels is malicious and dangerous, but the Duke knows Crow to have a heart that is constant and will not be daunted. He is to acquaint the King and Queen of Bohemia, the Prince of Orange and the States, how important it is to the King of England, and to them, to make the requisite payments to the King of Denmark. To break with that king, is to overthrow all the great actions now in hand. To have his jewels refused for a pawn will dishearten the King of England in his enterprises and intentions for the good of that state. Crow is not by any means to come away with the jewels until he sees what course will be taken. [Copy.]

[See Vol. XIX. No. 59. Copy.]

Feb. 6. 42. Names of persons in co. Chester who have not sent the loans required from them on Privy Seals.

[Feb. 6.] 43. Bishop Williams of Lincoln to the King. The King's gracious speeches to him when he took his leave, and his own conscious innocence, have comforted him in the affliction of being enjoined from his Majesty's presence—the only Heaven wherein his soul delights. Has endured patiently his discharge from his great office, his required absence from the Council, his sequestration from the coronation, and licensed absence from Parliament, but as he has no friend left about the King, he begs humbly to represent that his purchased pension is unpaid, and that he has not received any writ of summons to the Parliament, so that he cannot appoint a proxy. Prays the King to mitigate the causeless displeasure of the Duke of Buckingham; not to believe accusations against him; and not to allow the Royal name to be used in Parliament against a poor Bishop who has ever affectionately honoured his Majesty's person above all objects in the world to come. [Copy.]

Feb. 6. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Buckingham. Acquainting him with two letters prepared for the despatch into France concerning the Ambassador. Sending his Grace some propositions concerning the regiments, and an abstract of Mr. Carleton's letter. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 244.]

Feb. 8. London. 50. Philip Burlamachi to Nicholas. Requests him to procure the Duke's order for Sir John Hippisley to deliver certain tobacco to him for his Majesty's service.

Feb. 8. 51. Petition of the Merchants of London trading to Rouen to the Duke of Buckingham. On the 28th Dec. last the Council ordered the discharge of the St Peter, of Newhaven, on proof that she belonged to subjects of France ; proof having been made, the Judge of the Admiralty ordered her to be discharged, but she is again stayed by order of the Duke ; thereupon the French not only detain the petitioners' ships by way of reprisal, but threaten to arrest their goods and debts throughout that kingdom, which will be the ruin of the petitioners and many thousands of the King's poor subjects who are dependent upon them ; they pray the Duke therefore to discharge the said ship.

Feb. 8. Austin Friars. 52. Sir John Ogle to Sec. Conway. Sets forth the grounds of his wish to enter the church. Desires at first only to receive the orders of a Deacon, relying upon God and the King's goodness for what shall follow. Wishes the King to dispose of the poor fortunes he holds in Ireland and the Netherlands for the benefit of himself and his family. He mentions his having spent in the Netherlands the best of his time, not a little of his blood, and also his having lost, of two, one of the fairest lights of his body.

[Feb. 8.] 53. The Gunners of various ships in harbour to Nicholas. Send him a petition to the Duke for a supply of powder, which they beg him to further with his accustomed favour. Will be ready to gratify his love as they have done formerly. Inclose,

1626. VOL. XX.

Feb. 8. 55. Petition of Humfrey Slanye to Buckingham. A ship and goods belonging to the petitioner, worth 4,000*l.*, were taken by pirates last June and carried into Sallee; part of the goods were afterwards laden in two Holland ships, which were stayed by the King's fleet and brought into the Thames; the petitioner claimed his goods, and obtained a decree for the same; they are worth 850*l.*; in consideration of his great losses and of large sums formerly paid for customs, he prays the Duke's warrant for their delivery without further trouble.

Feb. 8. 56. Petition of Richd. Bathurst to the same; praying the Duke's letters to admonish Sir Hen. Palmer to satisfy the petitioner for a debt of 40*l.*, or that he might be allowed to take his course by law.

Feb. 8. Grant to John Levingston, one of the Bedchamber to the late King, and Simon Chamber, of the office of Clerk of the Market of the King's house and throughout the realm, for 23 years, at the rent of 50*l.* for the first year, 150*l.* for the second year, and 336*l.* for the remainder of the term. [Case A., Charles I., No. 6.]

Feb. 9. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. He is to give order to all his ships to lie in wait for the Sallee men which the merchant Bonaventure met with at Flushing. He is also to send ships to lie on the coast of France to intercept ships coming out of Spain. The Duke is informed that the ships at Harwich lie still in harbour, and suffer the Dunkirkers to commit spoil: he is to quicken and awaken them. It seems very strange that none of Sir Henry's ships have effected anything. He is to search into the cause and apply a remedy. [Copy. See Vol. XIX. No. 79.]

Feb. 9. Plymouth. 57. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Thanks for care taken to supply the Commissioners with money. The increased allowance to the soldiers was to begin on Feb. 4. Reference for personal explanations to Sir Wm. St. Leger. Money received and disbursed, 6,006*l.*

Feb. 9. Plymouth. 58. The same to the same. Report the case of Captain Andrew Pawlet, who had sold four barrels of his ship's powder for supply of his own necessity and relief of his sick men; and that of the Gunner of the Sarah Bonaventure, accused of having broken the store room. Have bound them to appear, and request further instructions. Urge the immediate necessity for money.

Feb. 9. Whitehall. 59. Sec. Coke to Sir James Bagg. Six Spanish Captains having been brought home in the St. Andrew, the Lord Admiral had granted them to a kinsman of Sir John Coke's lately taken by the Dunkirkers, to satisfy for his ransom. Bagg is requested to treat with them as to what they will raise amongst them. The Dunkirkers kept Coke's kinsman in extreme misery till he had given assurance of 300*l.* ransom.

Feb. 9. The Hague. 60. Sackville Crow to Buckingham. Reports his proceedings. Fourteen days having passed, he had used the Duke's protest, with an amplification of the King's just dislike should he fail in his expectation of procuring the money. Is assured that if Amsterdam would undertake it the money would be had in three days. Will drive the matter to a final resolution. Begs that a convoy may be sent over fit to trust such a treasure with. Callandrini, in an inclosed letter, has set forth the wants and complaints of the King of Denmark and Count Mansfeldt. The Queen [of Bohemia] prays daily for the happy success of this ill-faced Parliament.

Feb. 9. The Hague. 61. Sackville Crow to Sec. Conway. Refers to what he has written to the Duke, which he presumes will be communicated to Lord Conway.

Feb. 9. 62. Names of those who had contracted with the Commissioners at Plymouth for suits of apparel for the soldiers.

Feb. 9. 63. Number of officers and soldiers billeted in Devon and Cornwall, with their weekly charge. [The total number of soldiers was 3,700. The payment to the soldier was 3*s.* per week; to the Capt. 4*s.* per day; to the Lieut. 2*s.* per day; to the Ensign 10*s.* per week.]

Feb. 9. The Downs. 64. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. The St. Claude returned last night with a ship, which is asserted to be of Calais, but believed to be of Dunkirk. She is of 40 tons, laden with Orleans wine. Requests that pilots and men sent up with prizes may receive speedy despatch. Inquires whether he should stay ships of London bound for France, having lead amongst the commodities on board. Capt. Maplesden has heard that the Vanguard, with the rest of the English ships in the service of France, are at St. Martin's Island.

Feb. 9. Plymouth. 65. Capt. John Pennington to Nicholas. Recommends various persons for Captains. Sends a list of what ships had Captains, with their names, and a dash against the ships which had poor silly Captains. Sir James Bagg's statement that he seized the prize is most false. The calenture has subsided, and there are few deaths now. Incloses,

65. I. List of ships and Captains before mentioned.

Feb. 9. Plymouth. 66. The same to Buckingham. Reports proceedings from the 4th to the 9th. Acknowledges the receipt of intelligence from Buckingham, that peace was concluded between the King of France and the Rochellers; also of directions to make the fleet up to 50 sail. Mons. Soubise's ships are in a manner all ready. Yesterday 4 of the colliers arrived from Kinsale. They sailed in company with the Lord Marshal in the Swiftsure, but parted in a storm. Some of the Irish ships put in at St. Ives. Protests that he and not Sir James Bagg seized the St. Peter of Calais. Intelligence that 20 ships are making ready at St. Maloes to join the French King's fleet before Rochelle. The ships here will be suddenly ready, and if to be used against Spain they ought to be victualled and sail before April.

Feb. 10. 67. [Sec. Conway] to Dr. Walter Balcanquall, Dean of Rochester and Master of the Savoy. Information being given that there is a place within the Savoy where mass is usually said, with much resort of people, he is to cause the priest to be apprehended, and to seize upon the popish books and massing stuff. [Copy.]

His Majesty had bestowed upon the Earl's daughter, Lady Wharton, the rent of 250*l.*, ordered to be paid by the Court of Wards during her son's minority, and also 250*l.* paid as a fine for the marriage and wardship. The Attorney General is to prepare a warrant to that effect.

Feb. 12. Ragland Castle. 6. Anne Lady Herbert of Ragland, to Wm. Earl of Northampton. Lord Herbert stayed about 14 days after his father, the Marquis of Worcester, to make up the certificate for the loans, which the Justices would not have agreed upon at all if he had not stayed. The weather was such as none but the Lord Privy Seal would have travelled in.

Feb. 12. 7. Petition of the inhabitants of Brightlingsea, co. Essex, a member of Sandwich, one of the Cinque Ports, to "the most gracious George Duke of Buckingham his Grace." They provide 50 soldiers, which are always ready at an hour's warning; but of late the Dep. Lieuts. of Essex have charged them with light horse, and billeting 100 soldiers. Pray for the Duke's protection against these infringements on their liberties.

Feb. 13. 9. Lord Mayor [Allen Cotton] and Aldermen of London to the Council. Have received their letter calling upon the City of London to provide, at their own charge, 5 ships of war for guarding the river Thames. Desire the Council to take into their thoughts the state of the City after its many hindrances and the late affliction, and to free them from so heavy a burthen, which neither their revenues are able to bear, nor, as they conceive, is the service such as concerns London otherwise than the whole kingdom, the defence whereof is a regal work. Their Lordships instance the two galleys built in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; they were ordered by the Common Council when the City was in a better state than now, by a third part at the least, and yet so much exclamation followed when every householder felt the charge, that the writers much doubt whether the like act of Common Council could now be obtained.

Feb. 13. 10. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. He is to send up all papers found in the bark belonging, as is probable, to Dunkirk, and also to send her up to London. He is also to stay all lead and munition going to any part of France, the Spaniard being thereby supplied. [Copy.]

Feb. 14. Dover Castle. 11. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Sends a letter, respecting which he desires to know his pleasure. Had directed the persons alluded to, to be detained. Mr. Montagu is kept at Dover for want of a wind, but none shall go before him. Incloses,

11. 1. The Mayor of Faversham to Sir John Hippisley. Two persons had been detained at Faversham, who had offered 5l. to get a passage into France. One was an Englishman, who called himself Richard Foster; the other, a Frenchman, named Marande, who says he is Secretary to the French Ambassador. On examination they contradicted each other considerably, and Foster refused to take the oath of allegiance, alleging that he was a Roman Catholic. Requests to know what he should do with them. 1626, Feb. 13.

Feb. 14. 12. Petition of Arnold Brames, Factor for Harman Beckman, of Hamburgh, to Buckingham; praying that certain copper, shipped at Dover for Spain during the amity, in a ship which never sailed, and which copper is now seized and pretended to be confiscate, may be restored, and be allowed to be exported to some friendly nation. Underwritten is a reference to Sir John Hippisley and Sir George Newman.

Feb. 14. Whitehall. 13. [Sec. Coke] to Sackville Crow. Instructs him what answer to make to the States in vindication of his instructions to pawn the Crown jewels. If he cannot prevail in obtaining all the money desired, he is to raise what money he can on the King's meaner jewels and on those belonging to the Duke, and out of the amount to pay: 1, the King of Denmark; 2, the Count Mansfeldt; 3, the States' companies. Order sent for a ship to bring him back. [Copy.]

Feb. 15. 18. Account of goods taken out of several vessels by —— Lamberson, with the disposition thereof.

Feb. 16. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sec. Coke. To move his Majesty for a Privy Seal for allowing Lord Conway the moneys due to him as Governor of the Isle of Wight, from the death of the Earl of Southampton to the date of Lord Conway's patent. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 244.]

Feb. 16. Whitehall. 19. Buckingham to the Commissioners of the Navy. It being the King's pleasure that a fleet consisting of six of the King's ships and 35 merchant ships, should be forthwith prepared for sea; they are to cause an estimate of the charge of repairing, victualling, and furnishing the same for eight months. Copy. Appended, insufficient, let the writer's credit never be warrantable. His ship is not able to stow more than four months provisions for 250 men. Incloses,

1626. Vol. XXI.

20. 1. Certificate of the Master, Mate, and Quartermasters of the Nonsuch, as to the capacity of stowage of that ship. Gore-end, 1626, Feb. 16.

[Feb. 16.] 22. Similar list containing two persons in co. Suffolk.

Feb. 16. 23. Names and residences of 161 recusants indicted at the gaol delivery of Newgate; amongst them are the Lady Willoughby, Viscount Montagu, and Frances Lady Blackstone.

Feb. 17. Dover Castle. 24. Sir John Hippisley to Nicholas. If the Duke does not send to Lord Stanhope to take some course with the postmasters, business will miscarry; when the Duke wrote the other day "for life," it was nine hours coming from Sittingbourne. He had sealed a bond for 5,000*l.* to the Duke's use; hopes that will do, and that he may receive order to go to sea. The French carry goods to Dunkirk, which ought not to be so. Shall be able to satisfy him that the goods which fall to the King within the ports belong to the Duke. At first he was to have had his tenth, now he has all. It was not a bad bargain that Nicholas and he made for the Duke for the ports.

Feb. 17. 25. Sec. Coke to John Monck, one of the Yeomen of the Chamber, and Thos. Dyer, one of the Messengers of the Chamber. The Jesuits and priests named in a schedule delivered therewith, lurk in divers parts of the kingdom, seducing the King's subjects from their obedience, they are, therefore, to be apprehended with all massing stuff, and to be brought before the Secretary.

Feb. 17. 26. Petition of John May to Buckingham. That he may be restored to his office of Assistant to his Majesty's shipwrights.

Feb. 17. The Downs. 27. Sir Henry Palmer to the same. The weather prevented his taking over Mr. Montagu, or sending into Dover for beer. The John Bonaventure has no victual at all. Has sent the St. Claude into the Hope, and has given the prize with the wines in charge to her. Hears nothing of the ships with the deer. Requests instructions as to whether Capt. Giles and the ships at Harwich shall return or remain there. The leakiness of his own ship increases. Will put to sea as soon as he can get victual.

Feb. 17. The Downs. 28. The same to Nicholas. Has sent up the bark laden with wine. Thanks for his care of Bathurst's petition. Incloses an order on Sir Wm. Russell for his payment. Want of provisions. Wishes to be allowed to put the St. Peter at Dover to sea at his own charge. Violent winds and such extreme cold that he can hardly write. Incloses,

1626. VOL. XXI.

Feb. 18. Deal. 29. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. Repetition of most of the intelligence in the last letter. Men of the John Bonaventure have opened the hatches and embezzled seven or eight hogsheads of wine in the absence of their Captain. For preservation of his men he has adventured ashore at Deal to procure beer, and has not often been in greater hazard. The weather such that no ship has come in or passed.

Feb. 18. 30. Petition of Thos. Duffield and Hendrick Henderson to the same. The petitioners, with three other Englishmen, being slaves on board a Sallee man-of-war, conspired against the Turks and slew 62 of them. They then brought the ship into Crookhaven, in Ireland, where Capt. Mason and others of the King's fleet seized the ship and sent the petitioners away with only the clothes on their backs. They pray for compensation.

Feb. 18. Dover. 31. Capt. John Mennes to Nicholas. Is at Dover with a company discontented and almost grown desperate. Between the owners and Commissioners, a great deal of time, pay, and victual was spent to no purpose. His ship is ready, and the sails ready in the town, but will not be delivered without money, and ere they be had the victuals will be exhausted. Has information of a ship from St. Lucar, which, if they could be provided, they might endanger.

Feb. 18. Plymouth. 32. Capt. John Pennington to the same. In all the warrants he brought down he was styled "Admiral of the Fleet," now all his packets are directed to him as "Capt. of the Lion;" desires to know the reason; if it be that the Duke goes himself, then he shall think himself the happiest man in the world. Refers to the following letter to the Duke for other business. Recommends Capt. Bond to his favour, and begs him to remember Capt. Wollaston and the 200*l.* for Pennington.

Feb. 18. Plymouth. 33. The same to Buckingham. Continuation of report of his proceedings from the 9th. Misconduct of the unserviceable ships in deserting the prizes which they were directed to convoy to the Thames. Sends account of the 29 ships he has there. Wishes the Duke would order a supply of six or eight ships for hospital and fire ships, and two or three of the rowing pinnaces bespoken for Capt. Gyffard. The French ships are fitted up. If the Duke goes to sea himself the Swiftsure will be the best ship for him. The ships will be all ready by the end of the next week. Complaint against the Mayor of Dartmouth for interfering with the pressing of men. Capt. Bond is maliciously complained of by the master. The Duke ought not to make any of the masters Captains. If the victuals are not ready, suggests that a squadron should be fitted out, so that he might go out and keep the channel. The sickness on the increase. Incloses,

33. 1. Names of the ships he had, with their Captains; and specifying tonnage, ordnance, and men; with an addition in the handwriting of Nicholas of the ships in the Narrow Seas.

Feb. 27. The Downs. 75. Edward Viscount Wimbledon [still signing "Ed. Cecil."] to Sec. Conway. There is no mean between good fortune and bad in the actions of war. His misfortunes have not only followed, but have accompanied him. Has two sorts of enemies: they that envied the greatness of his command, and they that suffered calamity and misery at their coming home, which is none of his fault. He had not undertaken anything save with the advice of the Council of War. If he had digressed, it would have been to have kept Puntal; which if they had done, they should have been masters of the merchants' Indian fleet. Desires to unburthen himself to the judicious; and beseeches Conway, that if he can give that honest account which Conway may expect, he may not go back in his good opinion. Wishes to wait on the Lord Admiral as soon as he may have leave; resting on shipboard until he receives it by Lord Conway's means.

Feb. 27. From aboard the Rainbow. 76. Sir John Chudleigh to Buckingham. Had arrived in the Downs with the Rainbow, in company of the Anne Royal. Requests directions respecting the Rainbow, which was leaky and defective. Relates the circumstances of his detention at Crookhaven of a bark, containing four priests, from Bilboa. He has the priests, but the bark parted company on the voyage from Ireland.

[Feb. 27?] 77. Edward Viscount Wimbledon to Sec. Coke. The ship whereof the bearer is master came from Lisbon, laden with salt, and was said to be bound for Dantzick, but without bills of lading. It is rumoured that there is treasure under the salt. In a postscript is a certificate that the Indian fleet arrived in Cadiz harbour five days after the English fleet sailed.

Feb. 27. Aboard the Anne Royal. 78. Edward Viscount Wimbledon to [Buckingham]. Details his course from his arrival in Kinsale harbour on December 11, with the capture at Crookhaven of the four Irish priests, whom he describes as Spanish agents, suggesting that "torture will discover all." Commends the great carefulness of Sir Thos. Love, during their stay in Ireland, and suggests that the experience they have gained in this expedition may be a great means to save his Majesty's purse, and be of benefit to the sailor. Stays on shipboard for instructions. For himself he desires no more than the happiness of seeing his Excellency, which he hopes will put an end to all his misery. Two sorts of enemies have had access to the Duke before him: those that envied the greatness of his command, and those that have come home in misery. Whatever their accusations, he will answer them as truly to his Excellency as to God. Has never swerved from the advice of the Council of War. If he had, he would have kept Puntal, which if they had done, they would have been masters of the merchants' fleet which presently arrived in the Bay of Cadiz from the Indies. His Excellency begged in his behalf of the King at Woodstock, that he would not cast his eye upon his success, but upon his care. If he has failed by that rule, then cast him off to all the envy and malice in the world.

1626. VOL. XXI.

Feb. 27. On board the Anne Royal off Dover. 79. Sir Thos. Love to Buckingham. Relates the various delays they had met with in their passage from Ireland. In this unfortunate journey God's judgment had followed them. There are dead out of that ship above 120, besides many left sick in Ireland. The ship is as unserviceable as the men. Begs the order of the Duke for her coming in, and for his enlargement to recover strength to appear before his Grace.

Feb. 27. Plymouth. 80. Capt. John Pennington to the same. Has written many letters, but in three weeks has received no answer. Has 28 ships ready to sail as soon as they are victualled and supplied with men. The Anne Royal, with the Lord Marshal, passed on the 26th on her way to the Downs. Vehemently urges that if his Grace does not purpose presently to employ him aboard, he will call him from thence, where, besides his daily encounter with mortality and infection, he is so troubled with the clamours of the men, for want of clothes and other relief, that he is weary of his life. Many of the French have fallen sick since they came to eat of the remainder-victuals. Has brought ashore 290 quarters of corn out of the corn prize, 60 quarters were rotten, according to the enclosed attestation. If he had victuals he could man 15 or 16 sail of ships to keep those seas, which would be healthful and of good profit. The Vanguard, and other English ships in the service of France, have gone up to the river of Bordeaux to make stay of our shipping. Incloses,

80. I. Certificate of Sir Ferdinando Gorges and five other persons, that they found at the bottom and lower part of the lading of wheat in the prize ship called the Image of King David, a quantity, estimated at 60 quarters, all rotten and unfit for use. (1626, Feb. 24)

Feb. 27. Tavistock. 81. Francis Glanville to Sec. Conway. On behalf of his brother, Wm. Grimes, he requests Lord Conway to give some good words to the Master of the Wards for obtaining the wardship of his son. He also recommends a person who is summoned before the Council.

Feb. 27. Plymouth. 82. Abraham Jennings to Nicholas. Will certify what passed in those parts; at present he need not do so as the bearer, Capt. Mason, will show him all things. Has two parrots for him.

Feb. 27. Westminster. 83. Grant to Edward Nicholas of monies and goods of the value of 350*l.* belonging to the Governor of the Terceiras, brought by Thos. Ryvett within this realm for the benefit of the said Governor, and thereby forfeited to the King. [Case A., Charles I., No. 7.]

Feb. 28. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Henry Lord Clifford. Acknowledges receipt of letters, and promises an account on the first occasion. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 245.]

Feb. 28 84. Certificate of Capt. Phineas Pett. That Charles Lucombe [Lucum] served his apprenticeship under him, and was competent for a master carpenter's place.

VOL. XXI.

Feb. 28 Whitehall. 85. Nicholas to Capt. John Pennington. He had not received answers to his letters on account of the want of ready money, but some was providing. Warrants had been sent to the Commissioners of the Navy to prepare to victual, and to the Master of the Ordnance to supply ammunition, according to the words of Pennington's letter. Omitted to write to him as Admiral of the Fleet, because the Duke purposes to go with him himself. The Duke likes well his proposition to go out with some of the ships, whilst the rest are providing. The sooner they could be sent to sea, and with the less noise, the better. He is to send an estimate of the charge. Three ships would be enough. Sir Wm. Russell has no money, and there is no precedent of money being imprested to a Captain. The bearer, Capt. Bardsey, has come to take charge of his ship. Pennington is charged to show him great favour as the Duke's servant, and one that he highly esteems.

Feb. 28. 86. Narrative of the course of public affairs in England, from the entry into the treaties with Spain for the marriage of the present King, and the restoration of the Palatinate, until the present time; written with the view of disabusing the public mind of various prevalent "jealousies, rumours, and misinterpretations" respecting the conduct of the King and the Duke of Buckingham. [Draft, imperfect. This valuable paper, which is in the form of a letter, is in the handwriting of a clerk of Sec. Conway.]

Feb. 28. Catwater. 87. Capt. Thos. Philpot to Buckingham. On his return from the expedition to Cadiz he arrived at Milford Haven with the Zouch Phœnix, which he there repaired according as the country could afford materials, but she was still unfit for service, and he should therefore bring her to London. Met at sea many vessels from Ireland and the West country carrying provisions to Bayonne, which were conveyed from thence into Spain, a circumstance which he offered to the Duke's consideration.

Feb. 28. Harwich. 88. Capt. Edmund Button to Nicholas. Reports a cruise along the eastern coast: there were no Dunkirk ships between Harwich and Plymouth. If Capt. Pennington proceeded on his voyage Button desired to be of his squadron.

Feb. 28. 89. Petition of Edwd. Maplesden, James Mayer, and Edward Johnson to Buckingham. Being captains of their own merchant ships, impressed for the King's service, they were sent by Sir Henry Palmer as convoys to Dieppe of his Majesty's present into France. Being forced by weather into the Isle of Wight, and their victuals running short, they victualled their ships at their own charge. On arriving in London they find themselves superseded, which they suppose must have come from some bad information. Pray inquiry and payment of the sums expended in victualling.

Feb. 28. 90. Note of iron ordnance cast by Mr. Browne, according to the reformed weights.

1626. VOL. XXI.

Feb. 28. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. He is presently to take such of the ablest ships as came lately into the Downs with the Lord Marshal, or from Plymouth, under Capt. Harvey, and to ply up and down off Dunkirk, to meet with some of their ships, and hinder and annoy them as much as possible. He is to keep the sea until forced into harbour through tempest, or until he receive further orders. [Copy. See Vol. xxi., No. 10.]

[Feb.?] 93. Form of proposed letter from the King to all Archbishops and Bishops, the Ecclesiastical Commission, and all Judges, to permit the Queen's servants born in France, with their wives and children, to exercise their religion in such places as are appointed for that purpose.

[Feb.?] 94. Speech apparently delivered in the House of Commons, by a Member who dissuaded the House from attributing the ill success of the Cadiz expedition to the Duke, and advised that, instead of an impeachment, a collection should be made of the oversights attributed to the Duke, and that the same should be presented to the King in the way of remonstrance.

[Feb.?] 95. The King to Lord Keeper Coventry, Lord Treasurer Marlborough, the Duke of Buckingham, the Earls of Carlisle and Holland, and Sir Richard Weston, Chancellor of the Exchequer. They relate to the appointments of Sir Wm. Guise, as Vice Admiral of co. Gloucester, and of Lieut. Matthews to succeed Capt. Porter; the dispute between Peter Cannon and Peter Dibbs; the petition of Joos Arnault; obtaining a discharge under the Great Seal for about 9,000*l.* or 10,000*l.* taken out of the prizes at Plymouth by the Duke's command; obtaining a warrant for 1,400*l.* or 1,500*l.* unclaimed in the Mint, to be paid to the Duke; and various other matters then pending.

[Feb. ?] 100. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Report on petition to the Duke from Joos Arnault, of Calais. Sir John finds the petitioner to be a dweller in Calais, and to be there held to be a subject of France. He therefore thinks the Duke may release him. Attached,

100. I. Petition of the said Joos Arnault to Buckingham:—Coming to Dover to make a claim in the Court of Admiralty, he was detained as a subject of Spain; having procured the annexed attestation, Sir John Hippisley allowed him to come to London on bail; prays for his release. Underwritten is a reference to Sir John Hippisley for his opinion. 1626, Feb. 27. Attached,

The Surgeons are still to be kept in pay. The wages of the Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns, are to be increased by an assignment of dead pays, allowance to be made for the first cleaning of the arms. The broken companies to be distributed. When these things are settled, Sir Wm. St. Leger may come away. [Minute.]

[Feb. ?] 102. Petition of Robert Earl of Essex, Robert Lord Willoughby, Sir James Levingston, and Sir John Borlase, Colonels of the four English regiments in his Majesty's pay, in the service of the States, to the Council. Having information "from thence" that the money for payment of the troops was exhausted, and that there was no possibility of payment either from the States or otherwise, the petitioners represent that part of the regiments in garrison at Bergen-op-Zoom, had already fallen into a mutiny, and they fear that the same inconveniences may follow which were prevented some months since by the happy being of the Duke at the Hague.

[Feb. ?] 103. Note of things that are of present consideration.—Payment of the King of Denmark to be made out of the money to be obtained by Mr. Sackville Crow, at Amsterdam. Money wanted for the four regiments in the Low Countries. Troops needed in Ireland. Regiments returned with the fleet to be removed and stationed along the coast.

[Feb. ?] 104. Statement of the case of John Heamish, a Roman Catholic prisoner in co. Salop. Having procured a coronation pardon it is desired that my L [ord] C [onway] would have him brought before his Lordship and disposed of according to justice.

1626. VOL. XXI.

[Feb. ?] 105. Francis Michell to Sec. Conway. Had been secretary to six great persons, one of whom was Lord Burgh, Lord Deputy of Ireland, who often spoke much good of Conway. The good he saw is now advanced to great eminency; and it may be said of Conway, as of a Secretary to the Emperor Charles, that he so marshalled his employments and favour with his master, as he made the one give way to put on the other, and the greater oppression he saw the more was his diligence to help the afflicted. Entreats him to read the annexed petition, and to favour the petitioner, as one who coming into question in a troublesome time fell, although innocent, from eminent place and fortune to beggary, and to be table-prattle pro et contra. Annexed,

104. I. Petition of the same to the King. Sets forth his sentence, all which had been remitted by King James, except the inability to bear office and the degradation from Knighthood, and those King James would have taken away had he lived. States his past services to the late King and Queen, and entreats for the grace customarily shewn at coronations.

[Feb. ?] 106. Brief declaration of all the manors which are to be granted in jointure to the Queen, with their values as certified by the Auditors. The total revenue from the manors is 4,111*l.* 8*s.* 1¼*d.*, to which is added in fee-farm rents, 14,055*l.* 0*s.* 3½*d.*, total 18,166*l.* 8*s.* 4¾*d.* The houses to be granted to the Queen, in addition to Somerset House, were the Castle of Pontefract, the Manor of Oatlands, Nonsuch House, and the Park of Hanslopp.

[Feb. ?] 107. Petition of John Wood, master of the John, of Preston, to the Duke of Buckingham. The petitioner's ship, being one of those prepared for transportation of the goods of the Scottish nobility now in England, has been stayed at Gravesend. Prays for its release.

[Feb. ?] 108. Petition of the town of Leith and divers of the nobility and gentry of Scotland to the King. Edinburgh, unknown to the King and his progenitors, has acquired a charter called "Aurea Magna Carta Edinburgi," under which they encroach on the King's prerogative, and oppress the petitioners, consisting of divers thousands, in their bodies and goods. Pray that certain fresh privileges recently obtained by Edinburgh without the Commissioners of Leith being heard may be cancelled, and thatthe King would hear them and their opponents in the presence of the Privy Council of Scotland then in London.

[Feb. ?] 109. Petition of the town of Leith to the King. His Majesty having given order on their former petition, they set forth certain specific articles which they pray the King to order for their relief.

[Feb. ?] 110. Petition of William Engelbert to the High Court of Parliament. Offers to destroy the harbours of Dunkirk and St. Lucar, and proposes that when that has been accomplished, word should be sent to the King of Spain, that if he did not deliver the Palatinate "without quirks or quillets," all his other harbours should be overthrown. The petitioner has a model of his engine of destruction ready to shew to a committee.

1626. VOL. XXII.

March 1. The Downs. 7. Sir Henry Palmer to Buckingham. Reports intelligence that three Dunkirk men-of-war had attacked the Assurance. Has captured a small ketch containing lead. Desires instructions for his fleet to the Northward. Few of the new Captains had come to their charges.

March 2. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Lord Keeper Coventry. In behalf of Mr. John Balcanquall, for the next prebend's place in Rochester, and in the mean time to be admitted his Lordship's chaplain. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 246.]

March 2. 12. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Edward Maplesden and three others, masters of the merchant ships taken up for the King's service, had been allowed to continue masters of their own ships, with Buckingham's approbation, but not having been formally appointed are now dismissed. The Commissioners give them high commendation, and appeal to the Duke to continue them by his warrant.

March 2. 13. Sir Thomas Playters, Sir John Wentworth, and Sir John Rous to the same. Recommend to his consideration the petition of the poor distressed fishermen of Suffolk and Norfolk, and desire him to appoint a convoy for their ships to Iceland and the North Seas. [Copy.]

March 2. Aboard the Entrance. 14. Sir Henry Palmer to the same. Had been aboard most of the returned ships, and found them unserviceable. If men and provisions were forthwith sent, would fit out the Rainbow, the Garland, the Dreadnought, three of the colliers, his own ship and two prizes, and hoped with them he might effect something. In the meantime, would send out two of the best sailers to discover the force and intentions of the enemy. Has entreated the assistance of Sir Thos. Love and Sir John Chudleigh. Desires a warrant for pilots. Has stayed an Irish bark laden with hogshead staves intended, as he thinks, for Dunkirk.

March 3. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Mr. Recorder [Sir Heneage Finch.] For the release of William Sturley, apprehended and put into Newgate for a priest, upon sufficient bail. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 246.]

1626.

March 3. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir Heneage Finch as Speaker. Excusing his [Lord Conway's] non-attendance on the House of Commons, as one of the Council of War, by reason of sickness. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 246.]

[March 3.] 15. Heads upon which the Council of War were to answer.

March 3. 16. Question propounded by the House of Commons to the Council of War.

March 3. 17. Copy of the same question.

[March 3.] 18. Another copy of the same question, with an undersigned opinion [of Attorney General Heath] that the Act of Parliament [under which the Council of War was appointed] did not require its members to make answer.

March 3. 19. Fuller statement of the opinion of Attorney General Heath. He sets forth the four particular applications of the money specified in the Act of Parliament; and is of opinion that the House of Commons has no right, except to inquire whether or not the money had been applied to those purposes.

March 3. 20. Capt. Richd. Gyffard to Nicholas. Received the inclosed last night; seeing it is gone so far, he will try what fortune God will send that way. Wishes his employment by the Duke had gone forward as it was determined, hoping then to have requited Nicholas's love. Has followed the Duke more than two years from place to place by his command, and spent more than 300*l.*, but is now out of hope. Prays the Duke may be well served, and his honour not be touched through the follies of presuming and ignorant men. If the Duke would furnish him but with one ship, and leave the employment to his own courses, he would soon find the benefit. Incloses,

20. 1. Thos. Paynter to Capt. Richd. Gyffard. By his master's order he is to go to Portsmouth to receive Capt. Gyffard's ship and prepare her for sea. Will take workmen from Shoreham with him. [1626, Feb. 25.]

March 3. 21. Commissioners of the Navy to Sec. Coke. The Samuel, of London, could not be again employed until she had been new sheathed.

March 3. Doctors' Commons. 22. Richd. Wyan to Nicholas. Had examined the evidence against the Danish ship stayed at Bristol, and could not pick out anything whereby she deserves to be stayed. In all his observation he never knew a ship detained after examination of the parties, unless they had some proof to charge her. The King of Demark is as choleric for his subjects as any whosoever.

March 3. 23. Henry Norwood to Buckingham. In his travels into France, Spain, Italy, Greece, and Turkey, he had attained many useful arts fit for the service of a warlike prince. Tenders himself for employment by his King and country. The Turkish pirates are harboured in many places in the Netherlands. When at Flushing he redeemed 38 English and 11 French slaves, who had been in bondage for various periods, some even for 12 years. The arts he has acquired relate to the manufacture of fire-works and secret contrivances for use in war.

1626. Vol. XXII.

March 3. The Downs. 24. Sir Thos. Love to Buckingham. Sir Hen. Palmer and himself had surveyed the ships returned from Ireland, and found them altogether unserviceable. The Rainbow and the Dreadnought could not be made capable of service; the Anne Royal was still worse, and the men that are in her not able to defend much less to offend. The four priests shall be sent up.

March 3. Sandown Castle. 25. The same to Nicholas. The Duke had commanded him there, but to little purpose, for the ships were unfit for service, Requests Nicholas to procure leave for him to come up and send his ship to Chatham.

[March 3.] 26. John Millington to Gilbert Millington. The Lower House had sent to the Duke to know, why he stays the French ship after sentence in the Ecclesiastical Court and express order of the Council. Our Ambassadors were stayed in France, and Montagu detained at Calais. Col. Cecil [Viscount Wimbledon] had arrived.

March 3. Battersea. 27. Oliver Viscount Grandison to Sir Thos. Roe. Has been forced to stay at Battersea by ill health for seven months. Lord Conway has told him that Sir Thos. Phillips's commission to be Ambassador at Constantinople is under the Seal, and that he is presently to go thither. Is extremely glad of the hope of seeing his niece and Sir Thos. He will find "a scarce time," but Lord Grandison hopes God will provide a fortune for him. Lord Grandison purposes to put himself into Dr. Mayerne's hands, who desires to have Lord Grandison lodged near him. He has therefore entreated Sir John Finett to let him have the keys of Sir Thos.'s house for two months, giving Sir Thos. contentment.

March 4. 28. Minute of Council that the Earl of Arundel, on signification of his Majesty's pleasure, was sequestered from the Council table.

March 4. Exeter. 29. Mayor of Exeter to Wm. Earl of Pembroke. John Levermore having been chosen Warden for the Poor refused to serve. Suggests that he should be sent for to answer his neglect before the Council.

March 4. Aboard the Entrance. 30. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. The Assurance came yesterday into the Downs. The rumours concerning her engagement with the Dunkirkers unfounded. If a good number of sailors were sent down he would soon fit up the ships, which now can neither be put to sea nor with safety be left in the road.

March 4. 31. Petition of Lieven Danielson and Jacob Jacobson to the same, for restitution of 10 sakers and 1,000 weight of powder, removed from their ship the St. Andrew, of Amsterdam, which had been stayed, but was released by the Court of Admiralty.

March 4. 32. Petition of John Geffrard and Rene Chevallier, French merchants, to the "most gracious Prince, George Duke of Buckingham." 1626. Vol. XXII.

of their goods; his Grace referred them to the Judge of the Admiralty; they have now been 5 months in London at an expense of 120*l.*, which they have been obliged to borrow; Gabriel Marsh having taken from them their money, jewels, and even clothes, Pray for redress. Inclose,

32. I. Copy of notarial attestation of a receipt given on Oct. 11, 1625, by Gabriel Marsh for a gold chain, a hatband of emrodes, and various sums in coin, found in ships lately brought into Plymouth.

32. II. Memorandum of other things taken by Gabriel Marsh from Rene Chevallier.

March 4. Plymouth. 33. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Has received no letter this month or more, although he has repeatedly solicited that their wants might be supplied. If money be not presently sent down, he must discharge the men, and let the ships ride destitute. Mr. Clifton [Mr. Lieutenant's deputy] will hardly be able to supply them for 10 days longer. Has 29 ships ready to sail at 24 hours' warning if they had victuals and men. If the ships are not intended to be employed as formerly resolved, part of them might free the coast of Turks and other pirates which take our ships daily. Entreats that he may have the money sent down for which he stands engaged, which is about 700*l.* If not sent presently it will break his heart, for he is so followed and called upon for money that he knows not what to do. Begs also for 200*l.* on his entertainment. Incloses,

33. I. Names of the ships that he had prepared, with their burthen and number of guns.

33. II. Names and tonnage of the French ships he had fitted up.

March 5. 34. [The same] to Buckingham. Explains the circumstances under which he moved his Majesty to allow Lord Moore to surrender to his son, Sir Charles Moore, a company of horse in Ireland, which had been deemed an interference with the interest or patronage of the Duke. [Copy.]

March 5. Aboard the Entrance. 35. Sir Hen. Palmer to Nicholas. In favour of Captain Bushell, who was like to come into trouble about staying the French ship.

March 5. Harwich. 36. Reinold Newe and three others to Wm. Burrell, one of the Commissioners of the Navy. Their ship [the Francis Bonaventure] had met with a disaster, which had rendered it necessary that she be put ashore at Harwich. Underwritten,

36. I. The Commissioners of the Navy to ——. Send him the above letter. The ship should be brought about to a dry dock.

1626. Vol. XXII.

March 6. 37. Sir Heneage Finch, Recorder of London, to Sec. Conway. Was not at the last sessions by reason of his employment in Parliament. It seems that the person alluded to in Lord Conway's letter [1625, March 3,] remains a prisoner by special direction of the sessions of gaol delivery. It will not, therefore, be fit for Sir Heneage to bail him, but he will inquire the cause of the order, and if it may be dispensed with, he will send to those who held that sessions to take bail.

March 7. Westminster. Grant of incorporation of Sion College, London, with power to purchase lands in mortmain, to the extent of 240*l.* per annum, over and above 160*l.* per annum devised by Dr. Thos. March 7. 38. Another copy of the reply of the House of Commons.

March 7. Plymouth. 39. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. The Cameleon, the Amity, and two prizes had arrived: one of the prizes was from Ireland, the ship taken from the Turks by the five sailors, who deserved reward for their valiant exploit. She is fit for a fire ship. Pennington is ready to lay down his life for the Duke's service, but earnestly entreats him to have a care that his [Pennington's] reputation be not stained for want of money to satisfy those whom he had rather perish than not content.

March 7. London. 40. John Chamberlain to Sir Dudley Carleton, Ambassador at the French Court. Congratulates him on the hope of a good conclusion to his French embassy. Proceedings of the Parliament with reference to the Council of War, and to a summons sent by them to the Duke of Buckingham to answer for the management of the French affairs. Return of Glanville and Lord Wimbledon. The latter blames Sir Wm. St. Leger. Decision of the House of Lords that no Peer should hold more than one proxy. The Duke had 11 proxies, the Lord Chamberlain 8. The Duke had passed through the streets carried on men's shoulders in a Spanish chair. The Queen had acted in a masque, which would once have been thought a strange sight. Brabbling with the French Ambassador, respecting the apprehension of persons coming from mass in his house. Dr. Prideaux called to account for a false return for Oxford University. Contest between a Persian Ambassador and Sir Robt. Sherley. The Earl of Arundel committed to the Tower for a match between his son and the Duchess of Lennox's daughter, whom the King intended for the Earl of Argyle's son.

March 8. Deal. 45. Sir Thos. Love to Buckingham. The importunity of the officers of the ships induced him to represent their defects and inabilities. Victuals almost spent and beer altogether. The ships want cables, anchors, and sails. The men dying daily. Those who are well, mutinous. Suggests that the ships should be sent to Chatham. There are no ships in Dunkirk Road

March 8. Beeston, near Norwich. 46. Sir Charles Cornwallis to Thos. Earl of Arundel and Surrey. The complaints of his neighbours have compelled him out of mere compassion to attend to their just fears. Had laid a watch on some of the sea-coasts, to prevent their being suddenly surprised in their beds. Sends a letter just received, and hopes in a case of such imminent peril to receive orders to justify the Dep. Lieuts. in doing what is needed in prevention of present dangers. Incloses,

46. I. Bailiff of Yarmouth to Sir Charles Cornwallis. Beyond their means they had been endeavouring to fortify their town. A Dunkirker of 160 tons took out of the Roads near Southwold, on Sunday last, in view of the townsmen, a ship of 100 tons. The town's people endeavouring to rescue her, were beaten from their ordnance by the enemy, who shot into the town in contempt. Messengers from Sir John Wentworth since apprise them that a fleet is upon the coast, supposed with intent to make some present invasions. They appeal to him for aid.

March 8. 47. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Suggest that he should order the Samuel and the Peter to be sent round from Portsmouth to London; also, that directions should be given for repairing the St. George, at Portsmouth, and the Reformation, in Ireland; that the Happy Entrance required to be taken into dock; also, the Garland, in which, as they had written before, the leakage of beer into the ballast had caused a great infection and mortality.

March 8. 48. Account of what passed at an interview between the King and the Earl of Totness respecting the answer given by the Council of War to the House of Commons. The King approved the answer; said, if the Council had given any other answer, he should have called them to account for it, and commanded them, if again required by the Commons to appear, not to make any other answer, until his pleasure were signified to them.

The Earl besought the King to regard his own ends. It were better they should be imprisoned than be the occasion of missing necessary subsidies, or of breeding any difference between the King and the House of Commons. The King replied, "Let them do what they list, you shall not go to the Tower. It is not you they aim at, but it is me upon whom they make inquisition; and for subsidies, that will not hinder it. Gold may be bought too dear, and I thank you for your offer." He added, that he had taken advice, they were not bound to answer, and if they had answered he should have been displeased with them.

March 9. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir Heneage Finch, Speaker. Excusing his non-attendance on the House of Commons, by reason of sickness. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 246.]

March 9. Scarborough. 52. Bailiffs of Scarborough to the Lord President and Council of the North. At that time there were in sight of the town some [torn off] of Dunkirk men-of-war; and they say as many [more are on] the coast. The day before, they took a ship coming out of the Humber, and have probably taken others, and would take many more. They are waiting for the fleet from Newcastle.

March 9. 53. Commissioners of the Navy to Nicholas. The St. James, one of the prizes, being appointed for further service, must have her ordnance shifted, which belongs to ships which are cleared by the Parliament. 57. 1. Form of answer as settled by the King, and, in two places, altered in his own hand. The preamble is in accordance with the previous article. The substance of the reply is, that the King is well pleased that the Council should give an account of their disbursements, but that he has forbidden them to divulge their counsels.

March 11. 79. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. Having daily reports of the strength and number of the shipping in Dunkirk, the Duke directs Sir Henry to keep together in the Downs as many of the ships in the King's service as he may with safety and convenience, and the longer he can keep them the better it will be taken. The ships that are most able, he is to send out to meet the Dunkirkers, and he is to call on such of the States men-of-war as are near to join in that service. [Copy.]

1626. VOL. XXII.

March 12. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Buckingham. Concerning the speech of Dr. Turner and Mr. Harvey in the Parliament House against his Grace. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

March 12. The Tower. 81. Sir Allen Apsley to the same. Thos. Canne was desirous of assigning his place as Purser of the Triumph to his son-in-law, Thomas Fettiplace.

March 12. Deal. 82. Sir Thomas Love to the same. The ships in the Downs returned from Ireland are totally unserviceable. The provisions are exhausted, and the poor, weak, and sick men take it ill to be stayed where they die daily. Entreats that the ships may have orders to come about, and that he may come overland to wait on his Grace.

March 12. The Downs. 83. Sir Hen. Palmer to Nicholas. The St. George, if well fitted, would be one of the most serviceable ships. The ships stayed in the Downs are in an extremely weak state. Desires a special warrant for pilots. His own ship is very foul; asks that till she be trimmed, he may remove into the Garland.

March 12. The Downs. 84. The same to Buckingham. None of the returned ships can remain in the Downs without suffering from hunger, and, if it should blow, from great danger. Had been at sea with five ships and had a chase into Dunkirk Road. The want of power to take up pilots a great hindrance.

March 12. The Downs. 85. The same to Nicholas. Sends up Danl. Urry about the St. Peter at Dover. If the Duke would grant her to Sir Henry, he would afford Nicholas a share in her. Annexed,

85. 1. Warrant of the Duke of Buckingham authorizing Sir Henry Palmer to take the St. Peter into his fleet, and appoint a Captain to her. 1625, Nov. 23. [Copy.]

March 12. 86. Part of a Diary or Report of Sir Henry Palmer, setting forth his employments and services. This part extends from 1626, Jan. 3 to this day.

[March 13.]] [Buckingham to the Commissioners of the Navy.] The Peter and the Samuel are to be brought round from Portsmouth, the lading of the former being laid up in the warehouse at that place. The St. George is to be repaired at Portsmouth, and the Reformation in Ireland. The Commissioners are to carry out their advice respecting the Happy Entrance, Sir Henry Palmer removing into the Garland. [Draft in the handwriting of Nicholas. See Vol. xxii. No. 84.]

March 13. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Buckingham. Concerning the dangerous case of Rochelle, that his Majesty may be acquainted with it, and information sent to his Majesty's Ambassador at Paris. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

March 13. The Savoy. 87. George Earl of Totness to Sec. Coke. Sends certificate of John Reynolds, the Master Gunner, concerning the proof of light iron ordnance; if more are to be made the Earl wishes to make known an explanation given by John Browne, the gunfounder. Incloses,

87. 1. John Reynolds to George Earl of Totness. Had proved at Millhall, co. Kent, six pieces of iron ordnance made by John Browne. He had fulfilled his contract, but by reason of the lightness of these pieces they would deliver their shot uncertainly. 1626, March 8. [Copy certified by the Earl of Totness.]

March 13. 88. Capt. Richd. Gyffard to Nicholas. Incloses a letter for the Duke, with some proposals for Gyffard's service, which he urges very strongly on the attention of Nicholas. If the Duke will not employ him he will cease to trouble him. Incloses,

88. 1. Capt. Richard Gyffard to Buckingham. Has attended the Duke for more than 2 years without finding opportunity to receive his Grace's pleasure. The ill success of the late sea employments has much weakened the strength of England, and the world's eye is upon the Duke; others commit the fault, but the Duke is subject to the censure. He could impart the means of establishing an invincible navy for ever. Entreats his attention, as to a thing which much concerns his honour.

March 13. Dover. 89. William Jones to Matthew De Quester, postmaster for foreign service. The Governor of Calais had arrested Charles le Camp, and vowed to be revenged on all Englishmen for the affront offered at Dover to the French Ambassador. He had also arrested all English ships and merchandize at Calais. They use our men more like dogs than Christians. His Majesty's ketch arrested, her muskets taken, and her sails, not taken off, but in a cruel malice cut from their yards. The French goods at Dover had been released by order of the Duke, and it is hoped those at London will also be cleared.

March 13. 90. Minute of the contents of the above letter.

March 13. Newport in the Isle of Wight. 91. Sir Edward Denys, Collector of Loans on Privy Seals in the Isle of Wight, to the Council. Had received 190*l.*, of which he had disbursed 150*l.* for sick and lame soldiers landed on that island, and the remainder would not be sufficient to supply their further necessities. Incloses,

91. 1. Note of the Privy Seals sent into the Isle of Wight, showing who had paid and who had not.

March 13. London. 92. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Certificate in confirmation of the truth of a petition of the owners of the William and Francis of London, being Eastland merchants.

March 13. 93. The same to the same. Had received his warrant for payment to Capt. Pennington, whilst he was employed in preparing a fleet appointed to lie before Dunkirk, and served in the Garland, as Admiral of that fleet, for his entertainment, after the rate of 3*l.* per diem.

1626. VOL. XXII.

Conceive it to be their duty to acquaint his Grace with the precedents of former times for similar employments. Lord Thos. Howard, then Earl of Suffolk, in the late Admiral's time, had 5 marks per diem; Sir Richard Leveson, when he took the carrack St. Valentine, obtained 30*s.* per diem; the Lord Admiral when he transported the Lady Elizabeth had 4*l.* per diem; and although the Earl of Oxford for his employment in the Narrow Seas got 3*l.* per diem, that allowance was given in regard of the quality of his person, which is a sufficient reason to reduce Capt. Pennington to the more moderate rate of what was granted to Sir Richard Leveson.

March 13. Colchester. 94. Wm. Vickers, Nathaniel Strickson, and John Randall to Sec. Conway. They certify, on their allegiance, that they neither know of any information given to him of the transportation of gunpowder, nor of any defaulters therein; nor were they aware from whom such information had come.

March 13. London. 95. Isaac Pennington to Capt. John Pennington. Entreats him, on behalf of the writer's cousin John Pountis, for the release of his ship; or, if that cannot be obtained, to countenance his son in the voyage, that he be not overborne by the insolent ignorant captains that are now-a-days placed in command. Difficulties with Sir Wm. Russell as to the allowance of 3*l.* per diem. Abuses committed by Sir Francis Stewart, in taking so many men out of merchant ships that those left were not sufficient to manage the ships. Much disturbance in trade occasioned by the seizure of English goods in France. In a postscript, dated March 20, the writer details the result of further communications with Sir Wm. Russell.

March 13. Certificate of Sec. Conway that Sir Wm. Tresham had returned from foreign service, in obedience to the King's proclamation. [Minute, Lord Conway's Foreign Letter Book, France, Vol. clxxviii. p. 249.]

March 14. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Attorney General Heath. To prepare a grant of 200*l.* a year pension to Sir Edmund Verney, Knight Marshal on the surrender of Sir Edward Zouch. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

March 14. Whitehall. The same to the Commissioners at Plymouth. That no checks be put upon Captain Dixon, nor evil interpretation made of his stay here longer than his licence. [Minute, ibid.]

March 14. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. Order had been given for supplying all the serviceable ships in the Narrow Seas with necessaries. The Anne Royal and other unserviceable ships were to be sent round to Chatham and London. When the ships were supplied, they were to be kept plying up and down. There are many Dunkirkers abroad, and it seems strange that none have been met with by any of the King's ships. [Copy. See Vol. xxii. No. 79.]

March 14. 96. Message from the King to the House of Commons delivered by the Chancellor of the Exchequer [Sir Richard Weston] concerning the speech of Mr. Clement Coke, that it was better to die by an enemy than to suffer at home; and also concerning the charges brought by Dr. Turner against the Duke of Buckingham. The King can no ways suffer that the meanest of his servants should be questioned without his leave. He requires justice to be done against these two delinquents, so that he should not be constrained to use his royal authority.

March 14. Pendennis. 97. Capt. John Bonython to Sec. Conway. Yesterday six Dunkirkers appeared off Pendennis as if making for the harbour, but the wind suddenly rising they bore off to sea. The castle is entirely unprovided; not one piece of ordnance mounted, nor have they a pound of shot. If lost, it would trouble the kingdom to recover it, and what shame they should suffer if five or six ships were to come in and send 200 or 300 men to burn and spoil the adjacent towns. Urges again his suit to be appointed to the fort to be erected at Fowey, the necessity for which is very great.

March 14. 98. Minute of the contents of the above.

March 14. 99. Complaint of Robert Saunders, master, and Thomas Reading, purser of the Have-at-all, against the King's ship the Lion, for firing at the Have-at-all when in pursuit of a Dunkirker.

March 14. Whitehall. 100. Nicholas to Sec. Coke. Requests to know whether "my Lord" had approved of a list of delegates which Nicholas had given to Coke at the back stairs. Also craves his advice what ships ought to go into the Low Countries to fetch home Mr. Crow and the jewels. He has the Nonsuch already; "my Lord" would have the Garland and five others of those in the Downs to go. [Underwritten is the reply of Sec. Coke. He had delivered the approved list of delegates to Dr. Ryves. The Nonsuch, Garland, and five or six of the best ships in the Downs would be a sufficient guard, but they must carry a month's victuals.]

March 14. 101. Sec. Conway, Capt. of the Isle of Wight and Lord Lieut. of Hants, to Sir John Denham. The islanders of the Isle of Wight being exempt from serving on juries for the co. of Southampton, Sir John is prayed, if any of them are returned, to dismiss them from attendance. [Copy.]

102. Lord Treasurer Marlborough to Attorney General Heath. Instructs him to prepare a commission to entitle the King to certain surrounded lands on the sea coast of the co. of Southampton; sends names of the intended Commissioners.

March 14. 103. Petition of Richd. Boone to Buckingham. Having private business at Calais, he had crossed over thither in a time of restraint. Desiring now to cross over again, on arriving at Dover he had been imprisoned by Sir John Hippisley for his previous contempt; prays that, as he went solely on mercantile affairs, he may be released. [Underwritten are a reference to Sir John Hippisley, dated March 30, 1626, and Sir John's report, dated April 1, 1626, that the petitioner had received punishment according to his just deserts.]

1626. Vol. XXII.

March 14. 104. List of the ship's company of the Dreadnought, mustered aboard, in the Downs, by Capt. Downing.

March 14. 105. Muster roll of the Rainbow, taken this day by Capt. Joshua Downing.

March 15. 106. Information of Daniel Bonnel as to English ships and persons stayed at Calais by the Governor.

March 15. Salisbury. 107. Madame Gordon to [Nicholas]. Requests his interference with his relation Mr. "Honton" to procure payment of money lent. [Fr.]

March 15. 108. Sir Francis Howard to Buckingham. In consequence of ill health and removal he had assigned the Vice Admiralty of Kent to Wm. Legge, and hoped that he had executed the office according to the covenants of the patent.

March 15. Plymouth. 109. John Clifton to Nicholas. Had written many letters to Sir Allen Apsley, giving him to understand the necessity for sending down money for victualling and apparel, but had received small comfort. Capt. Pennington and himself are continually employed in appeasing mutinies bred by discontent for want of pay. If speedy course be not taken for redress, all men that deal for the King's business will be disheartened. Begs Nicholas to move for relief.

March 15. 110. Case of Charles Earl of Nottingham in support of a bill for reversing a decree in the Court of Wards. [It appears from an endorsement in the handwriting of Bishop Laud that the bill was this day "throwen out att y^e^ committye." See Lords' Journ., III., 532.]

[March 15.] 111. Information presented to the House of Commons by John Tendring, of the practices and course of life of the priests and papists in the New Prison, and of the abuses of the Warden of the said prison.

March 15. 112. Sec. Conway to John Tendring, Provost Marshal of Middlesex. Warrant authorizing him to search in the New Prison for popish books, massing stuff, and other relics of popery.

March 15. Wimbledon. 113. Edward Viscount Wimbledon to Buckingham. Though his baggage ship had not come up, he had made up his journal, and desired to be brought to his hearing. He entreats the Duke to forget all that had been told him, and, although it be but a Justice of the Peace's rule, to see how things would be proved in his presence. Alludes to his past services and commands, his miserable journey, and the activity of his enemies, and makes an earnest appeal to the Duke to secure him a fair hearing.

March 15. 114. [Ralph] Locke to Sir Francis Nethersole. Sending letters [from Sir Ben. Rudyerd].

March 15. Inner Temple. 115. Attorney General Heath to the Council. The information given by Mr. Ogle against Mr. Roger Widdrington, should be investi-

VOL. XXII.

1626. gated in the Court of Star Chamber, and in the mean time, as a recusant convict, Sir Roger should be confined within some convenient place in these southern parts.

March 15. 116. Copy of the preceding.

VOL. XXIII. MARCH 16—31, 1626.

March 16 1. Statement by John Wylets. He knows nothing of the business of the gunpowder at Colchester, but states what he had heard said by Richard Causton.

[March 16.] 2. Statement by Richard Causton, one of the farmers' deputies of Colchester, respecting the finding of 16 barrels of gunpowder on board the Solomon, and two barrels on board the Edward and John, the latter being "bunged with clay as though they were beer barrels."

March 16. 3. Statement by John Prisman, master of the Edward and John. Two beer barrels of gunpowder were laden on board his ship, by Thos. Martin, one of the merchants of the ship; they were taken out by the officers of customs at Colchester, and left by him there.

March 16. 4. Statement of Thos. Martin. He put the gunpowder on board the Edward and John, for defence of the ship. The officers of customs would not allow it to pass, but after the ship had sailed delivered it to Wm. Pelham on Martin's account. Pelham sold it, in Colchester, on Martin's account, at 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per barrel.

[March 16.] 5. Paper of memoranda as to the effect of the above evidence.

[March 16.] 6. Further paper of memoranda on the same subject.

March 16. London. 7. Richard Wyan to Nicholas. As yet he has no directions about Sir John Eliot, although this is the day. When before the Council my Lord said these prizes were taken by chase, and did fly from the King's fleet; if this could be proved, it might be very relevant. [Attached is a copy of Nicholas's answer, Whitehall, 1626, March 16. He directs Wyan to except generally to the whole body of Sir John Eliot's accounts, and particularly as to the abating of 300*l.* for Hyatt's ship, and that nothing was received from a Frenchman. It would be proved that he had 100*l.* There are other exceptions, respecting which Wyan will hear from the Duke as soon as may be.]

March 16. Deptford. 8. Kenrick Edisbury to the same. Recommends Thos. Wilkinson for Purser of the Antelope, in place of John Hooker, said to be dead.

March 16. 9. Speech of the Duke of Buckingham at a conference of both Houses of Parliament, in explanation of the speeches delivered by the King and the Lord Keeper on the previous day, with an addition in relation to the charges against the Duke himself. [Imperfect, but containing some matter not in Rushworth, I., 225.]

1626. VOL. XXIII.

March 16. Plymouth. 10. Jo. Bere to Sec. Conway. Two months pay will be due on the 17th inst., besides monies for apparel and repair of arms. Has received from the Mayor 5,450*l.*, which has been all paid out. The charge for entertainment is now 900*l.* per week. Some houses in the town are infected with plague, and it increases a little daily. The Commissioners have appointed their meetings at Plympton.

March 16. Aboard the Entrance. 11. Sir Henry Palmer to Buckingham. Having sent the St. Claude to Calais to transport the Duke's servant Mr. Gerbier, she brought back a ship laden at Bordeaux with wines, but which she had notice was bound for Dunkirk. He will hasten about the ships. The Garland is a much better ship for operations against the Dunkirkers than the Entrance. The ships' companies much comforted by the Duke's assurance of provisions coming. Thanks for the warrant for pilots. [In the margin is a memorandum by Nicholas, that on March 18, 1626, Dr. Ryves reported to him that he saw no cause for detaining the ship above mentioned.] Incloses, 11. I. Examination of Andrew Puller, pilot of the St. Peter of Calais, touching the lading of the ship, and the intention of the master to put into Dunkirk.

11. II. Examinations of John Hendrick, son of Henry Alberts, Master of the St. Peter mentioned above, and also of the carpenter, gunner, and two seamen, as to her lading.

March 16. 12. Comments on the conduct of Sir Robert Mansell in his expedition to the Mediterranean, A.D. 1621. [Indorsed by Nicholas as having been received on the day mentioned in the margin.]

March 17. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to the Turkey Company. For taking aboard Sir Thomas Phillips, Ambassador for Constantinople. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

March 17. From his Majesty's Fort by Plymouth. 13. The Commissioners at Plymouth to Sir Wm. St. Leger. In favour of Capt. Heigham, who had been preferred to Capt. Porter's company, and in disparagement of a Lieutenant who had used means to displant him.

March 17. Hammersmith. 14. Edmund Earl of Mulgrave to Sec. Conway. Recommends his ancient servant, Matthew Dale, for employment in taking priests, seminaries, and others of the popish religion, in which capacity the Earl had employed him while he supplied the place of President at York.

March 17. 15. Buckingham to Capt. Richd. Harris, of the Hector, and Capt. Edwd. Button, of the Aletheia. Instructions to convey the fishermen of Yarmouth and other coast towns trading for the voyages of Westmony, Island [Iceland], and the North Seas, and to see them safe so far as "the Gattes of Scotland." Having done so he is to repair to Harwich and ply up and down to intercept the King's enemies. [Attested copy.]

March 17. 16. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. The St. George rides in the Downs, but without a competent number of men, or victuals beyond the 20th instant. She is a fit ship to be employed to guard the Northern coast, but wants certain ordnance. The Duke is requested to give warrant for her being brought up the river and made ready for that service.

March 17. Poplar. 17. Wm. Burrell, Commissioner of the Navy, to Nicholas. Had received his letters about Mr. Allport, and apprising him that shipwrights are to be appointed by the Duke's warrant. Suggests that the warrant should be conditional on their diligent service. Their wages, with allowance for the work of a servant under them, amount to 15*l.* or 16*l.* a year.

March 17. 18. Petition of Wm. Ryman to Buckingham. His son Capt. George Ryman, who was slain at Cadiz, took "a prisall of value," which after his death was seized by Sir Thos. Love and others, and even Capt. Ryman's clothes were pillaged. Prays that he may receive satisfaction for his son's part of the "prisall," for his goods, and also for his entertainment in the service, so that he may be able to pay his son's debts.

[March 18.] Buckingham to Sir Henry Palmer. He is presently to release the St. Peter brought by the St. Claude out of Calais road, and to give instructions to the Captains of ships under him, not to intercept any ships belonging to his Majesty's allies, without good proof that, at least, part of the ship or lading belongs to the enemy. He has given order to Sir Allen Apsley for Palmer's ships to be revictualled. [Draft, written on blank page of Vol. xxiii., No. 11.]

March 18. 19. Receipt of Wm. Watkins, servant to Mr. Mylles, for a certificate and five Privy Seals sent to the Council from Sir George Booth, collector for co. Chester.

March 18. Plymouth. 20. Commissioners at Plymouth to Buckingham. One of his Grace's appointments has not a little perplexed them, that of Mr. Matthews to Capt. Porter's company in lieu of Capt. Heigham. They state reasons which have induced them to suspend further proceedings therein until his pleasure be better known.

[March 18.] 21. Thos. Trussell, one of the Messengers of the Chamber, to Sec. Conway. By his order he rode into Northumberland and brought up Christopher Hogg. He has kept him since the 21st of January last, providing him with meat, drink, and clothing. Prays that he may be discharged of the poor man, having already disbursed much money on his account.

March 18. Westminster. 22. Lord Chief Justice Crewe to the same. Considering the offence of the Northumberland man [Hogg], and that the person of the delinquent is base and contemptible, the Lord Keeper and Treasurer like it well to have him whipped in Bridewell, and then discharged.

1626. VOL. XXIII.

[March 18.] 24. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. The sickness increases so much at Plymouth, that it will be dangerous for the ships to ride there any longer. If money be not instantly sent down the men will dissolve. Sets forth his necessities. He has 2,000 mariners there. [Minute, by Nicholas.]

March 18. On board the Lion in Catwater. 25. The same to Nicholas. Will do Capt. Bardsey or any other friend of Nicholas's all the service he can; but, except it be a special command from the Duke or Nicholas, he would not willingly make him Vice or Rear Admiral, he having had no experience at sea. The last voyage was his first command. It is six weeks since Pennington received any packet from the Duke, which has almost broken his heart. He not only honours the Duke, but loves him as a young man doth his mistress. Wishes provisions were hastened away. Has given up the Assurance, of Dover, to Mr. Hugessen on Nicholas's letter, but dare not release the Christian without the Duke's warrant. Knows that the going out of a squadron would be to good purpose, but would not willingly go to the west of Spain without 20 or 30 sail. Marvels that Sir Wm. Russell should say that there is no precedent for impressing 200*l.* Sir Robt. Mansell had 3,000*l.* impress; but 210*l.* is now due to Pennington on his pay. Capt. Wollaston was buried yesterday. Urges the sending money that the fleet may get away from that place where the plague is wondrous rife.

March 18. 26. Capt. Thos. Bardsey to the same. Capt. Campaine is in the harbour of Broadhaven, in Ireland, of which he keeps possession. He has taken two small ships of Galloway, which he declares he shall keep till he has his pardon in his custody. The writer begs Nicholas to think of Tom Bardsey, who much desires that employment. His ship is ready; he wants nothing but victual and his command.

March 18. 27. The East India Company to Sec. Conway. Having received his letter signifying the King's pleasure that the ship designed for Constantinople should take in Sir Thos. Phillipps, his servants and goods. They certify that by reason of their disputes with Sir Thos. about their ancient privileges, which he seeks to evade, they cannot resolve whether the ship shall proceed on her voyage.

March 19. 28. Petition of Bernardino Benzi, and others, merchants of Venice, to Buckingham. Pray for licence to export to Calais 260 bags of rice, part of the cargo referred to in their former petition [see 1626, March 10, Vol. xxii., No. 65], and that they may reload the remainder of their goods in some Hamburgh bottom, for exportation to Spain or Portugal.

March 19. Deal. 29. Sir Hen. Palmer to the same. Reports the present position of the ships comprising his fleet. The ships are all so short of victuals that if there be not a speedy supply he knows not what will become of them. He has been so afflicted with their daily complaints that he has relieved one ship out of another, till now all their provisions are spent. The St. George is a fit ship for the North parts. Has not received directions concerning the ship brought from Calais Road. Has been two days ashore, whilst his bedding and necessaries were removing.

March 19. Whitehall. 30. Sir Benjamin Rudyerd to Sir Francis Nethersole. Had sent him the Re[membrancers] of all that had been done in Parliament, whereof he must not expect many particulars, the points being so "dangerous," as we dare not speak here freely amongst ourselves. Blainville had long been forbidden the Court as overmeddling in private business between the King and Queen. A sharp letter, written by the King's command, to our Ambassadors in France. They have concluded a peace disadvantageous to those of our religion. The sending of our ships against Rochelle has been severely handled in Parliament.

March 19. 31. Petition of Jeremy Allen to the high and most mighty Prince, George Duke of Buckingham. Prays that he may turn over his place of porter of Walmer Castle to his kinsman, Thos. Gillow. Annexed, 31. I. Edmund Lisle, Capt. of Walmer Castle, to Nicholas. In approval of the suggested arrangement. 1626, March 18.

March 20. Walmer Castle. 32. Edmund Lisle, Capt. of Walmer Castle, to Nicholas. John Grimes and Thos. Paine, two of his men, being dead, he begs leave to nominate Henry Hamme and Jack Sampson.

March 20. The Tower. 33. Sir Allen Apsley to the same. As a game of chess, earnestly played, and for a great wager too, so is the present business, the writer being the least pawn; yet, because he stands in the way of danger, if he be not guarded by the moving of the King, he is like to be snapt up and taken. Sends a letter open, which Nicholas is requested to seal and deliver. Would that the writer could express truth to the life, and that the Lord Treasurer and Council were as sensible of these miseries as those that undergo the clamour, in which the writer stands in the first rank. Without "Corranell Argent" instantly come, Sir Allen and his friends must sink and perish. Had not the sale of the prize goods been hindered by private malice, 40 of the King's ships and others had been on the coasts of Spain. Actions must redeem our honour, not wise discourses that carry consideration upon consideration, whilst the business groans under the burden of delay.

March 20. Westminster. 34. The King to Sir Heneage Finch, Speaker of the Commons House in Parliament. Because the unreasonable slowness of the House may produce at home as ill effects as a denial, and may hazard the whole state of things abroad, the King has thought it fit to let them know by the Speaker, that without more loss of time he looks for an answer of what they will give for his supply. The Speaker is to promise the House, in the King's name, that he will continue them together as long as the season will permit, and shortly call them together again, and also that he will remedy all grievances presented to him in a dutiful and mannerly way. [Copy.]

March 20. 35. Another copy of the same letter.

March 20. 36. Another copy.

1626. Vol. XXIII.

March 20. 37. Speech of Sir Wm. Walter, delivered in the House of Commons. The cause of all the grievances is, that all the King's Council ride upon one horse, therefore the Parliament should advise the King, as Jethro did Moses, to take unto him assistants.

March 20. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to —— Ramsborow, Master of the Sampson. For the taking aboard the trunks, &c. of Sir Thos. Phillips, Ambassador for Constantinople. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

March 20. Westminster. Charter of confirmation to the tenants of the dissolved monastery of St. Mary's, in the city of York, of the privileges granted them by various former charters. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 142.]

[March 20 ?] 38. Speech delivered, or prepared for delivery, in the House of Commons, on the question of whether the House should investigate the causes of past failures before they proceeded to consider future remedies. The speaker argues against doing so, inasmuch as nothing more appears than error "whereunto all human actions are subject." He defends Buckingham, as one whose "heart stands right with the public good," although he would have been "much more happy in his greatness" if he had been more cautious not to "abound in his own sense," which is a common fault when "a high pitch of favour" meets with "young years." The speaker urges the House to consider what a task it undertakes in thinking to tear the Duke from the sides of the King, who has taken him so deeply into his affection, and holds himself interested not to abandon the Duke, "unless on cause of greater conviction."

March 20. 39. Petition of the Bailiffs and Freemen of Kingston-upon-Thames to the King:—Some of their ancient privileges having been lately called in question, they pray that his Majesty would grant them a confirmation of all their privileges heretofore enjoyed, with such additional privileges as should be thought necessary for the good government of the town. [Underwritten is a reference of the petition to the Lord Keeper and Lord Chief Baron, taking to their assistance the Attorney and Solicitor General.]

March 20. Westminster. 40. Renewed warrant for payment, to Philip Earl of Montgomery, Keeper of Woodstock Park, of the sum of 40*l.* per annum for wages of park keepers, and also of 40*l.* per annum for provision of hay for the deer.

March $\frac{20}{30}$ Amsterdam. 41. Sackville Crow to Sec. Conway. The great factions of this place, especially those of this town, where money only is to be had, prevent his accomplishing his object. The Arminian faction is strong here, and those of the East India Company love us not. Ill offices have been done from England, pretending that the Parliament has more interest in the jewels than the King. Begs Lord Conway to remind the Duke of sending a convoy for him.

March 20. Certificate of Sec. Conway that Capt. Frederic Bentley had returned from foreign service in obedience to the King's proclamation. [Minute, Conway's Foreign Letter Book, France, Vol. clxxviii., p. 249.]

March 20. Similar certificate for Capt. John Brutnell. [Minute, ibid.]

Vol. XXIII.

1626.

March 20. Certificate similar to the preceding, for Lieut. Thos. Giffard [Giffart]. [Minute, Conway's Foreign Letter Book, France, Vol. clxxviii., p. 249.]

March 21. Westminster. Grant to Sir Thomas Mounson, of the office of Clerk for King's letters, and bills and declarations thereon, exhibited before the President and Council of the North, during the lives of Sir John Mounson and Thomas Mounson, sons of the said Sir Thomas, and John Mounson, son of Sir Robert Mounson, on surrender of an estate for life in the said office by Thomas Leyton. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. I., No. 143.]

March 21. 42. Dr. Thos. Ryves to [Nicholas]. Has nothing to say why the Michael, of Ross, should belong to the King. Recommends that she should be released.

March 21. 43. Capt. Richd. Gyffard to Nicholas. Is there any occasion for him to attend the Duke? Entreats Nicholas not to let the Duke be swayed to his further hurt. There is no right course taken in sea-employments; the writer could give the Duke such satisfaction as might haply bring all men to love and honour him.

March 21. 44. List of officers and men mustered on board the Happy Entrance in the Downs.

March 21. 45. Petition of Squier Bence and the other owners of the Friendship, of London, to Buckingham:—The Friendship was employed in the late expedition; but her steerage was so defective that the master and company hardly escaped with their lives; they pray that they may be paid for her former employment, out of which they will make her fit for future service. [Underwritten is a reference to the Commissioners of the Navy, this ship being one of the fleet preparing by Capt. Pennington.] Annexed,

45. I. Certificate of William Knight and others, that the Friendship is not fit for any service until her steerage has been amended.

March 21. Whitehall. 46. Sec. Conway to John Earl of Bristol. The King has perused the Earl's letter of the 4th inst., but is nothing satisfied therewith. The question propounded by the King to the Earl was, whether he chose rather to sit still without being questioned, or whether for the clearing of his innocency, whereof himself and his friends are so confident, he would waive the advantage of the late pardon and put himself in a way of trial. The King requires a direct answer, without circumlocution or bargaining for future favours.

March 21. Minute of the above letter. [Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

March 21. Wimbledon. 47. Edward Viscount Wimbledon to Nicholas. Hopes the Duke for all his great business will not forget to send for him. Assigns his reasons for suspecting the St. James, of Dunkirk, brought by him out of Ireland, to be a prize.

March 21. 48. Muster roll of the Anne Royal.

March 22. 49. Sir Allen Apsley to Nicholas. Recommends Richard Morrowe to be Purser of the Desire.

1626. VOL. XXIII.

March 22. 50. Thos. Proctor to Buckingham. Having put into his Grace's hand, in St. James's Park, a writing concerning projects, he now sends his address.

March 23. Plympton. 51. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Money not having been sent, the country had come to such a height of extremity that the people protest they must either thrust their wives and children out of doors or the soldiers. The clothiers had finished the contract for apparel, and now hold the whole dead on their hands. The soldiers cannot be exercised, nor their arms repaired, which breeds in the soldier rather misdemeanour than discipline. Sir Wm. Strode has been entreated to communicate with the Council.

[March 23 ?] 52. Speech of Sir Richard Weston, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons, on declaring to the House, by his Majesty's command, the particular circumstances which rendered the necessity for a supply urgent.

[March 23 ?] 53. Speech in the House of Commons on the necessity of granting a supply. Some men, seeing things in some disorder at home, think best to begin there; but the speaker holds that the war most concerns the safety of the State, and prays that a Select Committee be named to report what is needful to be done with reference to the war, and how it may be provided for.

March 23. Whitehall. 54. Lords Commissioners for the Subsidy to Sec. Conway. The second entire subsidy due by him, according to the grant made 1st Charles, amounts to 20*l.*, being after the rate of 4*s.* out of 100*l.* He is requested to pay the same to Edward Legg, the collector.

March 23. Brocklesby. 55. Sir Wm. Pelham to his brother Sec. Conway. The soldiers in these parts had come to more perfection than could have been expected. The serjeants, Bodendine and Dales, from Brill, had taken wonderful pains. It would be impossible to get the Captains to continue a monthly training without some allowance to the officers. Hopes the King and Parliament will accord. The country is willing enough to make supplies by way of subsidies, but fifteenths would impoverish the poorer sort.

March 23. Inner Temple. 56. Attorney General Heath to Sec. Conway. Sends the pardon for John Tapps.

March 23. 57. Thos. Walker to the King. Hopkins is dead in Ireland. The writer has cast in his mite among the heap of wits that study to make the King's name immortal and enrich his kingdom.

March 23. April. 2. Leghorn. 58. Extract from a letter written by a person on board an English ship. Capture by his ship, near Majorca, of a vessel laden with oils for Valentia. Warlike preparations of the King of Spain against England.

Vol. XXIII.

March 24. 59. Order of Council, on the complaints of the French Ambassador, against John Griffin and John Gray, pursuivants of the High Commission Court, for infringing the privileges of an Ambassador, and against certain ministers and officers of Faversham for imprisoning a servant of the Ambassador. The pursuivants were continued prisoners in the Gate House during his Majesty's pleasure. The magistrates who were chief actors at Faversham were ordered to be called before the Board to receive punishment. [Copy.]

March 24. 60. Wm. Walgrave, prisoner in the High Commission Prison, to Sec. Conway. Tendring, under the authority of Lord Conway's warrant, had taken away from the writer and others many things not prohibited.

March 24. 61. Estimate for setting forth six Newcastle ships with 360 men for five months, for guarding the fishermen; and for revictualling the Hector and Aletheia with 170 men for one month; 5,688*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

March 24. Whitehall. 62. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. He is to release the Assurance, of Dover, the owners having promised to send her forth with a letter of marque.

[March 24?] 63. Petition of William Younge, servant to "Baronet Seymour, in Devon," to the high and mighty Prince, George Duke of Buckingham:—Having served Lieut. to Arthur Cooper, Capt. of the Mary Magdalen, of Aldborough, he prays for some recompense for the prizes they took.

March 24. Pendennis. 64. Capt. John Bonython to Sec. Conway. Reiterates his request that Pendennis may be furnished with a supply for its defence, and that he may be remembered if a fort be erected at Fowey.

March 24. 65. Certificate of Wm. Man and Peter Heywood, that Edmund Grove had taken the oath of allegiance.

March 24. 66. Similar certificate of Henry Lide and Peter Heywood, with respect to Andrew Huddeston.

March 24. 67. Buckingham to Sir Henry Palmer. Complaint made by merchants that the ships under his charge lie still at anchor, and do not ply up and down. An instance is given of a bark of London being chased by a man-of-war of Dunkirk into the Downs, where none of the King's ships so much as weighed anchor or stood to sea to rescue her or intercept the Dunkirker.

March 25. 68. Note of report made to the House of Commons by Mr. Wandesford from the Committee for Evils, Causes, and Remedies, whereby the Duke of Buckingham was pointed out as the great cause of the evils of the country.

March 25. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Lord Treasurer Marlborough. For payment of the Master and Provost of Captain Bruce's regiment at Southampton, and of other officers there, unpaid. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 247.]

1626. Vol. XXIII.

March 25. Chatham Dock. 69. Joshua Downing to Nicholas. Recommends Walter Dyer, boatswain of the Happy Entrance, for boatswain of the Prince, in case Wm. Adams should die.

March 25. The Downs. 70. Sir Hen. Palmer to Nicholas. The complaints against him are so unjust that they trouble him the less, but it would trouble any man to hear the exclamations there made for their wants, which threaten ruin. For service, they are able to do none till they receive supplies. Defends himself in the cases of misconduct alleged against him, and doubts not the Duke will think him much wronged.

March 25. 71. Commissioners of the Navy to the same. Suggest that the Duke should give order to the Captain of the Charles, the guard ship at Tilbury Hope, to ply about the mouth of the Thames, so as to restrain the Dunkirk sloops from entering the river.

March 25. 72. Bond of John Isaacke and James Hugessen for 300*l.*, conditioned to be void on their bringing the Greyhound into Dover.

March 25. The Downs, from aboard the Garland. 73. Sir Henry Palmer to Buckingham. The complaints against him are as full of malice as untruth. Accounts for the present disposition of his fleet. Never heard of the circumstance of a bark chased into the Downs until he received the Duke's letter. There never was any man in his place driven to so hard exigents for want of victual and necessaries. The show of the Duke's distaste is a heavy burthen to him. Inclosed, 73. 1. Copy of general instructions given by Sir Hen. Palmer to the Captains of the ships under him.

March 26. 74. Thos. Walker to Sec. Conway. Sends a paper written on hearing that there is a great fleet to go forth.

March 26. 75. Arguments on the effects of debasing or enhancing the value of money, delivered at a conference before his Majesty at the Council Table.

March 26. Fulham. 76. Sir Thos. Button to Capt. John Pennington. Illness and not neglect has been the cause of his silence. There is not a friend to whom he would be loather to give just cause of doubt than Jack Pennington ; and so he should believe, if he desires to make the writer happy. He is sensible of the difficulties Pennington has to encounter. Hopes the Parliament will take a course to see things better settled, and wishes that, till that may be, he and those he loves were quit of their employments. Pennington's letters to the Lord Chamberlain were safely delivered. The writer's two days attendance on the Parliament well nigh cost him his life. News he dares not write, but fears he will have much ere long. Whilst he is in being he will be the same to Pennington he has ever professed. Wishes him to write sometimes to Sir Robert Mansell, who holds himself neglected by all men in present employment.

VOL. XXIII.

March 26. The Downs. 77. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. The Delight and St. Claude had chased a Dunkirker, but she went away two feet for their one. They brought in with them two Lubeckers laden with salt, from Portugal. Firing heard to the northward, and ships sent out to inform themselves what it was. Entreats they may speedily be provided for, or of necessity he must send in the ships. Has sent up his Captain to let his Grace understand their true state. Wishes those who complain of him knew but the care of his life for one month.

March 26. The Downs. 78. The same to Nicholas. Entreats Nicholas to bring his Captain to the speech of the Duke. Unless there be very speedy order taken the service must cease, and the ships be sent up, for starve they must not. Easily guesses from whom those unjust calumniations proceed, whereby the Duke's credulity is abused. Recommends Richd. Hulse for a Purser's place in one of the ships now to be built.

March 26. 79. Sir Edwd. Dering to Nicholas. Details the evidence of the right of his family to wreck of the sea, as the same was formerly enjoyed by the Maison Dieu, of Dover. [Extract.]

March 26. 80. Petition of Richd. Dove to Buckingham:—Prays for the next boatswain's place that falls void; with underwritten recommendation of ten brethren of the Trinity House.

March 26. Buckingham to Sir Hen. Palmer. The Duke has himself spoken to the Surveyor of Marine Victuals, and been assured that the majority of the ships in Sir Henry's fleet were victualled till April 19, and the rest until May 24. The alleged wants therefore are only counterfeited by the Pursers. Sir Henry is to make strict inquiry, and execute exemplary punishment on the faulty. There are still daily and lamentable complaints of the spoil committed by the Dunkirkers. Sir Henry is to send out some good ships to ply in those parts where the Dunkirkers frequent, and never to come into any road or harbour until forced by weather. [See Vol. xxiii., No. 67.]

March 26. From his lodging in Holborn. 81. Sir Ralph Assheton, Collector of loan money on Privy Seals for co. Lancaster, to the Council. Received 200 Privy Seals, on which he has collected 1,236*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, which he has paid into the Exchequer and sends an account. Incloses, 81. 1. Declaration of the state and accompt of the business in which Sir Ralph was collector. The whole amount of the Privy Seals sent to him was 2,536*l.* 13*s.* 4*d. The account shows: paid* 101, promised 40, discharged by order 9, dead 2, neither paid nor promised 48.

1626. VOL. XXIII.

March 27. Aboard the Lion riding in Catwater. 84. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. On Friday night 16 of Mons. Soubise's fleet set sail out of Hamoaze, and went away without acquainting Pennington or obtaining leave of Mons. Soubise. Requests directions as to the three prizes he has there. Has so often made known their wants, and received neither answer, supply, nor redress, that he is quite disheartened. Wishes the Duke understood with what difficulty he has long kept them together; but he has gone as far as he can, and must be forced to yield to them if there come not order within five or six days.

March 27. Speech of Sir John Eliot, delivered in the House of Commons, on the grievances of the country and the proper way of procuring relief, citing the precedents of 16th Henry III. and 10th Richard II. [See Vol. xxiii., No. 37.]

March 27. King's Lynn. 85. The Corporation of Lynn Regis to the Council. Submit circumstances which tend to show that Michael Gabe did not receive his hurt in the King's service, and that therefore they are not bound to provide for him.

March 27. 86. Nicholas to Capt. Edwd. Harvey. Notice has been given that the Turks put aboard his ship, the Royal Exchange, had been taken away by some private person. He is to send to the master and officers to certify who took them away. [Attached is a certificate from the master and two others of the crew of the Royal Exchange, that the four Turks had been delivered to Capt. Nicholas Leatt, to be put aboard the Sampson, bound for the Straits.]

March 27. 87. Capt. Jas. Duppa to Nicholas. Recommends that the colliers which were lying idle in the river should be ordered to go to Newcastle for coals for London. Last year coals were 12*s.* per chaldron; he saw a man on Saturday pay at the rate of 33*s.*

March 27. 88. Minute by Nicholas of the suggestion contained in the above letter.

March 28. Plymouth. 89. John Clifton to Buckingham. Thirty ships were ready, only waiting for victuals. Importance of laying in a stock of provisions at that time of the year, when beer was brewed, and beef and pork salted. The plague is dispersed about the town. Begs that if money cannot be sent down they may have letters of credit on the Mayor and Commissioners.

March 28. 90. Lord Treasurer Marlborough and Sir Richard Weston, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to Sir Robert Pye, Auditor of the receipt of the Exchequer. They send him an account of the amount set apart for the charge of the navy for the year 1626, amounting to 27,758*l.* 17*s.*, with instructions as to the funds to be assigned for payment thereof.

Coming home to England he had met with two vessels laden with Spanish goods, and had brought them with him; not finding the Admiral of the Narrow Seas in the Downs, he craved the Duke's directions.

March 29. 95. Certificate of Col. Sir John Ogle, that Sir John Bowyer had served under him in the Low Countries.

March 29. 96. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. They hold the request for ordnance for the six Newcastle ships that are to guard the colliers for one return, to be very reasonable.

March 29. 97. Speech of Lord Keeper Coventry to both Houses of Parliament, in presence of the King at Whitehall. He reproves the Commons for not having censured Mr. Clement Coke, and corrected the insolence of Dr. Turner; and delivers to them the King's command to cease their "unparliamentary inquisition" into the conduct of the Duke of Buckingham.

March 29. 98. Another copy of the same.

March 30. 99. Speeches of the Duke of Buckingham, Lord Conway, and the Lord Chamberlain, at a meeting of a committee of both Houses, held to receive an explanation which the Duke was commanded by the King to give, of somewhat which was spoken the day before by the King and the Lord Keeper.

March 30. Sherborne. 102. John Earl of Bristol to Sec. Conway. He is infinitely grieved that his former letter had not satisfied his Majesty. In answer to Lord Conway's letter of the 24th inst., he returns this direct answer, that, understanding he is restored to the liberty of a subject and a Peer, he shall accept his Majesty's grace, not presuming to press for any special favour, but making use of his freedom in such sort as he shall judge most agreeable to his Majesty's pleasure. He hopes the modest avowal of his innocence will not be thought to cast any aspersion on his Majesty's honour or justice.

1626. Vol. XXIII.

March 31. Pendennis. 106. Captain John Bonython to Sec. Conway. Various ships from Portugal, France, and Spain have brought tidings that great preparations are making in the last-mentioned country for an invasion of England. They at Rochelle are quiet, the King attempting nothing on them since the refusal of the articles propounded. Reminds him that Pendennis, instead of 40 pieces of ordnance, had not one mounted, yet platforms ready for all.

Houghton from Lancashire, and he remained a long time in the petitioner's custody; the fees and charges remain unpaid, and Sir Richard is emboldened to delay, being a prisoner in the Fleet; the petitioner prays for a warrant to the keeper of the Fleet to restrain Sir Richard of his liberty until he has paid the amount.

Last night the noblest Duke commanded him to entreat the Sec.'s care in procuring the King's hand to the inclosed letter for Sir Arthur Ingram, who had done and was doing good service in this Parliament. [April 3.] 15. Petition of Capt. James Duppa to the Council, praying that the Seahorse, which the petitioner had fitted and victualled at an expense of 1,200*l.*, might be pressed for the King's service.

April 3. 16. The same to Nicholas. Suggests that if the King would furnish every man with a ship that is able to victual it, there would, in a short time, be a fleet of 50 sail of private men-of-war.

April 3. 17. Petition of Robert Aldworth, Thos. Wright, Giles Elbridge, and Richard Gough, Merchants of Bristol, to Buckingham:—Having goods detained in Spain of the value of 3,000*l.*, they pray, that if by any means they were to right themselves on any Spanish goods, the same should not be liable to confiscation on being brought home. Their intended courses are also designed by special stratagem to bring off from Spain their factor Michael Hunt.

April 3. 18. Commissioners of the Navy to the same. Suggest to the Duke to grant a warrant for pressing 45 special men for the Desire to be employed against the Dunkirkers, with promise of a small share of the prizes she may take, the designed service being one of great hazard.

April 3. Aboard the Garland in the Downs. 19. Sir Hen. Palmer to the same. Had brought over the Ambassadors. Weighed on Tuesday, but it was Friday before he could make Boulogne road. On Thursday gave chase to nine sail, of whom he stayed three, laden with salt. Prizes taken by Capt. Osborne. Has found the four Turks. The Merchant Bonaventure chased two Dunkirkers, but could do no good, they exceed us so much in sailing.

April 3. Aboard the Garland in the Downs. 21. Sir Hen. Palmer to [Nicholas]. Nicholas having written that the Duke would have him send some good force to Dunkirk and some also to the westward, Sir Henry reminds him that he has only four ships, the rest being dispersed elsewhere. April 4. 22. Sir Nicholas Poyntz "to the high and mighty Prince, George Duke of Buckingham." Sir Nicholas having killed a man in a street brawl, and being imprisoned in the King's Bench, paid 500*l.* to Sir Edwd. Villiers, for the Duke's use, for a pardon. The pardon had not been obtained, and, under pretence of his having excited a mutiny in the King's Bench, Sir Nicholas had been committed to Newgate to "a dungeon, without bed or light, and so inforced to lie in a coffin." Prays to be fetched out of Newgate or repaid his 500*l.*

April 4. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir Francis Gofton. To take accompt of what monies are due to the Masters of the Mint, and what monies the Wardens of the Mint have received, and to certify. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 248.]

April 4. Newcastle. 23. Mayor and Justices of Newcastle-upon-Tyne to the Council. Are bold to make known the lamentable spoil done to this nation by the Dunkirkers, who remain on the coasts taking and spoiling our ships, to the utter undoing of merchants and masters, many of the latter being taken prisoners, and to the ruin of many thousand labouring people, there being no vent for coals. One of the officers of the customs had found in a ship in that port a bag full of popish books. Inclose,

24. I. Certificate of the Commissioners to Nicholas. That there are many other ships in the same predicament, all which are commended to consideration. 1626, April 4.

April 4. 25. Dep. Lieuts. of Bucks. to the Duke of Buckingham. John Knight and Thomas Cowden having been appointed to give attendance on Capt. Lea, to be taught and exercised with the rest of the band under his charge, the Dep. Lieuts. certify that both of them contemptuously neglected their duty.

April 4. Plymouth. 26. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Refer to previous letters respecting the necessities and wants of the soldiers, and their own endeavours to discharge their duties and retain all things in peace; they had, notwithstanding, on the previous night received the letter inclosed, from which it will be seen that the coals are kindling. The most certain remedy is a full supply of treasure. The subsidies of Devon, Cornwall, and Somerset might conveniently be assigned to make a beginning. Inclose,

26. I. *Capt. Wm. Molesworth to Sir Ferdinando Gorges, or, in his absence, to any one of the Commissioners at Plymouth. Is credibly informed that the soldiers have determined to begin their journey on Easter Monday, if they be not clothed before, and to march towards his Majesty to show their nakedness. April 4. The Savoy. 27. George Earl of Totness to the Council. Having received letters from the Council for the loan out of the King's store of twelve culverins and demy-culverins for defence of Lynn Regis, and twenty similar pieces for Yarmouth, he sends the answer of the officers of the Ordnance. Incloses,

27. I. Officers of the Ordnance to the Earl of Totness. His Majesty has no such iron ordnance in his stores; the ships also have only demy-culverins and sakers of iron, which are not of length sufficient for the required use. The King's founder has pieces to supply the petitioners' wants if they will buy them; or, if the King thinks fit to supply the necessities of these towns out of pieces which the founder has ready cast for the King's castles, a Privy Seal must be passed and present money procured for payment, which, with the carriages, will amount to about 1,109*l.* 1626, April 3.

April 4. Walmer Castle. 28. Edmund Lisle, Capt. of Walmer Castle, to Nicholas. Requests warrants for swearing Isaac Adams and Wm. Gillow, in the place of John Grimes, deceased, and of Wm. April 5. 31. Remonstrance of the House of Commons, presented to the King in reply to his censure of their proceedings. [Perhaps orig.]

April 5. 32. Copy of the same.

April 5. Aboard the Red Lion, in Catwater. 33. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Reports of great preparations in Spain; and all the speech of it is "for England;" 80 great boats built for the landing of men, each to land 120 at a time; 140 sail are going out of Biscay to Newfoundland, to take the English fishing fleet. 30 sail of Hamburghers are riding in Torbay, all bound for Spain. If the Duke will send him speedy order he will undertake to bring them in. The whole company of the Swiftsure had that day mutinied and got ashore. He had followed them, and with the assistance of the Mayor, had brought the greatest part of them aboard again, and hoped to get the rest. He should punish some of them, but their cases are so lamentable that they are not much to be blamed. The sickness increases very much at Plymouth.

April 5. 34. Examination [before Sec. Conway?] of Francis Matthew, a Scotchman, returned from the Continent after 14 years absence.

[April 5.] 35. Observations on the examination of Francis Matthew, tending to impeach his credit.

April 5. 40. The House of Commons to the King. Humble remonstrance, in answer to the speeches of the King and the Lord Keeper of the 29th March 1626.

April 5. 41. Copy of the same.

April 5. 42. Another copy, differing in several places from the preceding.

April 6. London. 43. Isaac Pennington to Capt. John Pennington. Explains the delay of his previous letter. Has not received the Captain's money, although he has haunted Sir Wm. Russell. Sir Wm. would have had the writer solicit one Mr. Nicholas, but he declined, not having been used to dance attendance on great men's secretaries, whereupon "he tyed a knot in his handkercher to remember him to do it himself." The complaints of men for want of pay are lamentable. There is little hope of any good unless the King and Parliament agree.

April 6. 44. Dep. Lieuts. of Norfolk to the Council. Had taken order for the fortification of Yarmouth by collecting 400*l.* in the country, and had moved the Mayors of Norwich and Yarmouth to assist with 200*l.* more. The co. of Suffolk absolutely refused to be any way charged, although the safety of Yarmouth imported them no less than Norfolk. Houses adjoining to the walls of Yarmouth ought to be removed. Request authority therein, and a present supply of 12 pieces of ordnance.

April 6. Whitehall. 45. Duke of Buckingham to all Mayors and others, the King's officers and subjects. The Duke's servant Edw. Nicholas being employed on his Majesty's special service, they are to supply him with three good horses for himself, a servant, and a guide, both on his going and return.

April 6. Houghton. 46. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Lancaster to Wm. Earl of Derby, Lord Lieut. Have caused the Trained Bands of Amounderness and Blackburn to be disciplined twice every week. The writers will continue training until further order, which they desire to receive.

April 6. 47. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Had considered the depositions against Wm. Driver, Captain of the John Bonaventure, for releasing a ship which the Have-at-all chased for seven hours, and which chase is asserted to have belonged to Enckhuysen, although now said to be in Dunkirk. April 8. Plymouth. 52. Mayor of Plymouth to the Council. The sickness increases, but he had forborne to remove the soldiers on account of the reported intention to mutiny. Preparation was made to suppress any such evils. The soldiers wander about the country and may communicate further infection. Some of them are very rude and debauched.

April 8. Winge. 53. Sir John Conway to his kinsman Sec. Conway. Thanks for favours. Desires to have his portrait for the house in Wales.

April 8. Burton Constable. 54. Henry Viscount Dunbar to Buckingham. April 8. London. 55. Capt. Thos. Philpot to ——. Giving information concerning a ship presumed to be a pirate stayed at Milford Haven.

April 9. Whitehall. 56. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. In reply to his of the 5th. The delays in Parliament have caused delays in other affairs. Some money the Lord Treasurer has sent to Plymouth; he has written also to the Mayor to supply victuals. As to the Hamburghers, Pennington is to use his best advantage, and presently to put to sea. The Lords have written to the Lieuts. of the adjoining shires to prevent the mutineers assembling. [Erroneously dated "1625."]

1626. VOL. XXIV.

April 10. From his lodging in Westminster. 57. Capt. John Mason to Nicholas. Sent from Plymouth examinations concerning the ship taken from the Turks. It appears that they [the four sailors who took the ship] committed piracy after the death of the Turks, as is proved in the examination of John Fransom, sworn before Sir John Eliot. The ship had been employed from Sallee in piracies for three or four years, therefore, Mr. Wyan needs not make any scruple in condemning her.

April 10. Flint. 58. Commissioners for collecting the second subsidy, granted 1 Car. to the Council. Having been reminded by the Council that the subsidy for Flint in 1st Elizabeth amounted to 623*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, and in the 18th King James to 85*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*, they reply that in 23rd Elizabeth, the subsidy amounted to 55*l.* 5*s.*, and in 1590 to 81*l.* 18*s.*, and that the last subsidy levied amounted to 92*l.*; but that the inhabitants of that country, by ancient custom, pay a contribution called lez mises of 1,000 marks to the Sovereigns on their accession, and that the same must have been included in the subsidy of 1st Eliz.; they have now enhanced the subsidy to 102*l.* 18*s.*

April 10. Whitehall. 59. Sir Benjamin Rudyerd to [Sir Francis Nethersole]. The King had not yet given an answer to the remonstrance, which they expect at their access. Hoped it would be for the King's own and the kingdom's good. Lord St. Albans is dead, and so is Sir Thos. Compton.

April 11. 63. The same to the same. Request the Duke to give warrant for ordnance and shot required by the ships appointed to guard the fishermen, and also by the St. George and the St. James, two of the prizes.

April 11. 64. Note of victuals supplied to the Dreadnought from January 11, to April 11, 1626.

April 11. Aboard the Red Lion in Catwater. 65. Captain John Pennington to Buckingham. The sickness daily increases; there die already 14 or 15 a day, and the inhabitants fly into the country. If money were sent they might go to the Isle of Wight, where they would be out of danger of infection and nearer their victuals. More precise instructions requested as to the prizes. Two more of Soubise's fleet went away on Saturday. The increase of the seaman's pay will be a means to bring fresh men; but, for those who have been in the service all this while, nothing will content them but their pay. Has kept them on with fair words, but if not sent suddenly there will be no means to keep them though they be hanged for it. It would grieve any man's heart to hear their lamentations, and to see their wants and nakedness. Repeats his request for 200*l.* for himself, and comments on the disallowance by the Commissioners of the Navy of his pay of 3*l.* per diem on his service in the Narrow Seas, and the conduct towards him of Sir Wm. Russell.

April 13. Christ Church. 72. [John Speed?] to ——. Notwithstanding his blindness he had duly kept the continuation of the English Chronicle which he dedicated and presented to his Majesty, A.D. 1614, but as the affairs of the present were now more difficult to him than any of the precedent, for want of sight, liberty, and conference, he entreats that the person addressed would procure for him such an abstract of remarkable accidents and passages since his Majesty's inauguration, as might be inserted in his next impression.

1626. VOL. XXIV.

The Mayor says, that unless order be taken to set up stages he cannot help it.

April 16. Woodbridge. 5. W. Seckford to the Dep. Lieuts. of Suffolk. At the Muster on Feb. 28 last, Wm. Alston, of Woodbridge, contemptuously refused to serve in his arms, and John Lowes, minister of Brandeston, refused to show his customary musket.

[April 16.] 7. Suggestion [of Nicholas] to Buckingham. That ton and tonnage was given for the maintenance of ships to defend the coast and keep the castles and forts in good repair; and that he, as Lord Admiral, ought to demand from the Lord Treasurer, a supply out of the same for those purposes, and ought to cause his demand to be registered, for his discharge, in the Council Book. On other parts of the same paper, are the form of such a demand, prepared by Nicholas, and memoranda relating to obtaining an order of Council or proclamation for the encouragement of English seamen to take the ships of the enemy, by giving them all the contents of ships taken, except the ordnance.

April 18. 18. Thos. Fulnetby to the same. Jacob, the diver, was allowed by Lord Zouch for iron ordnance taken out of the sea a fourth part, and a third for brass.

[April 18.] 19. Speech of a Peer in the House of Lords, on the question of privilege raised by the commitment of the Earl of Arundel on the command of the King. The speaker argues from his Majesty's love of equity that he must have had good cause for the restraint of the Earl.

April 18. Aboard the Red Lion in Catwater. 20. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. No money come to them as yet, and the supply from the Commissioners so poor that if there be not sudden order otherwise, the Duke must expect nothing but confusion. The Hamburghers were past before the receipt of the Duke's order. A fleet of Hollanders, of 200 sail, had passed to the westward, putting the country in great fear.

April 18. Aboard the Red Lion in Catwater. 21. The same to Nicholas. Received his letter to the Commissioners to furnish their wants until 2,000*l.* could be sent down, but 2,500*l.* will not pay the debts for things already received. If such assignment were broken the House must of necessity break.

April 19. 33. Copy of the same, in the handwriting of Sir Robert Heath.

April 19. 34. Another copy.

April 19. 35. A further copy.

Money and credit having both failed, Mr. Clifton, employed there by Sir Allen Apsley for victualling the ships, is forced to repair to his Grace for redress. Pennington enforces their distressed condition, and explains how little assistance had been obtained from the Treasurer's letter to the Commissioners and the letters of credit of Sir William Russell.

April 22. Whitehall. 46. Sir Benjamin Rudyerd to [Sir Francis Nethersole]. Both the Houses of Parliament begin to work to a height. The King has given the Commons leave to proceed with their grievances. The Earl of Bristol is sent for as a delinquent, and the King has charged him with miscarriages in Spain; and since, Lord Bristol gave some information to the Lower House against the Duke, which they would refer to the consideration of the Lords. My Lord Chamberlain does not think fit his Majesty should stand neutral towards the Arminians. No answer yet concerning the Earl of Arundel.

April 22. 47. Certificate of Robert Hemsworth in favour of Capt. John Hagthorpe, to be Captain of one of the ships to waft the cloth fleet to the East land.

Lord Digby [the Earl of Bristol] sent for by Maxwell, the Officer of the Black Rod. Speeches of Kirton and Sir Dudley Carleton.

Recommends as Postmaster for Portsmouth one whose father held that place.

April 23. Aboard the Garland. 56. The same to Nicholas. The particulars respecting Capt. Mervyn's master must be attested by Dover men, but his violent conduct to his Captain can be witnessed to there. If the St. Peter be claimed by the French, he recommends Capt. Tench for another ship.

April 23. Winchelsea. 57. Mayor and Jurats of Winchelsea to the same. Have chosen Robert Boteler and Giles Waters to travel to London to prevent the mischievous practices of the late disfranchised mayors, Mr. Collins and Mr. Roberts, with the rest. The Mayor and Jurats recommend their messengers to Nicholas, who was acquainted, when in the service of Lord Zouch, with their troubles respecting their late disfranchised corporation.

April 24. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir William Cockin and others, Aldermen of London. Four letters in the behalf of Francis Pember, of the County of Hereford, to be freed from being Alderman of London, in regard of the weakness of his estate, &c. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 249.]

The wages of sailors serving the King were increased from 14*s.* a month to 20*s.*, with allowance thereout of 4*d.* to a preacher, 2*d.* to a barber, and 6*d.* a month to the chest; and a bounty of 5*s.* per ton was promised to every one who built a ship of above 100 tons. [Coll. Procs. Car. I., No. 41.]

April 24. The Savoy. 61. George Earl of Totness to the Council. Had obeyed their orders for furnishing Lynn Regis with ten pieces of ordnance of culverins and sakers; but it was his duty to give them to understand what multiplicity of similar suitors there would be from all the coast towns, and the danger that might ensue if ordnance provided for the ships were wanting when most needed.

April 24. The Tower. 62. Sir Allen Apsley to Nicholas. Mr. Fielding has commended John Harwood for a Purser's place. Sir Allen will take care that the steward under him shall be sufficient, therefore Nicholas is requested to get a warrant for Harwood to be Purser of the St. George.

April 24. Aboard the Delight in Dover Road. 63. Capt. Wm. Cooke to the same. He had received a letter from Sir Hen. Palmer for bringing up the Delight. Paramour are waiting the coming over of Mons. de Blainville, Lord Ambassador, after which he will bring up the ship.

April 25. Whitehall. The same to Capt. Hall, of the expedition. To the same purpose. [Minute, ibid.]

[April 25.] 67. Note of part of a speech made, or intended to be made, in the House of Commons. The speaker alludes to a declaration which had been made of the urgent necessities of the kingdom, and infers that the applications for supply had been prompted by necessity, and not by a desire to stop the consideration of grievances.

April 25. 68. Capt. John Mason to Nicholas. The King of Spain's old confederates of Hamburgh and subjects of Flanders, if deprived of a passage through the Narrow Seas, will, as in Queen Elizabeth's time, make their passage to Spain by the back parts of Scotland and Ireland. Ships stationed about the Isle of Sunda, on the north-west of Ireland, and about the Isles of Scilly, would therefore make as good prizes as those in the Narrow Seas.

April 25. 69. Minute by Nicholas of motions to be made in the Council by the Duke of Buckingham, for ordnance to be lent to colliers, and for a new arrangement in lieu of the 5,000*l.* bond required to be entered into on taking out letters of marque.

April 25. Plympton Maurice. 71. Commissioners at Plymouth to the Council. Reiterate their application for money. Both the soldiers and the country begin to murmur, and will shortly become dangerous. They receive no other news but that of the Turks infesting the coast and carrying away the subjects and their goods, whilst the King's ships lie still in harbour to the charge of the King and shame of the nation. The pitiful lamentation made by wives and children for their husbands, fathers, and brothers is grievous. Inclose,

71. I. Examination of John Rendell and John Ritchie, whose ship the Christian, bound for Newfoundland, had been rifled by the Turks, and nine of her crew taken for slaves.

April 26. 72. Commissioners of the Navy to Nicholas. Request him to consider an above written certificate of Sir Thos. Love in favour of Robert Boynes, and to appoint him to the next vacant carpenter's place.

Vol. XXV.

April 26. 74. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Upon his Grace's reference to them of the petition of Capt. Powlett, they remit the evidence taken by them with reference to the articles exhibited against Timothy Bugby, master of the Timothy. They suggest a further reference to Capt. Pennington and the Commissioners at Plymouth. To prevent such abuses in future, they also suggest the establishment of a Council with a commissary on board every ship.

April 26. 75. Petition of the Eastland Merchants to the "high and mighty Prince, George Duke of Buckingham," praying for a convoy for five ships laden with dyed and dressed cloths, which will be ready to depart for the East country at the beginning of May. Underwritten,

April 28. Dartmouth. 78. Mayor of Dartmouth to the Council. A warlike ship belonging to Sir Edwd. Seymour had brought into Dartmouth an Irish bark from Newhaven to Dundalk. In searching her a priest from Douay was found aboard, who had been committed to Exeter gaol. He gives the name of Edmd. Relly. The Sallee pirates have come into the Channel, and have taken three barks bound for Newfoundland, and probably many others. Within 12 months these barbarians have bereaved the King of many subjects and much impoverished that part of the kingdom.

April 28. 79. Commissioners of the Navy to the Council. Having been directed to see what could be done towards reforming the abuse of the overweight of iron ordnance, they had consulted divers gunfounders, but found John Browne alone willing to assist them. He had succeeded in casting six pieces, which had endured the King's double proof, and yet were lighter than brass ordnance. Recommend that he should receive 200*l.* as a reward.

April 28. 80. Copy of the preceding.

April 28. May 8. 81. Licence of John Francis Archbishop of Patras and Legate from Pope Urban VIII. to John Trumbull [Tromble], priest, to administer

April 28. Note of resolutions of the House of Commons for annexing to the charge against the Duke of Buckingham, a new charge, founded on the application of a plaister and administration of a drink to the late King in his last sickness. [See Vol. xxiii., No. 68.]

[April 28.] 82. Wm. Byng and Edmd. Lisle, Captains of Deal and Walmer Castles, to the Council. Represent the decay of those castles and the encroachments of the sea.

April 28. 83. Sir Allen Apsley to Nicholas. Recommends William Whittingham for Purser of the Anne of London, one of the convoy for the fishermen.

April 28. 84. Commissioners of the Navy to Nicholas. It was no fault of theirs that Sir Hen. Palmer's ships, brought up to refit, were not despatched away again: they had been appointed convoys by the Duke. Other ships suggested to be sent to Sir Henry in their stead. 200*l.* a-piece would make the prizes St. Anne and St. Mary good men-of-war, but these services cannot proceed without money.

April 28. London. 85. A[lexander] Gil to Wm. Pickering. A friendly letter of remonstrance against his not writing. Inquires anxiously respecting the progress of the sickness at Oxford. St. George's Feast was kept yesterday at Whitehall. The Duke, as they say of him, morbo comitiali laborat. Would this business were off or on, for, like Davus, perturbat omnia. Digby [Bristol] is come up, and he has somewhat to say. Allusions to Dr. Prideaux and many other Oxford men.

April 28. 86. The Council to Thos. Trussell. Warrant for the apprehension of Pierce Butler; with a memorandum, endorsed, dated 1626, May 14, and signed by the Lord President of the Council, authorizing the messenger to keep Mr. Pierce Butler in safe custody until further order.

April 29. Dover. 89. Sir Dodmore Cotton to Sec. Conway. In commendation of Capt. Cooke, Commander of the Delight. The officers of that ship report that she is most fit for his Majesty's service. The castles of Deal slightly guarded.

Vol. XXV.

April 29. 90. Sir Wm. Russell to Wm. Burrell. Recommends George Swanley for appointment as Purser to the St. Ann; with a memorandum underwritten by Sir Allen Apsley, that he would procure the appointment for Swanley.

April 29. 91. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Instead of building 6 tartanes to encounter the enemy's sloops and bilander boats, as suggested by the Duke, the Commissioners, considering the scarcity of money, recommend the building of only 2 tartane boats, under the direction of Capt. Gyffard, and that 5 of the prizes be fitted up either to sail or row, which can be done with little charge and completed in a month. Recommend a pinnace for the guard of Jersey, and advise the Duke what ship to appoint to waft the East Country fleet, and also that the St. George should be repaired at Portsmouth instead of being brought about to Chatham. Have taken order to send masts and other supplies for her, as well as for the Reformation.

[April 30.] 92. Information of Thos. Gray and Francis Scarth. The ships bound for Newcastle became bound to one another, by the exchange of sixpence in silver, not to part company until they arrived at Newcastle; but two Dunkirkers having set upon two of the hindermost ships, one Gibbins, master of the Alexander, who was Admiral of the fleet, ran away, whereby those two ships were lost.

April 30. Stokes Bay. 93. Sir Hen. Palmer to Buckingham. He had not heard anything of the ships from France, but a Scottish ship reported that they were ready to sail for England eight days before Tuesday last. He will put to sea. About Weymouth, 5 ships, which he suspects, have been plying off and on these three days. Hears that the Lion had brought a Dunkirker into Plymouth.

April 30. Stokes Bay. 94. The same to Nicholas. A small bark of Middleburgh brought in prize by Capt. Warner, but Sir Henry desires further proof. Hears rumours that Sir Henry Mervin is to be restored to his place, but he disregards these rumours having confidence in the Duke.

[April 30.] 95. Petition of Edward Roberts, master of the True Love, of London, to the Council.—The ship had been for nine months in the King's service, and being now discharged unpaid, the petitioner prays that, although a Flemish bottom, Thos. Gibbs, Alexander Banister, and Allen Penny, her owners, being native Englishmen, may be permitted to furnish her, being a ship of 300 tons, with 18 pieces of ordnance.

[April?] 98. Answers given by Nicholas to a Committee of the House of Commons, respecting his share in the business of lending the Vanguard and other ships to the French. He declines to make a full declaration without leave of his Majesty and the Duke. What he conceals would be much to the Duke's honour. The Captains were not bound to trust to what he said without seeing his warrant. He received a present from the Ambassador when he took his leave and never concealed the same.

[April.] 100. Account of [the Purser of] the Red Lion of various provisions received on board from October 20, 1625, to this time.

[April?] 101. Sir Nicholas Poyntz to the Council. Having by their warrant been sent to the loathsome prison of Newgate, prays that he may have leave to sue out a habeas corpus for his removal back again to the King's Bench.

[April?] 102. Sir John Killigrew to Sec. Conway. Appeals to him to remove Captain Bonython from the command of Pendennis Castle on account of his misconduct, principally of a private and personal nature, against Sir John.

[April?] 103. The King to George Earl of Totness, Master General of the Ordnance. Warrant has been given to the Master of the Office of the Armoury to deliver to Thos. Powell, Keeper of the stores of the Ordnance, all arms in the armoury which either are or may be made serviceable. All such arms as are not serviceable are to be presently delivered out to be repaired.

[April?] 104. The King to the Duke of Buckingham. The expedition of last year through some disorder and miscarriage, as commonly happens in the entrance of great attempts, did not effect that service upon the King of Spain which might have been expected; this year that King's preparations are in an unusual proportion, and not being forced to divide his shipping for the convoy of his treasure, he cannot easily be diverted from assailing us, as well from Portugal as Flanders; wherefore the Duke is directed to make ready with all speed a fleet of 20 King's ships and 100 merchant ships of from 300 tons and upwards. [Draft, in the handwriting of Sec. Coke.]

[April?] 105. Petition of Sir Robert Killigrew, Captain of Pendennis Castle, to the Council of War.—Petitioner has been a suitor for ten years for a supply for the castle and alterations in the fortifications. Obtained 350*l.* from the late Council of War for works long since finished. For 9 years there has not been a piece of ordnance mounted, and at this time there are not above 4 barrels of powder. Prays for repairs, and also that the garrison of 50 men may have their pay, which they have been two years without. "Had they not lived on limpets (a poor kind of shell fish), without bread or any other sustenance," save some small relief from the petitioner, they had all been starved.

[April.] 106. Minute of the petition of Thomas Lord Arundel of Wardour to the King. His object is to buy the remainder out of the Crown of some of his lands, and by the sale thereof to furnish himself "for the action." King James would have granted the petition, as the Lord Keeper can witness.

[April ?] 107. Minute of a suggestion made to [Lord Conway]. The King having written to Sir Wm. Fleetwood, Sir Robert Banaster, Mr. Hampden, and Mr. Crane, respecting the debt due to the Widow Lancaster, they had procured her the payment of 100*l.* Sir Francis Goodwin and others who owe part of the money, and oppose the payment, are now in town. It is suggested that the parties should be sent for and the matter be heard on both sides.

[April ?] 108. Petition of Philip Burlamachi to the Council. In November last, petitioner provided 70,000*l.* for the King of Denmark and Count Mansfeldt, and in payment obtained an assignment of part of the second subsidy money, and also of part of the money to arise out of the prizes sent from Plymouth; of the latter amount, 3,620*l.* has been diverted to other purposes for the King's special use, wherefore he prays for payment out of the prizes adjudged at Dover, and then selling in London.

[April ?] 109. Petition of a person unnamed to Sec. Conway; that he would remember at the Council the business of Jacques Borrell the younger, of Middleburgh, concerning his goods questioned at Dover, that he may once for all receive an end of his suit.

In 1624, on her voyage from Hamburgh to Lisbon, the St. Peter was stayed to carry soldiers to Zealand for Count Mansfeldt, for which there has been no satisfaction; she was afterwards taken by the Turks, and in 1625 set to sea by them with some of her old company aboard; they overcame the Turks and brought the ship into Ireland; she has since been employed for the King, and her people dismissed without recompense; prays that the ship may be restored, and the owners recompensed for their service with Count Mansfeldt.

Warner to clear her in the Admiralty; pray that she may go the voyage, and that Warner may answer for her on his return.

May $\frac{6}{16}$ Amsterdam. 57. The same to Sec. Conway. Has been still fed on with hopes of dealing for a reasonable sum, till now the report of the Duke's troubles, and the discontents of the King with his Lower House of Parliament, come over in such a full stream that it has carried away with it all hope of doing further good there. The French General assures him that the Vanguard and the rest of the English ships never performed any service against the Rochellers; but that at the principal encounter the Admiral of the French forsook the Vanguard and went aboard Mons. Hautayne, from whom the Rochellers received all their damage. The Gunner avows that in all the time of the employment he never used against the Rochellers more than six small pieces of his upper tier. The French Captains are ashore to hasten their men, whom, if the wind be fair, Sir Henry hopes to transport on the morrow.

May 17. The Savoy. 13. Geo. Earl of Totness to the same. Has thought fit to return the inclosed letter to his Grace, being of a kind not warrantable, and therefore subject to ill construction, and prejudicial both to the Duke and the Earl. If Capt. Douglas importunes his Grace, he should be left to petition the Council; and if they grant their warrant, both the Duke and the Earl should be free from exception, whereof, as things stand, the Duke cannot be too cautious. Incloses, 1626. VOL. XXVII.

May 20. London. 36. Gabriel Browne to [a priest in Spain]. Comments on information that the Infanta had reached Barcelona, on her way to Genoa, to marry the son of the Emperor. Miserable case of the English Catholics, whose persecution is attributed to Buckingham's desire to plague "the Spanish humour." The Duke's unpopularity with the House of Commons, who the other day seemed to carry him on their shoulders in triumph. The whole island is so sharpened against him that even ridiculous toys inflame them with offence. The multitude were bitterly disgusted because, being sickly, he suffered himself to be carried in a covered chair upon his servants' shoulders from Whitehall to Denmark House; and the Commons House took it ill, because at a Committee he was a little more gaillard, trim and wantonly great, "after the French fubb and garb," than stands with the natural gravity of the noble English. Lord Bristol's accusation against the Duke, and the publication in English of the work of a kind of mad Scottish poet and physician, called George Eglesham, accusing the Duke of having poisoned the late King and various other persons. The writer deems the public discord the work of a Spanish faction. The King is a most sweet and gentle Prince, saving as he is misled by "that great man." The citizens, having regilded their Cross, certain zealous persons were stirred up by the sermons of a Calvinistical sot in Aldermanbury, to deface our Saviour's picture. A king-fisher caught in the House of Commons. [Copy of a letter "intercepted at the ports."]

May 24. 52. The King to the Council. His Majesty had received with singular contentment the relation of the good effect of the Low Country officers distributed into the counties to instruct the Trained Bands; and he directed the Council to thank the Lord Lieuts. in his name for their care in that service, charging them also to give order for continual exercises on holydays, and to do all in their power to bring the country to affect the exercise of arms, and to make that the subject of their recreations. If they desired to keep these officers still with them, the King would be pleased at their doing so; and now that the foot were put in a hopeful way, no less care should be taken of the horse, which was specially to be urged upon the Lord Lieuts. as a notable expression of their duty, account being required of all defaulters. The counties were also to be invited to form a store of arms, which might serve to arm such as were not of the trained numbers in times of necessity.

In accordance with a warrant and instructions dated the 4th inst., they have considered the true way of measuring ships. State the way of measuring formerly in use, and, after defining what is properly to be regarded as the hold of a vessel, suggest the following rule:—"Take the depth of the ship, from the greatest breadth, to the ceiling; at half that depth, measure the breadth within boards; this mean breadth multiplied by the whole depth, and the product by the length of the keel, produceth a solid number, which, being divided by 65, shall give the content of the vessel in tons." [Copy.]

The Hamburghers had stayed their fleet intended for Spain, but design to send out three ships, bound, as they say, to Leghorn, and to forward the remainder of the goods in small craft to French ports. The English and Hollanders stay all ships; and, if they find any of these goods, intend to bring them home for further order. June 7. Plymouth. 33. Capt. Wm. Cary to Buckingham. Had been upon the coast as far as Scilly, and found no Dunkirkers, Turks, or pirates. Met with ten French ships, laden with corn from Waterford to Calais; suspecting these goods were intended for Dunkirk, he had brought the ships into Plymouth, and requested instructions. The Council ordered the ship to be restored to the owners [see 1626, May 3, Vol. xxvi. No. 26], but the King's officers refused to deliver her without the Duke's warrant, which was therefore prayed for.

June 8. 45. The same to the same. Recommend that the ships appointed to convoy the colliers, but which are lying idle in the river for want of money to set them forth, should be sent into the Narrow Seas, so that the ships now there might be withdrawn and undergo necessary repair.

The plague is so far spread that all commerce has ceased, the town is destitute of its best inhabitants, and the infection has spread into all the parishes where the soldiers are billeted. These parishes pray them to remove the soldiers, and parishes remote desire that they may not be commanded to receive men from infected places. The Commissioners entreat the Council to remove the soldiers from those parts; and urge upon them the consideration of the former complaints of the needy country, the naked soldier, and the hopeful officers. Want of money, being as bad as famine, joined with the plague, doth press all sorts of men amongst them, and what effects such desperate causes may produce, the Council may conjecture.

The Pressmaster should be instructed not to make up the number out of such as are good for nothing but to eat. All the ships at Portsmouth want half their men. July 16. Dover Castle. 89. The same to [Buckingham]. Neither the King nor he will be at peace until they send "those goods" from Portsmouth to Dover. Nothing will content the mariners but the money the goods are appraised at, which is 9,600*l.*, then the King will have what can be made above that. [August 12?] 97. Minutes, by Nicholas, of motions to be made by the Duke of Buckingham at a meeting of the Council of War:—That 2,000*l.* of money received for prize goods at Dover be allowed for repair of the three castles in the Downs, the forts at Dover, and Sandgate Castle; for increase of pay for the sea-captains that went to Cadiz, the ordinary allowance being but 2*s.* 6*d.* per diem; those who went to Algiers were allowed 10*s.* per diem for King's ships, and 6*s.* 8*d.* for merchants; also, for allowance to the surgeons in the fleet now fitting out, according to their petition [see 1625, August 11, No. 81. On the back of the same paper are Nicholas's notes of the proceedings of the Council of War, in which several of the above matters and various others were determined.]

August 12. 98. Duke of Buckingham's coachman, grooms, sumptermen, and farrier to the Duke. Since Lady Day, 1625, they have not received any wages, boardwages, or layings out. They are out of all means and credit, and not having had either clothes or liveries are now "worn out of shift, and not in fit case" to do the Duke any service; this being far from his Grace's good inclination, they pray him to take some such special course as that they may pay their debts.

August 13. The Downs. 99. Capt. Geo. Alleyne to Buckingham. That morning they landed the French Bishop and all the ladies in Calais. The English in Calais were all detained. Traffic between Calais and Spain. If victualled they might do good service. If he had not bought victuals with his own money, he could not have gone over to Calais with "these French."

Petition of Citizens of Bristol to the Council:—Their two-third parts of the charge of setting forth two ships to sea will amount to 1,600*l.*, which is more than they can bear, considering the recent loss of fifty ships taken and cast away, and the stoppage of trade with Spain. They pray that the counties of Somerset and Gloucester may bear more than the one third laid upon them, and that Worcester, Shrewsbury, Tewkesbury, and Cardiff may contribute.

August 15. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Lord Treasurer Marlborough and Sir Richd. Weston, Chancellor of the Exchequer. To find out particulars for raising 5,000*l.*, to be paid to Sir Robert Douglas on surrender of his pensions. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 254.]

The King's pleasure was desired as to whether they should not be intercepted.

August 15. Lewes. 109. Justices of Sussex to the Council. Having moved the people to make a voluntary gift to the King, they generally answered that their wants and poverty were such, that they were not willing to give as required, but that in a Parliamentary course they would strain themselves beyond their abilities. Some have expressed more forwardness, but not to an amount exceeding in the whole 120*l.*

August 17. 126. The same to the same. Had sent a certificate of the Musters to the Council, and had taken upon his own credit to supply the deficiencies of co. Nottingham. Will do his uttermost to procure a benevolence from the county, but thinks they will be governed by ill precedents and factions, the dregs of the last Parliament.

August 17. Belvoir. 127. Francis Earl of Rutland to Sec. Conway. Having been charged to levy money in that county, towards furnishing a ship at Boston, he had consulted divers gentlemen thereon. Deemed these amounts too small to render it necessary to appoint a collector. Annexed.

131. I. Certificate of the answers returned by the several hundreds. The general answer was that they denied to give any thing unless by way of Parliament.

17. 1. Sir Martin Stuteville, and nine others, Gentlemen of Suffolk, to the Earl of Suffolk. The country assembled at Bury respecting the voluntary gift, answered the Earl with loud cries from the inhabitants near the sea coasts, that their ships were taken and fired in their havens before their faces, insomuch that they durst not look out of their ports. The gentlemen beg the Earl to take some course for redress. 1626, Aug. 15. [Copy.]

August 24. Portsmouth. 25. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Requests an order to transfer the sailors of the Garland to his own ship and squadron. Lord Denbigh's squadron was victualled and manned, and four ships of his squadron would be ready in 24 hours, if his sails and other provisions were sent from London. As soon as he can get a ship or two ready he will send them to the Wight, where there is a Dunkirk man-of-war doing spoil. The promised month's pay ought to be sent down, without it he should hardly get the sailors to weigh anchor.

Miserable calamity under which the country groans in having an army of soldiers sick and naked billeted upon them for 31 weeks, without supply of money or clothes. August 24. Portsmouth. 28. Capt. Richd. Gyffard to Nicholas. At least 1,000 men were wanted for the fleet. Seamen escape to the Isle of Wight, where they keep themselves in the day time in woods, and at night in secret places. The men should have reasonable content, and not be left to groan in extremities through want of necessaries, and should be severely punished for breach of discipline. Ships should be stationed at St Helens. Ships daily come there, whether Dunkirkers, Spaniards, or spies, and in a night may come in and fire the fleet.

Gyffard had recommended to him some of his designs that he might urge them upon the Duke; that of three millions is strongly pressed upon the Duke for adoption.

August 29. 53. Wm. Earl of Denbigh to [Buckingham]. Had gone out of Portsmouth to Stokes Bay with the Lion, Convertive, Golden Cock, and Mary Rose. August. 76. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Devon to Francis Lord Russell. Return a certificate of persons who may, with least inconvenience, lend the sums set against their names. The business will be irksome to the country as it has been unpleasing to the writers. They hope their diligence may not be a means to invite his Majesty to an often recourse to that kind of supply, but rather to those which for their antiquity and indifferency are more pleasing to his subjects.

[August ?] 87. Opinion of Lord Treasurer Marlborough, the Duke of Buckingham, the Earl of Carlisle, and Lord Conway, appointed by the King to consult respecting the "Admarantascoe" pursued in France. They were of opinion that the project of that work was not only to master their own towns in possession of those of the Reformed religion, but also that it looked to the mastership of the Narrow Seas, which his Majesty's Crown had enjoyed for many ages, and which it was requisite for the King to take care of without delay. They suggest that Mr. Edward Clarke should be sent on a mission to France to keep up the hopes of the Reformed party. [Copy.]

Sept. 1. Norwich. 1. Mayor, and others, of Norwich to the Council. Norwich having been called upon to bear a third part of the charge of two ships to be set forth at Yarmouth, answer was made that, although in the time of their prosperity they had been called upon to bear a tenth or twelfth part of such charges, they were then so distressed as to be unable to maintain their poor. Sept. 2. Oakham. 10. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Rutland to the Council. The county very willing to tender their best assistance, some offering two subsidies, some one, some one and a half; but their hope is, that, if other counties do not give at all, they may not be made a singular precedent.

Sept. 3. Whitehall. 11. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Send estimate for five ships to be sent to the Elbe. Suggest the propriety of sending a force to the Sound to stop traffic between Lubeck and Spain. The Assurance, a fit ship for that purpose, and the City might be dealt with to send six colliers to attend her. Inclosed,

Sept. 4. 17. Capt. John Hagthorpe to Nicholas. Having no answers to his letters to the Commissioners and the Duke, he intends to convey the Hull men again for the Texel. They have seven ships ready to go. Small Dunkirkers on the coast do some harm, and for want of beer he cannot go to seek them. The bearer, Mr. Grant, kinsman of Lord Montagu, who had been Hagthorpe's Lieutenant, will explain.

Sept. 4. Durham. 18. John Richardson to Sec. Coke. Conferring with Sir Henry Anderson on the Commission of Inquiry for Recusants' Lands, and showing him the schedule of 1,000 convicted recusants in that county, he conceived that one Anthony Berrie, from Exeter, who practised physic at Jarrow, was a person whom Sec. Coke had inquired after. Writs of supersedeas out of the Exchequer hinder the King's profits, and no one attends to the King's prerogative for fear of the great Bishop.

Sept. 4. Whitehall. 19. Order of Council, approving a proposal of the Lord Admiral for increasing the allowance to mariners and seamen, by raising the medium from 14*s.* to 20*s.* per month.

Sept. 5. Aboard the Vanguard in Portsmouth Harbour. 26. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Had written several letters, but had received none. The wants of the fleet breed great disorder; there are no "hammackers" to lodge the people in, nor cans nor platters for them to eat or drink out of. If they go not soon away, the West India fleet and all others will be at home. Lord Denbigh is riding before Yarmouth in the Isle of Wight, having left two of his squadron at Portsmouth to bring his provisions that are to come from London after him. The Lord General's squadron is most behind hand, but they say they shall have all aboard by the end of the week. The Vanguard ran much to ruin whilst in the service of the French. Sept. 5[?]. 31. Richd. Wyan to Nicholas. The ships on shore at Bramston in Holderness are no wreck, because their companies came ashore. No man can have any right in the suspected Dunkirker but the King or the Duke.

Sept. [6?]. 34. James Earl of Carlisle to Sec. Conway. News received of the unhappy overthrow of the King of Denmark. If the loss be only of men, and not of the passages of rivers or other places of importance, it is not irreparable, and the King will find himself so far engaged in honour that he cannot give ear to any treaty of composition, which was what we most feared.

Sept. 7. 36. Sir John Danvers to Christopher Collard and Richard Stiles and to the Surveyors of the Highways of St. Martins-in-the-Fields. Is commanded by the Earl of Dorset to express his just dislike that nothing is done towards the repair of the highway between the West Gate of St. James Park and the stone bridge on the edge of Chelsea fields. If a satisfactory account be not given before 8 o'clock the next morning, the Earl will conceive it a continued contempt, which he will proceed to censure, and punish as in his wisdom shall seem meet.

Sept. 7. Portland Road. 38. Wm. Earl of Denbigh to Buckingham [?]. On Augus t28, he put out with the Lion and four other ships; Sept. 1, passed the Needles. Has been driven into Portland Road. Has taken all the care he could to get to the Land's End, and will use his utmost endeavour to perform the same.

1626. VOL. XXXV.

Sept. 7. Hinton. 39. John Poulett to Sec. Conway. Had already advertised Lord Conway that Mons. de Soubise had sent away his minister and some of his company, and was packing up his carriages to send them to London. Desires to know whether he is to wait on Mons. de Soubise to London. Soubise had lived in Poulett's house almost a year, and had been as well treated as he could make him; is ready to obey further commands.

Sept. 7. Alresford. 40. Dep. Lieuts. of co. Southampton to the Council. Having been ordered to provide for the billeting of 1,000 men, who are to come out of Devon and Cornwall, they represent that the case of this country is poor and miserable, and that although the Council have authorized them to rate and levy the necessary money, they have no course to levy money in that country but by help of law, and could not levy a sufficient sum. Beg a warrant to pay the charge of soldiers passing through the county.

Sept. 7. 41. Demand by Sir Wm. Russell of money to pay ships' companies at Portsmouth, 6,122*l.* 17*s.*; at Bristol, 4,563*l.* 10*s.*; at Chatham, 1,938*l.*; and in the Thames, 909*l.*

Pearson, Master, and 50 poor mariners, of the William and Thomas, of London, to the Council:—The Council having ordered that the petitioners should receive out of certain prize goods at Portsmouth, one third of 2,000*l.*, deducting 212*l.* "upon the merchants' allegation;" petitioners show that there is no pretence for making that deduction, and pray that they may receive their full third.

Sept. 8. Cirencester. 43. Justices of co. Gloucester to the Council. Having been directed to levy from the county a fourth part of the charge of two ships to be furnished by the city of Bristol, they assign reasons why such demand is unreasonable, and pray that it may be withdrawn.

Sept. 8. 44. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. They lately gave information of a loss of 4,000*l.* per month, for want of 14,000*l.* to discharge certain ships; they now signify that 6,000*l.* will be wanted to pay off the ships returning from the Elbe. If these sums are not provided, the wants of the seamen will force them to mutinous courses; those in the river are so unruly already that the Commissioners cannot meet without clamour and danger, and threatening to break down the doors upon them. The Duke had moved the Lords, that the 14,000*l.* might be paid out of the King's plate appointed to be sold or coined, but the Treasurer has not yet received any of it. The Commissioners also point out their inability to keep up the King's stores, and that 30,000*l.* will be wanted in December to discharge the seamen of the fleet at Portsmouth. The ships which contain provisions for that fleet have been detained by weather, but are now in the Downs.

[Sept. 8.] 45. Petition of Sir Henry Guilford and Henry Peck to the Council:—Winchelsea has taxed the petitioners' lands lying within the liberty of that town, towards the charge of ships to be sent forth for the King's service from the Cinque Ports; this being contrary to the laws of the Corporation, and also to orders of the Council, that none should be charged but as they formerly have been, they pray that the case may be heard at their Lordships' Board.

Sept. 8. Worcester. 46. Justices of co. Worcester to the Council. They endeavoured to have procured a free gift to the King, but could prevail only with some few. The generality declared that they were ready for his Majesty's service as far as their lives, but in regard they had been used to supply by subsidies or fifteens granted in Parliament, they were unwilling to give in another way. The total of those who yielded to give comes not to 20*l.*

Sept. 8. Dover. 47. Richd. Hippisley to Nicholas. Had brought into Dover two Dutch ships forsaken by their crews, in fear that he was a Dunkirker. He detains the ships until he has some compensation.

[Sept. 8.] 48. Petition of Edward Emerson to the Council:—Being bound for the debts of Thos. Emerson, deceased, petitioner obtained a protection, and paid off 4,000*l.*, but being disabled by losses during the plague year, and especially by the death of twelve of his servants as a brewer, his creditors made him a bankrupt; notwithstanding which, Alderman Cambell procured a Council warrant against him, under which he has been twelve or thirteen days in custody; prays that he may be dismissed, not being able to pay the Messenger's charges.

Peter Hone, to the Council of War:—Sets forth his sufferings on the return voyage from Cadiz, and his coming to London with consent of his Colonel, on the business of his Captain, and to solicit payment for himself; had not been able to procure one penny, and now the Treasurer at Plymouth refuses to give him the same allowance as other Ensigns; prays for the charitable consideration of the Council.

bring them into the Tower, seeing his life might be hazarded if they were lost; 4, He cannot obtain legal advice in the vacation; 5, Any matter with which he is charged is bailable, and the King need not doubt his promise to make his appearance next term, since he returned out of Spain with 40,000*l.* of the King's jewels; 6. It is contrary to law that a man should be imprisoned without examination; and 7, Personal displeasure, either of the late King, or of the present King when Prince, or founded on any thing the Earl said in the late Parliament, is not sufficient cause for his committal without examination.

[Sept. ?] 118. Petition of Wm. Ashwell and John Helt, on behalf of John Martins, master of the Fortune, and the owners of the same ship, to the Council:—The Fortune, coming from "Portoport" to London, was fraudulently seized by certain Welshmen and carried to Appledore, where they published that they had got a prize; the transaction coming to the hearing of the Lords, they ordered the goods to be sold and the captors to be rewarded; before this, the matter having been examined in the Admiralty, Sir John Eliot, as Vice Admiral, granted warrant for the restoration of the ship, but the order of the Lords coming to the knowledge of the surprizers, they contemned the warrant, and violently held the ship; pray the Lords to revoke their order and restore the ship.

1626. VOL. XXXVII.

Oct. 1. Dover Castle. 3. Sir John Hippisley to [Nicholas]. Account of what had been taken from the French ship; the complaint of the Frenchmen is lamentable; amongst other things they have lost all their clothes. Oct. 1. Hinton. 5. John Poulett to Buckingham. Neither the ill examples of other counties, nor the ill spirits put into men by persons not well affected, hindered his Majesty's subjects in that county [Somerset] from expressing their dutiful affections in a free gift. In all places they gave, and many in good proportion. Sir Edward Rodney, Sir John Stawell, and Dr. Barlow, Dean of Wells, have employed themselves heartily in the service, and have not escaped without envy, reproaches, and the raking of ill tongues. Rumours that Sir Robert Phillips, Hugh Pyne, and John Symes should be restored to the Commission of the Peace. On the news of the defeat of the King of Denmark the country expected a Parliament, and some popular men are already looking after places.

Oct. 2. Saltram. 6. Sir James Bagg to Nicholas. Requests instructions what to do with the three French ships and the other prizes. Capt. Barnard Burley has greatly abused his press warrant from Lord Willoughby; instead of reading Antony's and Prynne's Commission, he showed them pistols to their breast. Some person in the Admiralty has, as he fears, given Eliot a copy of the Commission. Sir Edwd. Seymour, Sir Wm. Strode, Sir Barnard Grenville, and John Mohun would be ready to attend as Commissioners, but there is no one to act as Solicitor. Is afraid that Kift juggles and plays the knave. The fleet is in Torbay, and is greatly in want of cordage and sails. Incloses,

The Commissioners had signified the Duke's command that the Entrance should be in the Downs on Thursday or Friday next, and had directed the men to be informed that the Lord Admiral promised that their pay should be sent into the Downs within eight or ten days. The prize ship arrived that morning. Had put two men aboard to prevent embezzlement, and wished Nicholas to take the examinations of the crew. At Boston they misunderstood the embargo, and would not suffer ships to come to London.

Oct 4. The Savoy. 25. George Earl of Totness to Sir Thos. Roe. Accounts for his long silence. At the funeral of King James he was assaulted with a dead palsy ; for remedy he went to the Bath, but returned weaker than he went ; then he retired to Nonsuch, and never came to Court or Council until the coronation. All the summer he has been in the country, where he has found good by air and exercise. All that remains of his disease is an imperfection of speech. Hopes that Roe's residence at Constantinople will not be over long.

Oct. 5. Burton Constable. 27. Henry Viscount Dunbar to Buckingham. Three ships had run ashore at Barmston, one of which was supposed to be a Dunkirk man-of-war. money lent to her Majesty by Sir Horatio Pallavicino. Afterthe death of Sir Horatio, and in the reign of King James, repayment of part of the money was claimed by Fabricio Pallavicino, brother of Sir Horatio, and such satisfaction was then given as has quieted the business ever since ; but now Toby Pallavicino, son of Sir Horatio, having lately obtained administration, lays claim to 14,000*l.* of the said debt, and threatens to arrest goods of London merchants found in foreign parts. The petitioners pray that the City may be discharged, and the merchants be freed from fear of arrest of their goods.

Two of the latter stated that it was commonly said in Wapping, Ratcliffe, and Limehouse, that if it were done by Parliament they would pay anything, even 5, 6, or 10 subsidies, but by this course they would not do anything.

Oct. 20. 23. The King to Commissioners for the Loan. By former instructions the King required that all refractory persons should be bound over to appear at the Council table, but his Majesty's intention was not to have the Board troubled with every ordinary person, but only with those whom the Commissioners should think fit; for the rest who refuse to assist with their purses, it is the King's pleasure that they should do so with their persons, and to that end they should be bound to appear in the Military Yard, near St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, to be enrolled amongst soldiers to be employed for the King's service.

The City stands to appoint their own commanders in their ships, which with much ado is agreed to, but my Lord says he will appoint a General, but this they do not agree to, so their ships lie still. The intercepted letters will apprise the Lords what these people think of their government. Coke, in which were 200*l.* in gold, 120*l.* in plate, all her bonds and writings, and some controversial books belonging to her late husband; Mr. Sec. had been informed that petitioner was a convicted recusant, but that appears by certificates of the Clerk of the Estreats and others not to be the case; prays that her goods and writings may be redelivered to her.

What Sir John Eliot will do with her he knows not; he thinks, discharge her, as he did the other ship, therefore he has sent up a messenger to acquaint the Duke. Thinks the ship is the King's. [Probably the letter inclosed is the one calendared under date of 1626, Oct. 25., Vol. xxxviii, No. 52, although that is addressed to "John Drake."]

Oct. 88. Justices of co. York to the Council. The inhabitants within the liberties of Langbargh, in the North Riding, answered the application for a voluntary gift, that they are poor farmers at racked rents, their landlords not dwelling amongst them, whereby the country is disappointed of the use of the money which issueth out of it. The place is a very straight and narrow part of the country, hemmed in by the sea on the one side, and a great vast and waste moor on the other. For two years past the inhabitants have been charged with the continuous watch of the beacons and training of soldiers; and the sea, which formerly brought them profit, is now so haunted with pirates that no ships dare pass nor fishermen hardly go to sea.

He has two projects to suggest for raising benefit to the King; the lesser whereof he would reveal on reasonable conditions. The ports were suitors for the removal of the soldiers into the county, for which they had the Council's order, but it was altered by the Lord Chamberlain, being Lord Lieut. They will not be able to keep the soldiers longer than that week without money. News that Count Mansfeldt has given the Emperor a great overthrow, and that Tilly has gone to his relief. things concerning him. Wishes his tongue were tied so that he were not suffered to plead in the King's courts, which were a punishment to him, who makes his living by his tongue, no less grievous than hanging.

Nov. 27. 31. Certificate that John Brooke was an able gunner and an ancient seaman.

Nov. 27. Portsmouth. 32. Capt. Sir John Watts to Buckingham. In four days after the Lion is careened she will be ready for her victuals, but they cannot be taken in until the beer be received, so that they may lay their ground tier. But beer cannot be brewed nor carpenters be paid without money.

Nov. 27. Portsmouth. 33. The same to Nicholas. Prays him to procure warrants and money for the purposes mentioned in the last letter. Will see the end of this service, but it will discourage him if he be not immediately supplied with victuals and necessaries. Has sent up his eldest son to attend to the business, and procure the necessary warrants and instructions. Wishes his son to be his Lieutenant.

Nov. 27. 34. Capt. Richard Gyffard to the same. Sends a proposal, entitled "A main and chief principle for the safety and honour of England, thorough which, and the good government and employment thereof, the soaring wings of the proud Spaniard may soon be clipt, the Dunkirks suppressed from doing any more hurt in his Majesty's seas, and all other ungrateful, unconstant, and lukewarm friends so curbed, as that his Majesty shall be feared and honoured of all, and not constrained to yield unto any dishonourable conditions, or to suffer his subjects to be daily wronged, as now they are in all places."

Nov. 28. Gravesend. 35. Capt. Thos. Philpot and twelve others, captains of ships furnished by the City of London, to Gabriel Marsh, Marshal of the Admiralty. Contrary winds had up to that time prevented their obeying the orders of the Lord Admiral, with all speed to put to sea towards Portsmouth. They had not been able to proceed farther than to Gravesend.

Nov. 28. Dover Castle. 36. Sir John Hippisley to the Council. In answer to a petition of John Adrianson and others against himself and his brother Richard Hippisley. [See 1626, Oct. 21, No. 31.]

Nov. 28. Westminster. 38. The King to Edward Earl of Dorset, Dudley Lord Carleton, Sir John Suckling, Sec. Coke, Sir Julius Cæsar, Master of the Rolls, Sir Henry Marten, and Dr. Thos. Ryves, King's Advocate. Commission authorising them to consider what accidents may fall out at sea between the King's subjects and strangers, and thereout to collect and set down such advices and directions as may tend to the preservation of peace and amity between the King, his subjects, and allies, the prevention of all abuses, and the maintenance of common justice.

Warrant directing him to summon the Commissioners for the Loan for that county to meet at Reading, on the 12th of December next, at 8 in the morning. [Copy. Letters in the margin intimate who attended. Exclusive of certain high dignitaries, members of the Commission ex officio, none of whom attended, there were named in the Commission thirty-five other Commissioners, of whom ten attended, twenty-two were absent, two were dead, and one is queried.]

[Nov. 28.] 40. The King to [Sir Thos. Richardson]. The Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas has used to appoint a clerk of the Treasury, anciently called the Clerk of Hell, for keeping the records of that Court. It is the King's pleasure that as soon as Sir Thos. had the Chief Justiceship he would admit Edward Nicholas to the said clerkship. [Draft.]

Nov. [28.] 41. Account of the just fees of the office of the Treasury, and to the Clerk of the same [in the Court of Common Pleas].

[Nov. 28.] 42. Extracts from the patent rolls of appointments by the King to the office of Keeper of the Rolls and Writs of the Court of Common Pleas.

Nov. 29. Whitehall. 43. The Council to Buckingham. To cause one company of the Trained Bands of that division of co. Middlesex next "Clarkton Well," to muster, at 8 o'clock on the morrow morning, at Woods Close, to attend such service as should be enjoined them.

Nov. 29. 44. Acknowledgment by Sir Nicholas Carew, that Meleah Hare, of Mitcham, widow, had paid 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* towards the loan.

Nov. 29. Portsmouth. 45. Capt. Sir John Watts to Buckingham. The fleet had sailed from Stokes Bay for the Downs with a favourable wind. His own ships had also gone out into the Channel for three days, all they could stay. Had redelivered victuals only to the Swiftsure, but if the ships for the Downs should be driven back, there would be great confusion. Urges his previous applications for clothes, money, and other things.

Nov. 29. Westminster. Pardon to Thos. Price of the punishment of burning in the hand, for killing William Evered. [Coll. Sign Man., Car. I., Vol. ii. No. 20].

Nov. 30. Whitehall. 46. The King to Buckingham. Warrant to grant licence to nine boats of Dieppe to fish at the Zowe, on the coast of England, for the service and provision of the French King. The licences to be in the form heretofore granted by Lord Zouch.

1626. Vol. XL.

Nov. 30. 48. Sir Henry Palmer to [Nicholas]. As the necessity of the times will not yet permit his ship to be fitted for the sea, he requests that his appointment may be passed by patent from the Admiralty, so that he may not be ruined by being out of entertainment whilst his ship is fitting out.

Petition of Bailiffs and Burgesses of Bridport to the Council:—Have subscribed to the loan because they desired to express their obedience to his Majesty, but represent the destitution to which their town has been reduced by a twenty weeks visitation of the plague, and pray that they may be excused the present payment of the amount subscribed. Annexed,

57. I. Justices of co. Dorset to the Council. Certificate that from the 29th August last until the end of December, Bridport was much afflicted with the plague, and reduced to great distress and poverty.

[Nov.?] 58. Notes, perhaps sent by Sir Edward Hawley, to Buckingham, [see 1626, Nov. 27, No. 30,] of the offences charged against Hugh Pyne, of co. Somerset, counsellor-at-law. [They are principally disloyal speeches, with reference to the loan and Muster of the Trained Bands.]

[See 1626, Nov. 9, No. 42.] They report against compelling inn-holders to be members of the Company, but in favour of giving the Company power to make ordinances for the better government of their trade.

[Nov.?] 68. Sec. Conway to ——. The King gave Sec. Conway leave to put himself into Dr. Mayerne's hands, and he has already entered into physic. He is an earnest suitor to his Lordship, that he will be pleased in all humbleness to excuse Conway to his gracious Master, if it be possible that he should be missed. His sickness is not so grievous to him as his absence from his duty.

[Nov.?] 69. Suggestions as to the best mode of employing the ships furnished by the City and coast towns.

[Nov.?] 70. Names suggested to Sec. Coke for Commissioners for French goods.

VOL. XL.

Dec. 1. From aboard the Globe in Tilbury Hope. 2. Capt. Thos. Philpot to Nicholas. Uncertainty of the merchants whom he was to convoy to Hamburgh. Has carried his ship down ahead of the fleet, and charged the captains of the other ships to put to sea. They say they cannot put over the flats until Tuesday. If the Duke will clear him of the merchants he will stand out through the King's Channel rather than bring scandal on the service by doing nothing. The merchants had put aboard his ship twenty chests of quicksilver. They ought to be summoned to come to some resolution. Abuse of press-warrants by fellows who, being puffed up with an opinion that they have power to bind and loose, hold it a glory to tyrannize over the King's poor subjects. Had supplied his ship with volunteers.

Dec. 1. Whitehall. 3. Sir Benjamin Rudyerd to Sir Francis Nethersole. The Duke was declared Ambassador Extraordinary into France, and Sir Edward Barrett goes to remain there. Lords Essex, Lincoln, Warwick, Clare, Bolingbroke, Say, and Philip Stanhope had refused to lend the King money. Fifteen or sixteen Lords joining in this recusancy, and the Judges denying to subscribe, would give a great blow to the design. Serjt. Richardson was Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and it was reported that he was to marry Lady Ashburnham. The sailors had come in tumultuous manner to demand their pay. The Queen is providing a masque against Christmas.

[Dec. 1.] 4. Complaint of Capt. Richard Gyffard and Roger Gyffard against the States of Holland, for not giving them compensation for the plunder of their ship the Fortune. [See 1626, Jan., Nos. 118 and 119.]

Begs for order to brew beer; they have only beer for eight days. Also, for some relief for the common seamen.

Dec. 2. Portsmouth. 12. The same to Nicholas. Solicits him to procure the order for victuals, beer, and seaman's pay, mentioned in the previous letter.

Dec. 2. Portsmouth. 13. The same to Buckingham. The St. Lawrence, a French ship, has been brought in by Capts. Butler and Jewell. Capt. Skipworth, [in the Sarah Bonaventure], and Capt. Burley, in the Convertive, arrived that day. All these ships were without provisions. Desires instructions whether he may supply them out of the King's storehouse. His three ships had returned from the Channel, the weather being very foul. He should victual them for ten days and send them out again.

Dec. 2. Portsmouth. 14. The same to Nicholas. Repeats the information given above. Capt. Towerson, lately appointed Vice Admiral to Lord Conway, has charge of the ship brought in by Capts. Butler and Jewell. Begs that his wants may be attended to.

Dec. 4. Aboard the Bonaventure [at Portsmouth.] 18. Capt. Wm. Hals to Sec. Coke. Has made stay of a Hamburgher, laden with salt, which he imagines to have been bound for Dunkirk. Prays further orders.

Dec. 4. Plymouth. 19. Mayor of Plymouth to the Council. A ship of St. Lucar, bound for Newhaven in France, had been driven into Plymouth. Incloses examination of Jacques Morris, a passenger, respecting the putting to sea of thirty-seven Spanish ships, and the arrival of the Plate fleet at Cadiz. Another passenger was Edward Bambur, a priest, who gave the name of Leonard Helmes. Incloses,

Dec. 6. Portsmouth. 35. Capt. Sir John Watts to Buckingham. Distress of the fleet for want of victuals. The carpenters are earnest for their pay, and the common seamen grow insolent. Learning there were two ships at St. Helen's, he ordered the Mary Magdalen and the Lion, of Newcastle, to go out to them. The men of the former mutinied, and would neither cross their yards nor weigh their anchors. Has three of the principal mutineers in prison, and intends to punish them severely. Many of the men have run away. Having written to Poole and Weymouth, the Mayor of the former place sent him back four men, from the latter he has no return.

Dec. 6. Portsmouth. 36. The same to Nicholas. Repeats the information contained in the preceding letter. Prolongs the drink of the men with water and wine beverage, but they much repine, and he can proceed no further without money or materials.

Dec. 6. Whitehall. 37. Order of Council:—The King having referred to them the complaints of one Bringer against the glass patent granted to Sir Robert Mansell, it is ordered that the same shall stand. Their Lordships think it to be of dangerous consequence, and far trenching upon the prerogative, that patents granted on just grounds and of long continuance should be referred to the strict trial of the common law, wherefore, they order that all proceedings at law be stayed, and that Bringer do not presume further to trouble his Majesty on pain of punishment.

Dec. 6. Dartmouth. 38. Sir John Drake to Nicholas. Apprises him of a French ship from St. Lucar very richly laden being driven into Plymouth; also of two other prizes, a French ship brought by Capt. Spicer and a Dutchman.

Dec. 7. Dover Castle. 42. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Shall want "for the service" 6 or 7 ships of good lading; if they will swim in the sea it is no matter how old they be nor how torn. Victualling the King's ships would be undertaken at Dover, a halfpenny a man better cheap than it is, if they may use the King's storehouse and be paid out of the Custom-house there.

Dec. 7. Whitehall. 43. Wm. Chesterman to Sec. Conway. On arrival of a letter from Mr. Hawkins, the King commanded the French Committee to attend him. No resolution was come to, but the Committee has met again, and the Duke's journey is hastened. His instructions have been approved by the King and the Lords.

Dec. 7. Bewdley. 44. Wm. Earl of Northampton to the same. Suggests that if the saltpetre men that worked in that county [Worcester] might make their saltpetre into powder there, it would be a great ease to the country, and a ready way to procure a supply of powder for the public defence. If this be agreed to directions should be sent to Wm. Richardson, who had the patent for those counties.

Dec. 7. 49. Commissioners of the Navy to Buckingham. Ships from the fleet have arrived in the Downs; the King's ships being victualled for only 14 days, and the merchant ships without any victual at all. Recommend that they should all be brought round to Chatham, and money or provisions be sent there. If they be not provided for, the sailors will commit outrages and trouble the Lords in multitudes, being about 3,000 men.

Dec. 8. Whitehall. 50. Order of Council, founded upon the information contained in the above letter from the Commissioners of the Navy:—The Commissioners are to report the sum required on this occasion, and the Lord Treasurer is prayed to provide the same; as money is ready for any one ship it is to be paid off at Cloth Workers' Hall. The Lord Admiral offered that the goods in the Blue Dove, valued at 60,000 ducats, which belonged to him as pirates' goods, should be applied to this purpose, the amount being repaid out of the loan, which was accepted. [Copy.]

Dec. 8. Dover Castle. 51. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. The French Ambassador departed from Dover that morning in a small bark; the pinnace could not land him where he wished. Sends account of the transaction given by the sailors. Has received order from Mr. Gerbier

[Girbeare] that ships must attend him at Calais ten days hence; the two ships of the ports and the two pinnaces shall be appointed for that service. He has put out Cannon as ordered. God send the Duke an honester man in his place. Incloses,

Dec. 8. 53. Note of monies disbursed by Sir John Hippisley for repair of armour taken out of the St. Peter, a prize ship, and for making a platform at the North end of Dover Castle; total, 36*l.* 1*s.*, which he prays may be allowed out of the sale of prize goods at Dover.

Dec. 8. Southampton. 55. Robert Earl of Warwick to Sec. Conway. Sends a packet; supposes it concerns the receiving of certain Spaniards which a ship of his had taken. He is certified that there is an order for "rummaging" the prize. If it be directed to the Mayor and officers at Southampton, begs it may be sent back by the bearer, as time is now precious to the Earl.

Dec. 8. 56. Petition of Sir Allen Apsley, as one of the Surveyors of Victuals for the Navy, to the Council:—From the late mutinous carriage of a few sailors of one ship, what disorder may be feared from twenty times that number without victuals or clothes to wear or pawn; prays the Lords to consider the crying necessity and importance of this business.

Dec. 8. 57. Grievances of the Inhabitants of the liberty of Bartholomew the Great, in being unjustly arrested within that district.

Order is also to be taken in the business which Calandrini is to have in charge for the King of Denmark.

Dec. 8. 59. Wm. Clarke to Lord ———. States his opinion, in opposition to that of Sir Robert Travers, concerning the claim of the Lord Admiral to a ship found derelict, being one of those before alluded to. [1626, Sept. 19, No. 20, and 1626, Sept. No. 111.]

Dec. 8. 60. Petition of Roger Langford to the Duke of Buckingham:—After having been embargoed at Malaga, the petitioner's ship was taken by a Spanish man-of-war, which unloaded her goods and sunk her in the sea; petitioner and his crew, being nine Englishmen and thirteen Hollanders, slew the crew of the Spanish ship, being sixty-two persons, except four principal persons who were saved; after which the Hollanders took entire possession of the ship, kept the petitioner and his companions in fetters for eight days, and finally committed them to the sea in a small boat "in cruel tempestuous weather, without meat or drink;" the petitioner made these facts appear to the Justices of Horne, whither the Hollanders had carried the ship and sold her for 2,700*l.*, and the cargo for 1,500*l.*, but obtained no redress; he now prays the Duke's interference.

Dec. 9. Whitehall. 61. The Council to Attorney General Heath. A committee of the Council having, on conference with the Attorney General, made various alterations in the Commission touching the Navy formerly prepared by him, he is authorized to draw up, for his Majesty's signature, a new Commission embodying those alterations. [Copy.]

Dec. 9. Ash. 62. E. Drake to Nicholas. Prizes brought into Plymouth. One brought into Weymouth by a ship the owner of which lives at St. Catherine's, London. He wishes to take her to London; being weak and leaky, he ought to give security for the Duke's tenths before attempting to do so.

Dec. 9. 63. Dr. Rich. Zouch to the same. As ready as any man to argue for the Lord Admiral's profit; yet being consulted, he delivers what he holds to be the truth, and to be agreeable with the Duke's honour. Incloses,

63. 1. His opinion concerning the prize taken by Sir Wm. Hall, in opposition to the opinion given by Mr. Clarke.

Dec. 9. 64. Copy of the preceding.

Dec. 9. 65. Commissioners of the Navy to Lord Treasurer Marlborough. In compliance with the order of Council, 1626, Dec. 8, No. 50, they inform him that the Triumph, Swiftsure, Bonaventure, Vanguard, Reformation, and Esperance, having on board 1,130 men, are all out of victuals; there are also 17 merchant and Newcastle ships having 1,070 men also without victuals. The King's ships cannot be supplied for less than 21 days, nor the others for less than 14 days, the amount for which at 8*d.* per man per day will be 1,290*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*

[Dec. 9 ?] 66. Estimate of the charge for revictualling the above mentioned ships, the King's ships for 42 days, the others for 28 days, 2,581*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

Dec. 9. Weymouth. 67. Gilbert Raleigh to Nicholas. Sends examinations of the Portugals that came in the sugar prize, the St. Matthew, of Lisbon. Finds no commission or letter of marque on board the captors, and therefore has seized the prize to the Lord Admiral's use. The captors say their commission is aboard the Transport. Disastrous consequences to that country from the stoppage of the trade with France. Incloses,

67. 1. Examinations of Emanuel Gonzales and Antonio Gorjano, the "Portugals" before alluded to. They give account of the lading of the prize.

1626. VOL. XLI.

Dec. 10. Whitehall. 68. Order of Council:—That all Frenchmen's goods detained or arrested being of a perishable nature, except wines, might be sold on the request of the owners, the proceeds being deposited in safe custody until further order.

Dec. 10. Cowes. 69. Edwd. Reed to Sec. Conway. Accounts for his not being at Southampton to meet Lord Conway. Is engaged in unlading the prize, which he hopes to complete next week. There is only one French ship stayed which lies at Yarmouth; she has no papers on board, except one which he incloses; the Captain will give no information. The commission for the loan is well accepted in the Isle of Wight; all most willingly lend to the King. Twenty-six Spaniards landed out of the Jonathan, the Earl of Warwick's ship; they were received on land out of charity, and lodged in an empty house; desires to know what is to be done with them.

Dec. 10. 70. Will of Robert Reade of Linkenholt, co. Hants:—He provides for his wife Mildred, and leaves legacies to his brother Henry Reade, his nephew and cousin Francis, his brother-in-law Francis Windebank, his brother George, and his cousin Nicholas Blake. [Copy.]

Dec. 10. 71. Deed of appointment by the said Robert Reade, declaring the trusts on which Francis Windebank, Henry Reade, and Nicholas Blake should hold the manor of Linkenholt, which was conveyed to them on the 7th Dec. 1624. [Copy]

Dec. 10. 72. Note of the lading of the Love, of Havre de Grace, Capt. Jacques Lambert, master, described in the endorsement as the rich French ship driven into Plymouth.

Dec. 10. 73. Report of Dr. Everard's sermon on St. Matthew xiv., 30, 31, delivered at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, in explanation of a sermon formerly made the subject of complaint.

Dec. 10. 74. Names of French ships stayed at Plymouth.

Dec. 11. Blachington. 75. Capt. Richard Gyffard to Nicholas. Details his progress in fitting out a ship for a voyage under letters of marque, in the risk of which the Duke was to adventure 500*l.* The money was not forthcoming, and Gyffard mourns over the inconveniences to which he was put in consequence.

Dec. 11. 76. Capt. Phineas Pett to [Nicholas]. Recommends Thos. Large for Cook of the Warspite.

Dec. 11. Dover Castle. 77. Sir John Hippisley to Nicholas. One of the ships which carried over the French Ambassador's horses had been cast away, both men and horses. The Duke of Buckingham's commodities, of which Mr. Gerbier was so full of care, had arrived at Margate.

Dec. 11. Calehill. 78. Sir Robt. Darrell to Sir Norton Knatchbull. On Saturday night last two soldiers broke into the house of Mr. Sharpe, and holding swords against his breast and that of his wife, robbed them of their money. So many have been the abuses of that kind that honest men are weary of their dwellings, and will betake themselves to towns. The soldiers threaten to cut all the watchmen's throats. Begs him to acquaint the Lord Lieutenant. Sir Robert had sent that day, his wife being in great weakness, to Sir Norton's keeper for the lungs of a fox, which are said to be good for the lungs.

Dec. 11. Dover. 79. John Reading to Nicholas. Wishes to know what answer had been given to a letter in his behalf to the Bishop of London, forwarded to Nicholas by Sir John Hippisley. Whether Dr. Warner was like to speed with the preferment for which he sues?

Dec. 12. Bristol. 80. Wm. Willett to the same. On the 4th inst., the Fortune, said to be of Amsterdam, was driven into that port by foul weather. Willett suspects that she has been taken by Dunkirkers, and that the men on board are Dunkirkers. They have made sale of their lading, but Willett will stay the payment of the money until a Commission can be sent down. [In the margin is Nicholas's direction to issue a Commission accordingly.] The goods of the Mary, taken by the George and the Abraham, had been claimed by a Portuguese residing at Rouen, and a citation had come down from the Court of Delegates. The goods of Capt. Ellis's wrecked prize much damaged by salt water. Inconveniences resulting from the stay of French goods. Whether wines in French ships which have been driven into Bristol and are stayed there, may be sold?

Dec. 12. 81. Capt. Richard Gyffard to Buckingham. Had followed the Duke three years, and would do so all his life if his Grace would command him to any service. Finding that could not be the case at present, he determined to go to sea with one ship and a pinnace; and his Grace having consented to adventure 500*l.*, Lord Willoughby and others agreed to make up the remainder; but now, when the monies are needed, they hold back until the Duke gives order for payment of his 500*l.* As Gyffard's credit is "upon the stack," he submits the matter to the Duke's consideration.

Dec. 12. 82. The same to Nicholas. Sends him particulars of the money advanced on account of the adventure towards which the Duke was to contribute 500*l.* That sum can be no great matter to him, but Gyffard will not press him nor any man. A friend tells him that he has had great wrong done him at Court. Gyffard's enemies are such as dare not show themselves, or of such little worth that they glory in outward shows. Shall be glad to hear what the Commissioners do. This world is nought; virtue is accounted vice, and modesty imbecility.

Dec. 12. 83. The King to Lord Treasurer Marlborough, the Lord Admiral, Robert Earl of Lindsey, the Earls of Pembroke, Bridgewater, Totness, and Denbigh, Viscount Wimbledon, Wm. Lord Harvey, Edward Lord Herbert, Sec. Coke, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Savile, Thos. Aylesbury, one of the Masters of Requests, Sir Wm. Heydon, Sir Robert Cotton, Sir John Trevor, Sir Sackville Trevor, Sir Henry Mainwaring, Sir Thos. Love, Sir John Watts, Sackville

Dec. 12. 88. Another similar list.

Dec. 12. 89. Another similar list, but dated Dec. 15.

Dec. 13. Whitehall. 90. Order of Council:—For the removal to Dover of the prisoners mentioned in the inclosed list, with a view to their exchange. Annexed, 90. I. Names of the King of Spain's subjects prisoners in England.

Dec. 13. 91. Commissioners for Trade to the Council. Report touching the differences between the Eastland Company, of London, and the Brethren of that Company residing at York, respecting a "broake or fine" imposed upon the latter for landing and selling their goods at Dantzick during the sickness at Elbing. The report is against the Brethren at York.

Dec. 13. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Dudley Lord Carleton. To discharge two men out of the King's entertainment for their misdemeanours according to his advice. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 258.]

Dec. 13. Star Chamber. 92. The Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy to the Commissioners for the Navy. Requiring them to send all instructions, books, accounts, and contracts belonging to the navy, and then remaining in their custody, to the Special Commissioners at the Star Chamber, on Wednesday next. [Copy.]

Dec. 13. Star Chamber. 93. Interrogatories administered to Roger Parr, Clerk to the Commissioners for the Navy, by the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy, chiefly relating to the nature and custody of the books and papers of the Commissioners for the Navy. Annexed,

93. I. Form of oath administered by the Special Commissioners to the said Roger Parr.

Dec. 13. 94. Fair copy of the preceding.

Dec. 13. 95. Copy of the oath, with the clause of secrecy struck out.

Dec. 13. 96. Copy of the full oath, with minutes of evidence of Roger Parr.

Vol. XLII. 14–31 December, 1626.

Dec. 14. Doctors' Commons. 1. Richd. Wyan to Nicholas. Have used their best diligence about the business of the Dutch, and inclose an abstract of what they have done. There are many more complaints before the Council, and some of Bristol men, especially one Hallworthy. Wyan is "no linguist, but natural tongue and some Latin." A practised linguist, versed in commerce, is wanted. The Commissioners of Prize Goods should appoint such a person.

Dec. 14. 2. Sir Wm. Alexander to the same. Requests a warrant for bringing the Eagle from Dover to the river Thames, where she is to take in some ordnance to be planted in a chief strength belonging to his Majesty in Scotland.

Dec. 14. Whitehall. 3. Nicholas Lisle's project for levying fines on encroachments more fully stated than in the preceding papers [1626, Nov., Nos. 64 to 66]. With underwritten reference by the Commissioners of the King's revenues to Sir Robert Rich, Master in Chancery, and Sir Thos. Fanshaw, the King's Surveyor General.

Dec. 14. Portsmouth. 4. Wm. Towerson to Nicholas. The Gift of God, a French ship from Malaga, brought in by Sir John Watts, Henry Chimnett, Master; sends an account of her lading and requests instructions.

Dec. 14. Gloucester. 5. W. Guise to the same. His brother having, under the Duke's warrant, endeavoured to collect the tenths of Mr. Ellis's prize, which miscarried, had been unable to do so, because Mr. Ellis, being Sheriff of Bristol and Deputy for Sir John Drake, had demanded the goods in Sir John Drake's name.

Dec. 14. Portsmouth. 6. Capt. Sir John Watts to Buckingham. Reports the stay of the "great French ship" at St. Helen's, and her delivery to Capt. Towerson. By order of Lord Conway he had sent for the Spaniards landed in the Isle of Wight, and had dispersed them into five of the men-of-war. There were the Cameleon, the Sarah Bonaventure, the Hopewell, and Capt. Butler's prize to be victualled. Mr. Brookes would disburse 300*l.* for Sir Wm. Russell, for the wants of the ships there, which should be carefully expended. At that instant, he received the Duke's order to bring the Lion round to Deptford to be docked. She has no need thereof, only of lowering her upper works. Incloses,

6. I. Note of the lading of the French ship brought in from St. Helen's.

Dec. 14. Portsmouth. 7. The same to Nicholas. On the same subjects. Mode in which the 300*l.* shall be expended. The Lion did not need more than 100*l.* laid out upon her.

Dec. 14. Bristol. 8. Wm. Willett to the same. Had attached the Amsterdam ship, and examined three of the Dunkirkers, who confess that they took the ship about 20 days ago. Begs him to hasten the Commission. [In the margin is a note by Nicholas to [Sir Henry Marten], requesting him to send the Commission by the bearer.]

1626. Vol. XLII.

Dec. 14. Whitehall. Proclamation to restrain the unlawful transportation of hides and leather. Raw hides are forbidden to be exported, and in order to prevent the same, no hides or leather are to be put on board any ship. [Coll. Procs. Car. I., No. 56.]

Dec. 15. Weymouth, and Melcombe Regis. 9. Officers of the Customs at Weymouth to ———. Two other French ships have been stayed. Mr. Gilbert Raleigh, Dep. Vice Admiral, notwithstanding the service was done by the King's officers, took a ton of wine and some prunes from the French ships, whereat they seem much grieved. When the stay shall be enlarged, no doubt there will be complaints.

[Dec. 15.] 10. List of such of the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy as were to survey the ships and stores at Chatham, Woolwich, and Deptford.

[Dec. 15.] 11. Copy of the same.

Dec. 15. Star Chamber. 12. The Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy to Sir Henry Mainwaring, Capts. John Pennington and Phineas Pett, Joshua Downing, and all others his Majesty's officers. Warrant authorizing Sir Henry Mainwaring and Capts. Pennington and Pett to repair to Rochester, Chatham, and Gillingham, by Monday next on the business of the Commission, and to prepare the King's ships for a survey, Joshua Downing and all others being charged to give assistance therein. [Draft.]

Dec. 15. Leatherhead. 13. Justices of Surrey to the Council. The monies received for the loan have been paid in. Divers persons who had previously lent on Privy Seals delivered to them in November and December 1625, conceive that on this loan their Privy Seals should be allowed. The Justices pray for direction therein.

Dec. 15. Bristol. 14. John Whitson to Nicholas. That the wines in the two French ships stayed at Bristol may be sold, the proceeds being retained.

Dec. 15. The Savoy. 15. George Earl of Totness to Buckingham. About two months ago, the Earl through the Duke's interference obtained an order for supply of the defects in the office of the Ordnance. As the Earl knows no man that loves the King with more zealous affection, or more seriously takes to heart the good of the state, than the Duke, the Earl begs him to give furtherance to the humble motion which the Earl now makes to the King.

Dec. 15. Newcastle. 16. John Butler to Mr. Ashmell. An order must be obtained from the Council before the Mayor will deliver Giles Clowe, a prisoner, to be exchanged for Thomas Dixon. Hugh Rose asks 120*l.* for procuring Dixon's release, but the prisoners are to be exchanged, prisoner for prisoner, therefore such a sum is unreasonable. The writer will move Dixon's wife to give 10*l.* Mr. Ashwell had better apply to Sec. Coke, and if he does, he is requested to mention the case of Harry Bailes, a servant of the writer, for whom the Dunkirkers demand a ransom of 300*l.*

Dec. 15. Star Chamber. 17. The Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy to Wm. Burrell, one of the Commissioners of the Navy. Summons to attend the Commissioners at their next sitting on the morrow in the Star Chamber, to answer to such questions as shall be propounded to him.

Dec. 15. 18. Minute of warrant to Robt. Smyth, one of the Messengers of the Chamber, to bring Roger Parr before the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy.

Dec. 15. 19. Answer of Roger Parr to the interrogatories of the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy. [See 1626, Dec. 13, No. 93.]

Dec. 15. Dartmouth. 20. Christopher Snell to Nicholas [addressed as "James"]. Sir John Drake had used his endeavour, both with the captain and company, to procure from them their parts [of a prize]. Intreats him to prevent the discouragement which will arise to adventurers, if they see themselves crossed in sales of their goods by others that live at home in security.

[Dec. 16?] 21. Case of the tenants of his Majesty's lordship of Narberth, near Milford Haven. Mr. Barlow, having had various disputes with these tenants, now seeks to buy the lordship that he may have them at his mercy, whereupon some of the tenants petitioned the King and procured an answer. Annexed,

21. 1. Answer above mentioned. The King refers the subject to the Commissioners of the Revenue. Dec. 16.

Dec. 16. 22. Robert Bowle[?] to Sir Thos. Walsingham, senr. In two days of travel has only got 20*s.* on account of the loan. The cause arises from John Kettell, who again refuses to pay, and gibes at the writer when he demands the amount. If he were sent for by a pursuivant, and made an example, the money would come in suddenly, otherwise it is folly for the writer to travel up and down. "That report of his" has come to Cray, and Mr. Edward Manning, who appointed many days to come for his money, now says he has disposed of it elsewhere, hearing that others thereabout refused and did not mean to pay at all.

Dec. 16. Whitehall. 23. Order of Council, made on hearing the complaints of merchants trading for France, touching the seizures of their ships and goods in that country:—No French ships or goods were to be suffered to pass out of Ireland until further order.

Dec. 16. 24. Claim by Dr. Cademan for the allowance of 100*l.* lent and laid out by her Majesty's appointment. [Underwritten is a certificate signed by Susan Countess of Denbigh, that her Majesty acknowledges Dr. Cademan's account "to be a due debt."]

Dec. 16. 25. Examination of Wm. Burrell, one of the Commissioners of the Navy, before the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the navy, concerning the books in his possession relating to the affairs of the navy. He prays to be spared bringing them in until Monday.

1626. Vol. XLII.

Dec. 16. Star Chamber. 26. Buckingham and others of the Council to William Trumbull, one of the Clerks of the Council. Warrant authorizing him to seize all contracts, books and papers in the possession of Mr. Burrell, which in any way concern his Majesty's navy.

Dec. 16. Poplar. 27. A note of such books and papers as were taken from Mr. Burrell.

Dec. 16. 28. Sir Henry Palmer's account of 141*l.* expended in transporting the Earl of Holland and Lord Carleton to and from France under an order of the Duke of Buckingham, dated Dec. 29, 1625 [by mistake referred to as 1626]; and also under a similar order received April 10, 1626, in going to Portsmouth to receive the Vanguard and six merchant ships lent to the French, which arrived there on the 1st of May.

Dec. 17. Portsmouth. 29. Capt. Sir John Watts to Nicholas. Sends him one of the owners of the great French ship. Another French ship brought in, of 100 tons, laden with French wines. If he does not receive counter orders he shall bring up the Lion into the Thames. Hopes for a fair wind, that their victuals may last.

Dec. 17. Aboard the Globe in Stokes Bay. 30. Capt. Thomas Philpot to Buckingham, addressed as "most illustrious Prince." Himself and Capt. Paramour had convoyed the cloth ships to the Elbe, where they arrived on the 10th inst. Being driven from the Elbe by stress of weather, they had been unable to make the Downs, and had been driven into Stokes Bay, whence they would return to the Downs as soon as possible.

Dec. 17. Tehidie. 31. Francis Bassett to Nicholas. Had taken measures to stay French ships. John Trewinnard, a dep. searcher at St. Ives, had already taken the sails off a French ship at St. Ives, and scornfully refused to deliver them up although shown the Duke's warrant. Bad influence of such conduct amongst a people who are already too apt to do anything to disadvantage the Duke's service.

Dec. 18. Kingsthorp. 32. Dr. Samuel Clerke to Sec. Conway. The Countess of Denbigh had lately moved the Duke in his behalf for the Deanery of Worcester, which will presently be made void by the preferment of Dr. Hall. The Duke gave a gracious answer, the rather that Mr. Saladin, tutor to Lord Kenelm, Lady Denbigh's son, and to the Lord Chamberlain's son, might thereupon succeed the writer in the mastership of an hospital at Leicester. Has been chaplain in ordinary nine years, and never sought preferment.

Dec. 18. Ramsgate. 33. William Euers and others to Sir John Hippisley. Information that Henry Reeve, of Sandwich, with a company of nineteen armed men, violently wrested from the writers a French ship which they were about to bring to Ramsgate pier.

Dec. 18. Doctor's Commons. 34. Richd. Wyan to Nicholas. Sends commission and interrogatories for Bristol. Great complaint made against Salleneuve for taking a ship of Lubeck and bringing her into Weymouth. Hoped to have found some information on the subject in the letter sent by Nicholas, but that being in French is heathen Greek to the writer.

Dec. 18. 35. Account of monies disbursed by John Attewell for provisions brought to his Majesty's house at Chatham Hill, for the use of the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy there assembled this day; with underwritten certificate of Phineas Pett.

Dec. 18. Portsmouth. 36. Capt. Sir John Watts to Buckingham. Sir Wm. Russell having refused to repay Mr. Brookes the 300*l.* which he had offered to advance, that offer is withdrawn. Sir John purposes to furnish the fleet on his own credit, and to come away with the first fair wind. Begs the money may be sent down. Has eight ships with 700 men in them.

Dec. 18. Portsmouth. 37. The same to Nicholas. Repeats the information in the preceding. Will set sail with the first fair wind, but the clamour of those to whom money is due much troubles him. Entreats the money may be sent to him, and that he may not depart from the port in disgrace. It is his unhappiness to be commanded and to want the means to perform.

Dec. 18. 38. Wm. Burrell to Wm. Trumbull, Clerk of the Council. Sends his man for various books which are needed for present use. The contracts for ships are some of them in the hands of Mr. Edisbury, who will look them up. The rest Burrell will bring to Trumbull that day, that he may take notes of them as he will, so that Burrell may carry them away, for they are his evidences for great sums.

Dec. 19. 39. D. Burton to Nicholas. Mr. Hugessen [Hugonson] is to be bound in 1,000*l.* to the Duke of Buckingham, if certain packs of coral seized at Portsmouth prove good prize within twelve months.

Dec. 19. 40. Interrogatories administered to Kenrick Edisbury, Paymaster of the Navy, by the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy.

Dec. 19. 41. Answers of Kenrick Edisbury to the preceding interrogatories.

Dec. 19. Aboard the Desire in the Downs. 42. Christopher Bulger, Master of the Desire, to Buckingham. Has stayed a French bark, Corneille Bloquet, Master, and reports the nature of her lading. Incloses, 42. I. Bill of lading of goods for Hamburgh. Rouen, 1626, Dec. $\frac{8}{18}$.

42. II. Another bill of lading of goods for London. Rouen, 1626, Dec. $\frac{9}{19}$.

Dec. 19. The Downs. 43. Capt. Wm. Cooke to Nicholas. Is grieved that false information should be given against the captains of the City ships. Incloses a letter which they hope the Duke will take into his consideration, also a journal of their proceedings. Inclose,

43. I. Capt. Wm. Cooke and thirteen others, captains of the ships furnished by the City of London to Buckingham. Give a minute report of their proceedings from the 10*th inst., and beseech him to believe that when wind and weather* were fitting he would find no neglect in them. The six ships bound for the French King's service are detained at Amsterdam. 1626, December 19.

43. II. Brief journal of their course from the 7th to the 17th December.

Dec. 19. 44. Sir Henry Palmer to Nicholas. Had received his account, but nothing to the purpose. Reminds Nicholas of his promise to get his account underwritten, and also to send him a warrant for his payment for the time he had served. Hopes he shall not be put "to seek after the sitting of the Commissioners." His attendance has been chargeable enough, and he must be gone, leaving his business no forwarder than when he came up.

Dec. 19. Star Chamber. 45. The Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy to ———, one of the Messengers of the Chamber, directing him to charge [John] Ackworth; [John] Wells, Keeper of the Stores; Falkner, Clerk of the Check; and [Kenrick] Edisbury, to make their immediate repair to the Star Chamber in the Messenger's company, to answer before the Commissioners to such things as should be objected against them.

Dec. 19. 46. Attorney General Heath to the Council. Reports his opinion on a petition from an English creditor of a late Bailiff of one of the Channel Islands. The will of the late Bailiff being disputed the creditor remained unpaid. The Attorney General recommends a letter to be addressed to the Bailiff and Jurats to urge on the suit, and to see that the petitioner's debt were paid out of the first monies received, to John Le Vavasseur, son of Michael Le Vavasseur, on the petitioner's account.

Dec. 19. Star Chamber. 47. Note of books and papers of Mr. Burrell perused by Mr. Aylesbury, Sir Robt. Cotton, Sir Wm. Heydon, and Sir John Trevor, Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy.

Dec. 19. 48. Copy or duplicate of the preceding; with marginal memoranda of the redelivery of various books and papers to Mr. Burrell on Dec. 20.

Dec. 20. 49. Certificate of Sir Nicholas Poyntz and others, described as "the better sort of prisoners in Newgate," as to the carriage in prison of John Tapps.

Dec. 20. 50. Philip Burlamachi to Sec. Conway. The 40*l.* paid to Mr. Huncks had been refused to be allowed in Holland, and so also the 30*l.* paid to Mr. Conway, Lord Conway's son. Fr.

Dec. [20.] 51. Petition of Henry Waltham to the Council:—On pretence of his owing 500*l.* to the King he was sent for in November last; has given bond for the money in the Court of Admiralty, which ought to be a discharge; is a merchant [of Weymouth] trading in cloth and employing above 200 people, his trade being wholly into France, where his goods are stayed by a general restraint; prays that he may be admitted to speak by counsel.

Dec. 20. 52. Certificate of Christopher Vernon of the compositions made with the Commissioners for Sale of his Majesty's Lands, in fee-farm, from 1626, Sept. 27, to the 5th Dec. The sum received was 29,996*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*; the old rents reserved amounted to 830*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.*; the increased rents, to 856*l.* 14*s.* 11½*d.*

Dec. 20. 53. Uncertified copy of the preceding.

Dec. 20. 54. Another copy with some additions and corrections. The amounts stand as follows: the sum received, 30,767*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.*; the old rents, 854*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.*; increased rents, 879*l.* 7*s.* 11½*d.*

Dec. 20. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Sir Heneage Finch, Recorder of London. For his favour to the Company of Innholders of London in renewing their charter. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 258.]

Dec. 21. 55. Richard Wyan to Nicholas. Shall be absent until the day after Christmas. Can get no money for the King's business. It is his employment day and night, and he has put all his private practice off, but has never had a penny from the King. The Duke has honorably interposed, but Wyan is turned over from one to another with as much scorn as if he begged.

Dec. 21. 56. Payments made by anticipation of the ordinary revenue; total 162,119*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.*

Dec. 21. 58. Copy of the preceding.

Dec. 21. 59. Lord Keeper Coventry to the King. Report on a petition of Sarah Lady Hastings, respecting disputes between her and Sir Edwd. Zouch, relating to their rights under the will of the late Lord Zouch. These disputes had been referred by the parties to the Lord Steward of the Household, and the Countess of Bedford, whose award the Lord Keeper thought should be adhered to, with one slight alteration. Dec. [22.] 60. Interrogatories for examination of John Wells and John Ackworth before the Special Commissioners for inquiry into the state of the navy.

Dec. 22. 61. Answer of John Ackworth to the interrogatories before mentioned.

Dec. 22. 62. Attorney General Heath to Sec. Conway. His Majesty had signed three letters concerning the draining of Hatfield Chase, which it is hoped will facilitate the work.

Dec. 22. Whitehall. 63. Sir Robert Aiton to Sir Francis Nethersole. In answer to his congratulations on his restoration to an office about the Queen. The Queen of Bohemia may rely upon it that he will watch for all occasions of doing her service with the Queen, his mistress, although her Majesty need no remembrancer on such occasions. He is to have a fellow joined with him, rather he hopes for his good than for his disgrace.

Dec. 22. Star Chamber. 64. Order of Council:—That the survey of ships and stores directed by order of the 23d of Oct. last, to be made by the former Commissioners of the Navy, should now be proceeded with by the said Commissioners, they taking care not to interfere with the persons already deputed by the Council to make a similar survey.

Dec. 22. 65. Draft of the preceding. [On the blank page is written a memorandum that Sir Norton Knatchbull, then lying at the Sun in Cheapside, was to attend the Lord Admiral, and was to call to mind the words that the collector gave concerning Sir Dudley Digges's answer before the Lord Tufton.]

[Draft.]

Dec. 22. Whitehall. 67. The King to Buckingham. The King being informed that there are at Havre de Grace six or eight ships, lately bought by the French King in the Low Countries, and intended to be employed to the great prejudice of England, the Duke is directed to command the captains of the ships set forth by the City of London to repair to Havre, and there to take or sink the said ships.

Dec. 22. Whitehall. 68. The same to the same. The King being informed that there was at Rochelle great store of ships intended to be employed to the great prejudice of England, the Duke is directed to give command to Capt. Pennington and the other captains of the ships set forth by the City of London to repair to Rochelle, and there to take, sink, or burn all such ships.

Dec. 22. The Downs. 69. Capt. John Lowe to Nicholas. Two French ships came into the Downs that day. The King's pinnace stayed one; the other named the Oliver, was stayed by the writer. Some Holland ships report that four of the ships they were to look out for were gone five weeks since; one other was cast away, and another is still at Enckhuysen. The fleet had gone to sea that night. Begs Nicholas to pacify the Duke. The wind and weather had been so contrary, that they could not do more than they had done.

Dec. 22. Bristol. 70. Wm. Willett to the same. Reports his proceedings respecting the Flemish ship which, having been taken by the Dunkirkers, was afterwards driven by stress of weather into Bristol. After he had been four days in possession, a claim had been set up by the Sheriffs of Bristol, who had seized the ship and insisted that she belonged to them. Begs directions what to do.

Dec. 22. 71. Order of the Special Commissioners for inquiring into the state of the Navy:—Mr. Burrell having stated, that the defects of the Bonaventure arose from her being too high in the stern and above decks, and that if she were taken lower she would be as good a sailor as the ships built at Dunkirk, the Lord Admiral was requested to submit the same to his Majesty, so that a trial thereof might be made. [Copy.]

Dec. 22. 72. Draft thereof.

Dec. 23. Prison [of Newgate.] 73. John Tapps to Sec. Conway. By the displeasure of the late Lord Chief Justice, and the persecution of James, the clerk and one of the keepers of that prison, he has been kept from the benefit of his pardon, which has been stayed at the Great Seal. Begs Lord Conway to perfect his work, by moving the Lord Keeper in his behalf, and in the meantime by sending some powerful warrant for his employment as a soldier.

Dec. [23?] 74. Sir Wm. Sandys to the same. Thanks for excusing Sir William's going into Hampshire, on account of his ill health. Begs Lord Conway to move the King, that he may permitted to stay [in London] this Christmas.

men, and treasure to pay the Spanish troops in Flanders, and also that the said fleet is to come to St. Maloes, where command has been given by the French King that it shall be "friendly received," he is to repair to St. Maloes, and to ply up and down to intercept and take those pataches.

Dec. 24. Whitehall. 81. Buckingham to Capt. John Pennington. Secret instructions in the handwriting of Nicholas. Four or six ships, bought by the French King in the Low Countries and now riding at Havre de Grace, are intended to be employed to the prejudice of his Majesty. As Pennington passes towards St. Maloes he is to find out those ships, and to give the Captains of them some occasion to fall out with him, whereupon he is to take or sink them. If they will not meddle first with him, he is to pick some quarrel with them, and so to assail and take them.

Dec. 24. Whitehall. 82. The same to all Mayors and other officers. Capt. John Pennington being employed in his Majesty's special service is to be furnished with five horses for himself, three servants, and a guide, for his better expedition to Dover.

Dec. 24. Aboard the Benediction, in the Downs. 83. Capt. Robt. Orme to Nicholas. Reports the stay of a French ship, laden with High Country wine, which he had sent on for London. Answers complaints which he thinks had been made against him to the Duke of Buckingham. He does not undertake that office to get a living, but for his delight, neither does he value his life if he may do honour to his country. They have been forced into the Downs, but will sail again as soon as possible. Sir John Watts and other ships arrived last night.

Dec. 24. Bristol. 84. Wm. Willett to the same. Capt. Harris had arrived in King Road with the Phœnix. As he was at Mount's Bay there came in a Hamburgher and a Frenchman. If the Hamburgher prove prize she will be welcome. Requests instructions what shall be done. Purposed to have acquainted Sir Wm. Russell, but has heard that he has given over his place of Treasurer of the Navy.

Dec. 24. Stokes Bay. 85. Capts. Thos. Philpot, Richd. Paramour, and Wm. Hemming to Buckingham. On the 22d, they stood towards the coast of France, and up to this day have arrested nine French ships, a Dutch ship, a Scottish bark laden with French goods, and a Dutch pink, which they suspect to be a freebooter, all which they have sent into Portsmouth, and delivered them to Capt. Towerson. Inclose,

85. 1. Note of all the ships taken by them, as before-mentioned, with their names, tonnage, names of the Masters, and various other particulars.

Dec 24. Haverfordwest. 87. Justices of co. Pembroke to the Council. The Timothy, of London, one of Lord Willoughby's fleet, having come into Tenby, and being there detained by contrary winds, had applied for a supply of victuals. The supplies furnished to the King's soldiers on their return from Cadiz, having been questioned, the writers pray that the payments for those supplies may be allowed, and that directions may be given respecting the ship now at Tenby. Inclose,

87. I. Simon Morgan, Purser of the Timothy, to Dep. Lieuts. and others, Commissioners for co. Pembroke. His ship, employed in the King's service, had been driven into Tenby; requests a supply of victuals. 1626, Dec. 23.

Dec. 24. Deal. 88. Capt. Wm. Hawkridge to Nicholas. The 23d, the day he parted from Nicholas, he lodged in Sandwich, where being overwearied he rested until noon. Reports what ships there are in the Downs. Looked for his ship that night from the Gore, and if he can, will put to sea. The Dunkirkers took two Scottish ships yesterday laden with wines. Wishes he would write to Portsmouth that the ships there should lie outside the Wight, which would save near two days.

Dec. 25. Deal. 89. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. Arrived at Deal by eight o'clock that morning, found fourteen sail of merchant ships, but his ship, the George, was still riding at Gore End. Found Capt. Hawkridge there, who had been unable to get aboard by reason of foul weather. Has sent to have the George come about with the first opportunity, and purposes not to lose an hour. The ships have only a month's victuals aboard.

Dec. 25. London. 90. John Urquhart [Urcard ?] to the Captains and Masters of the twenty sail of ships sent out by the City of London. These ships were to return to Blackwall by the 23d Jan. next, at which time the three months would have expired and the Committee will not be at any more charges.

Dec. 26. Dover. 91. Capt. John Warde to Nicholas. The ships furnished by the Cinque Ports were victualled only until January 4. As the Duke is Lord Warden, they hope they shall not be thrust out of employment when others stand.

Dec. 26. Tichborne. 92. Sir Richard Tichborne [to Sec. Conway]. His Lordship having given them a fair entrance to the business of the loan in Hants, the Commissioners will give a timely account of their proceedings. In his district, all who have appeared have either laid down their money or subscribed. His associate Commissioners are active in the service, especially those of the Church and Sir Henry Whitehead. In the New Forest district, of all that came before them there was no one refuser; but money is scarce in that wilderness, and the four companies of Col. Bruce's regiment lie yet upon their confines. The county has received comfort from the arrangement that the monies now lent are to be issued for payment of the soldiers, which they attribute to his Lordship's mediation. In the New Forest he found the collectors not all of sufficient ability for a collection which will amount to 1,600*l.* or 1,700*l.*

Dec. 26. Portsmouth. 93. Wm. Towerson to Buckingham. Sends a certificate of French ships and goods left in his custody by Sir John Watts and Capt. Philpot. He has taken all their sails ashore, and warned the crews against embezzlement. Wheat in the Dutch ship would perish if not unladen. Incloses, 93. I. Certificate above mentioned.

Dec. 26. Dover. 94. Luke Burden, Captain of one of the Cinque Port ships, to Nicholas. The Committee of the Cinque Ports purpose to send up their two ships about Thursday sennight, which is the expiration of the three months. Desires the Duke's directions.

Dec. 27. Bristol. 96. Capt. Christr. Harris to Nicholas. On Christmas Day [sic] he arrived in the Phoenix, in King Road, bringing with him the Hamburgher and the French ship before mentioned. [See 1626, Dec. 24, No. 84.]

Dec. 27. Dover Castle. 97. Sir John Hippisley to Buckingham. Twelve great dry vats had arrived for the Duke from Calais; he had stayed them till the other goods came. Sec. Coke had written for Bulger's French prize to be sent to London. Wants the commission for Camber Castle, and that the Assurance, of Dover, which he took up, may be paid. Finds by Capt. Pennington that all his men and ships are out of order; is doing his best to help him with pilots for the French coast, but wishes he had a press warrant.

Dec. 28. 98. Description of four men taken in the Violet, of Ipswich, on the coast of Holland.

Dec. 28. 99. Receipt of John Bentley, Collector, for 40*s.* received of Richd. Tutty, money subscribed to be lent to his Majesty.

Dec. 28. Deal. 100. Capt. John Pennington to Buckingham. The wind has blown so violently that it has been impossible to loose a ship. They are now fifteen sail, of which he incloses a list; but the ships are poorly manned, and are mean things, unfit for men-of-war. They are, besides, overrated in burthen, and their ordnance of little use. The King and his Grace have been much abused respecting this fleet. It makes a noise with the name of twenty ships, but he would beat them all with two ships of the King's. Their ammunition is not more than enough for a fight of two hours, and they have order not to stay out longer than three months. He has written to Sir John Hippisley for pilots, but no defects shall keep him there one moment after he has weather. Wishes the Duke to order the ships at Portsmouth to meet him at Havre de Grace or St. Maloes. Incloses,

100. 1. List of fifteen ships before mentioned.

Suffolk, to the high and mighty Prince, George Duke of Buckingham:—Set forth their great losses from the Dunkirkers, principally in consequence of the fleet for convoy not being ready in time. The Westmony fleet that usually goes for ling ought to be ready in February, and that for Iceland at the end of March; they pray that ships of war may be set forth in due time for their convoy.

Dec. 29. Whitehall. Sec. Conway to Frances Duchess of Richmond. Sends a petition of Mr. Lathom for a debt due to him from the late Duke. [Minute, Conway's Letter Book, p. 258.]

wines are the return for English cloth exported by the petitioners, and for which they are indebted to the clothiers; pray that they may be at liberty to land and sell their wines.

Dec. 30. Whitehall. 110. Order of Council, on the petition of the owners of French ships stayed at Portsmouth and St. Ives, and which ships are laden with fruits and Spanish wines:—That the ships should be brought round to London, and their cargoes be there disposed of according to the order of 10th inst. for disposal of French goods stayed being of a perishable nature.

Dec. 30. Ragland Castle. 114. Henry Lord Herbert of Ragland to Buckingham. The loan in the counties of Monmouth and Glamorgan goes on with the wished success, cheerfully, and not without some repining against them that failed in their promises, and deceived his Majesty's expectation in not giving the supply necessary to a business of so high consequence. Monmouth, which is completed, will, he hopes, give a precedent to Glamorganshire and all Wales.

Dec. 31. Aboard the George in the Downs. 115. Capt. John Pennington to the Council. Got aboard his ship with difficulty on the 28th, and on the 29th set sail with all his fleet, but the wind veered, and blew so furiously that they were forced to return to the Downs. The Globe, the Merchant Bonaventure, and the Ellen have joined them in the Downs, but the weather has prevented his speaking with them. Will not lose a minute's time, having an extraordinary desire, besides his duty, to let the Frenchmen know that their insolences are not well taken nor shall pass unrevenged.

Dec. 31. Eton near Windsor. 116. Richard Daye to Sec. Conway. Recommends his project for sowing Windsor forest with acorns to the Sec.'s attention. [See 1626, Jan. 19, No. 94.]

The writer is sure his Majesty will speak to his dogs. Sends copies of two petitions already delivered, and entreats that he may have a pass to go abroad. Incloses,

61. I. Petition of the same to the King:—Relating his long course of service under Queen Anne of Denmark, and her brother the Duke of Holstein; desires that he may be taken into the service of King Charles, or that an order of the late King may stand in full force, and that he may have 1,000*l.* paid to him on account.

61. II. Another petition from the same to the same:—Praying that his Majesty will take back his pension, giving the petitioner what he thinks fit, or will license him to dispose of it.

62. Petition of Benjamin Blaxton to the Council:—Complains of the malicious conduct of Robert Harwell, through whom the petitioner had been imprisoned ten several times, and was then confined in the Fleet; prays that his cause may be heard at the Board.

63. Petition of Thos. Blount, prisoner in the New Prison, to Sec. Conway:—Being affected with divers diseases, prays liberty to walk abroad sometimes in the open air. Annexed,

63. I. Certificate of "Gulielmus Harriseus" and other doctors, in support of the above petition.

64. Minute of a petition that the question of the validity of a grant of the exclusive printing of briefs and other papers printed on one side of the paper, made by the late King to the Sieur de Boislorée, but contested by the Stationers' Company, might be left to determination by law.

[1626?] VOL. XLIV.

65. Minute of request of the Sieur de Boisloreé for a passport, and free conveyance for himself and family into France.

66. Buckingham to Sec. Conway. Thanks for a letter; the bearer will make an answer to it.

67. Request to Lord ——— by a poor kinsman, to move the Duke of Buckingham not to oppose the proceedings of the writer in the Court of Wards, concerning the estate of an idiot.

68. Memorandum of Mary Countess of Buckingham, that by direction of her son the Duke of Buckingham, she commanded George Fielding to give her niece Compton 50*l.* which he not having at Huntingdon, borrowed of Sir Thos. Compton.

69. Memorandum that one year and a half is due on Mrs. Cary's pension of 500*l.* per ann., and that it is the King's pleasure that the same should be presently paid.

70. Petition of Michael Crake, the King's Footman, to the King:—Thos. Coulton, of Grimsby, co. Lincoln, entered into bond for 30*l.* on 8th Sept., 9th James I., conditioned to answer for 1,000 deal boards forfeited for nonpayment of customs, the bond being forfeited, petitioner prays the King to bestow the forfeiture upon him.

71. Petition of William Crosse to Buckingham and the Council of War:—Was preacher to Sir Edward Horwood's regiment in the expedition to Cadiz; on the next payment to the officers of that regiment, hopes he may receive some fitting means to relieve the wants of his present necessity.

72. Petition of Jeffery Cuckowe to the Council:—Having lived heretofore in Germany, he lately returned to England on a report of the death of some of his kindred; prays for a pass back to Germany to his wife and children.

73. Lettice Countess of Leicester, widow of Robert Dudley Earl of Leicester, to her "honourable dear son" Henry Earl of Holland. Recommends her special good friend Mr. Chamberlayne, who desired to become known to the Earl, and was in such place as that he might sometimes do the Earl a service. Subscribes herself the Earl's "grandmother," dearly loving him.

74. "Godly Verses" by James Orrell. Five short poems of which the following are the first lines, "Sweet Saviour of the world, and Judge of all:" "When I consider what I am by nature:" "The years of man are ten seven times o'ertold:" "A sinner's habit is a mournful sprite:" "What is the only end of man's creation?" With an epilogue from which it appears that the writer, who describes himself as being in poverty, addressed these compositions to a lady whom he styles "Madame" and "Your Grace."

75. Case respecting the debt due from the Crown and the City of London to the representatives of Sir Horatio Pallavicino; and also respecting an arrangement, stated to have been founded on deceitful pretences, whereby lands of the value of 500*l.* per annum were granted to Sir Oliver Cromwell, who married Dame Anne, widow and executrix of Sir Horatio; with opinion of some legal person thereon. [Copy. See Vol. xxxviii. No. 21.]

77. Petition of Thos. Reeve, clerk, to the Council:—For marrying Lord Maltravers to Lady Elizabeth Stewart, petitioner was, by the King's express command, committed close prisoner, but has since, out of his Majesty's clemency, been ordered to be set at liberty; he is, notwithstanding, constrained to remain prisoner for his charges, which he is unable to pay; prays that he may be freed from such payment. [Underwritten are the following words in the King's handwriting: "Thire llo^{pps} will giue noe order upon this Petiĉon.]

78. Petition of John Reynolds, prisoner in the Fleet, to the same:—Was forced from France by order of the late King, and on his arrival in England was committed to prison for being the author of a book termed "Votiva Angliæ," in which he deplored the loss of the Palatinate, and desired its restitution, which "every true-hearted Englishman ought to wish and pray for;" has been imprisoned full two years, during which time he has incurred a debt of 300*l.* for his maintenance; also owes sixty and odd pounds for which he is surety, and is threatened to be arrested for the same as soon as he is at liberty; prays for protection against arrest for one year.

79. ——— to [Sec. Conway]. The writer's son Worsley having missed seeing his Lordship, the writer informs him that Sir John Savile is a man liable to be violently transported with passion. Examples are cited of his abusing his fellow Justices on the bench, offering blows, and, on one occasion, causing a man to be shot when taking a possession. His Lordship is requested to let the Lord Keeper understand these things.

80. John Sictor, a Bohemian exile, to Dr. Thos. Ryves. Sir Henry Marten, Judge of the Court of Arches, having money frequently committed to him for pious uses, had on a former occasion bestowed 30*s.* on the writer on the recommendation of Dr. Westfield; prays Dr. Ryves's intercession to procure him a further gift. He brought letters from the Queen of Bohemia to the Corporation of London, but on account of the badness of the times, and the heavy payments arising out of the war, he has not been able to obtain any relief.

81. William Sheldon to Sec. Conway. In behalf of his younger brother, Baldwin Sheldon, of Grafton. Case Shurley, one of the late King's footmen, "begged" Robert Throgmorton and Baldwin Sheldon, and had grants of their lands, paying to the King 120*l.* 10*s.* per ann. for a certain term; that rent has been paid, but nevertheless Edwd. Smythe has sued Baldwin Sheldon for the penalty of 20*l.* a month for 6 months. Sir Thos. Coventry, the late

84. Petition of the priests and laity of Scotland to Pope Urban VIII.:—They again represent to his Holiness that they find the hearts of the people of that kingdom well affected towards the Catholic faith; beseech him to grant them a Bishop, namely, Mr. John Trumbull [Tromble] to be their Primate and Bishop of St. Andrews.

88. The King to ———. By agreement with the United Provinces, the 6,000 men sent for their assistance were to be maintained complete. Several officers having been recalled to be employed in the Cadiz expedition, their entertainment during their absence had been retained from them; the King's pleasure is, that out of money in the hands of Philip Burlamachi, or of Julian Calandrini, the commissary of the said troops, the person addressed is to cause these officers to be satisfied. [Draft.]

89. John Harrison to the King. Defends his late mission to Barbary against objections urged by Sir Henry Marten. Prays that his expenses on that occasion may be paid. Accuses Barrett of intending to sell into slavery the Turks he proposes to exchange. [See Vol. xxxvi., No. 76.] Entreats the King to give the Ambassadors from Morocco a fair and honourable despatch.
